Heavy Rains End 32-Day Drought in District Area

Middle Atlantic States Get Relief; Bombers to Try Dry Ice in Maine

A rainfall which measured slightly more than an inch broke the grip of a 32-day long drought here yesterday.

Although welcomed by forecasters and farmers, the rain created difficulties in the District.

Electrical service in some sections was affected. Basements were flooded. There was a flurry of minor traffic accidents. Streetcars stalled and tied up traffic. Some traffic lights went out of service. Sewers were clogged.

Showers Widespread

Showers fell on most of the Middle Atlantic States, except for coastal areas, from western North Carolina to western New York. Still without rain, however, was Maine, where forest fires have cost 15 lives and taken a property toll in the millions. Clouds will be sown with dry ice in Maine today in an effort to bring rain.

B-17 bombers will be used in the project, in which the Army, Navy, Weather Bureau and scientists of the General Electric Co. at Schenectady, N. Y., are cooperating.

Exact "target area" for the experiment will be selected by the Weather Bureau on the basis of meteorological conditions prevailing at take-off time this morning. The planes will take off from Schnectedy and drop dry ice into the clouds over Maine.

The Weather Bureau, which forecast considerable cloudiness and a high of about 70 here today, said Greater Washington hadn't had any sizeable rainfall since September 25. The only rain since then was a negligible .02 of an inch on October 17. Yesterday's fall was 1.2 inches.

At least 30 automobile accidents occurred during the late afternoon storm, and the police switchboard was flooded with calls.

Traffic lights along E st. nw. from North Capitol to 6th st. nw., along Sixth st. nw. from E st. to Rhode Island ave. and at Logan Circle, at 13th and Rhode Island ave., nw., were out of order for about an hour. The Potomac Electric Power Co. called seven emergency crews into service to help three regular crews repair some 20 home electric wires broken by falling tree branches.

Leaves Clog Sewers

Capital Transit reported streetcar and bus schedules were running 10 to 15 minutes behind because of traffic jams. Northeast and southeast Washington were most affected, a Capital Transit official said.

Intermittent power failure was said to be the cause of most streetcar delays. Traffic was jammed on Pennsylvania ave. One streetcar required almost an hour to run from 14th st. and Pennsylvania

Chevy Chase Man Released in Death of Wife

Montgomery County (Md.) police yesterday released Charles G. Perkins, 48, held since his wife was found dead in their Chevy Chase home Monday.

An autopsy performed yesterday in Baltimore failed to disclose any signs of sufficient internal or external injury on the 40-year-old woman. Chemical tests will be made of the vital organs, however, but results will not be available for about a week, according to Dr. Howard J. Maldeis, State chief medical examiner.

Mrs. Perkins had been dead three or four days, County Medical Examiner F. J. Broschart said. Police said Perkins was unable to tell a coherent story when they arrested him at the family home, 214 E. Underwood st.

Speaking Frankly

Byrnes Saw Wallace Damage

Paris Delegates Saw Speech as Meaning U. S. Policy Change

Message to Truman Asking Explanation Revealed by Writer

This is a serialization of James F. Byrnes' "Speaking Frankly"—six of fifteen chapters of the book published October 15, 1947, by Harper & Brothers. Copyright, 1947, by Donald S. Russell, trustee of the James F. Byrnes Foundation (A Charitable Trust).

By James F. Byrnes

MY hope for united support of our foreign policies received a serious setback when, on September 12, 1946, while I was in Paris, Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace made a speech at Madison Square Garden contending that the policy which had been approved by the President, and carried out by me, was too harsh to the Soviet Union and that a more conciliatory approach to them was necessary. I was not greatly surprised by the Secretary's action. Previously he had made a statement to the New York Times referring to our negotiations with Iceland for the use of the airfield we had built there. His statement was effectively used by the Communists in Iceland and it had obstructed the efforts of the State Department to secure an agreement important to the defense of this hemisphere.

In Paris, the importance of Mr. Wallace's Madison Square Garden speech was magnified in the minds of the representatives of foreign governments by newspaper reports quoting President Truman as saying at a press conference that he approved the Wallace speech in its entirety. This report stimulated widespread discussion among the governmental representatives attending the peace conference; it inspired inquiries to our representatives in various capitals. Foreign Ministers wondered whether in my various public statements I had correctly presented American policy.

Senator Vandenberg issued a statement saying that he wanted to cooperate with the Administration but he could cooperate with only one Secretary of State at a time.

Senator Connally declared that he supported the policy we had announced and had been following.

I concluded that I should not make a public statement; that the matter called for correction by the President.

Unhappy Position

OF COURSE, the position of our delegation was a very unhappy one. So far as possible, I tried to avoid delegates to the conference or the other Foreign Ministers because I wanted to avoid answering questions about whether the policy of our Government had changed. Our difficulties were increased rather than lessened when Mr. Wallace announced on the White House steps that he and the President had agreed that the Secretary of Commerce would make no more speeches until after the peace conference. To the delegates in Paris, this implied that the President had not objected to a later renewal of his attacks on our foreign policy.

While I had no direct communication with the White House, I learned of developments from the press and from several messages sent to me by Assistant Secretary of State Donald Russell. As a result, on September 18, I sent the President a message, reminding him that, on the advice of a physician, I had given him my resignation in April. By agreement, my resignation would take effect upon the completion of the treaties. My message further stated:

"If it is not possible for you, for any reason, to keep Mr. Wallace, as a member of your Cabinet, from speaking on foreign affairs, it would be a grave mistake from

Reds Riot As Ramadier Opens Fight

Paris Police Club Back 35,000 Who Attack Meeting of Anti-Communists

Paris (Wednesday), Oct. 29 (AP).—Unofficial estimates of the injured ranged from 40 to 300 early today after a bloody street battle in which Paris police beat back nearly 35,000 Communists who attempted unsuccessfully to break up an anticommunist meeting.

It was the first major political street battle in Paris since the bitter riots of 1936.

The Communists, responding to a call in their newspaper L'Humanite to break up the meeting in Wagram Hall in Place D'Etoile, sponsored by former Senator Gustave Gautherot, beseiged the meeting place and were routed only after they had broken through three police lines nad a wooden barricade.

The riotous street scene began a few hours after Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier opened his government's fight for life in the National Assembly chamber.

An official statement said eight policemen had been injured, although one foreign correspondent counted 10 being carried away from the fracas. Estimates in the Paris press ranged as high as 150 injured on each side.

More than 1500 persons attended the anti-Communist meeting, which ended early today.

When the Communists first drew up their forces before the fight, there were about 25,000 of them massed at one end of Avenue Wagram and 8000 at the other end.

Shouting "Les Soviets Partout" (We want Soviets everywhere), the crowd seized the broken bits of the barricade and used them as clubs, until police rallied along a line of mobile guard trucks stretched across the avenue. After the fighting, the scene looked like a battlefield, as both sides led away their injured.

Photographers Injured

Several photographers were injured in the melee.

The meeting to which the Communists objected had been called by M. Gautherot, a former French senator, "in memory of the states of eastern Europe." Gen. Charles De Gaulle's new French Peoples Party denied that the party was behind the memorial rally.

Gautherot announced at the

Kimmel Was Shot At Pearl Harbor, General Discloses

Pasadena, Calif., Oct. 28 (AP).—Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, former Navy commander at Pearl Harbor, was shot above the heart in the Japanese attack on Honolulu, December 7, 1941, Marine Brig. Gen. Omar T. Pfeiffer said last night.

General Pfeiffer, speaking at a Navy Day banquet, said he was standing with Kimmel when the admiral was hit.

"Fortunately the bullet, a .50-caliber machine-gun missile, was nearly spent when it struck the admiral and he was not seriously injured," said General Pfeiffer. He added that Kimmel never had disclosed his injury.

Admiral Kimmel was relieved of his command after an investigation of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Grain Conserving Goal To Be Reached Jan. 1, Luckman Forecasts

Judge Voids Grain Saving Plan

Distillery Ordered to Produce Whisky to Fulfill Contract

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 28 (AP).—Jefferson Circuit Judge W. Scott Miller ruled here today that President Truman's Citizens Food Committee does not have the authority to stop production of whisky to save grain to feed Europe.

The jurist issued an injunction here late today ordering Heaven Hill Distilleries, Bardstown, Ky., to resume operations and to fulfill its contract to supply 179 barrels of current production whisky a day to Heaven Hill Co., of Los Angeles, a sales concern.

The sales company had sued to force production and delivery on the ground that the Citizens Food Committee "is nothing more than a voluntary association without legal sanction or power" to stop whisky production. Its petition declared it was being forced to breach contracts with its customers due to failure of the distillery to keep its contract with the sales firm.

[The Citizens' Food Committee announced yesterday, the United Press said, that only an "isolated few" of the Nation's distillers have refused to comply with President Truman's request for a 60-day shutdown.

It said that distillers ignoring the holiday, which became effective Saturday midnight, represent less than one per cent of the industry's capacity. Committee members declined to name the firms.—Editor's note.]

In issuing the injunction, Judge Miller said: "I understand the national emergency has passed and this is the first time I ever heard of a European emergency impairing a contract over here. The only way a government, without law, can impair a contract is during a national emergency. Contracts are sacred things."

Judge Miller told attorneys, "If you can show me that the committee has any authority, I will set the ruling aside."

Earlier the distillery had asked Government aid in fighting the suit filed by the sales agency. John K. Skaggs, attorney for the distillery, said the two companies have no connections, either financial or through interlocking directorates. He explained that the Heaven Hill Co. bears the same name as the distillery to aid in making sales, since it has an exclusive contract to sell the distillery's product.

Spokesman Denies Intention to End Meatless, Eggless Days at That Time

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Achievement by January 1 of the food conservation goal of saving 100 million bushels of grain was predicted last night by Charles Luckman, chairman of President Truman's Citizens Food Committee.

He made the prediction in a news conference in New York after a talk to representatives of civic, veterans, fraternal and other organizations.

First dispatches by the Associated Press had quoted Luckman as predicting end of meatless Tuesdays and poultryless and eggless Thursdays by the end of the year. A spokesman for Luckman later denied, however, that the food drive leader had intended to give this impression. He added that Luckman refused to predict what conservation methods will be necessary after January 1.

Luckman said other conservation measures might be instituted by Congress but said his committee probably would wind up its immediate emergency task on or before the year's end.

Luckman's prediction came on the third Meatless Tuesday—a day that saw wholesale prices of one important meat, pork loins, go down to 50 to 51 cents a pound at Chicago. This was from 9 to 10 cents a pound below October 7—the first Meatless Tuesday, three weeks before.

Hog Prices Dropping

Prices of live hogs have been steadily dropping for the three weeks. In the first two days of this week the drop totaled $2 to $2.25 a hundred pounds.

District butchers are expected to feature pork in weekend sales this week as a result of a steady decline in price. The chairman of the wholesale food division of Merchants & Manufacturers Association, Sidney Kolker, said pork prices have been dropping gradually as a result of the start of the hog slaughtering season.

Other District wholesale and retail firms confirmed the drop and said they expected sales to climb as a result, particularly since lamb prices have been rising and beef prices have stood at the present high point.

Counteracting this, however, was wheat, which again went above $3 a bushel at Chicago. After wavering above and below $3 during the day, December futures closed just above that figure.

Other grains followed the same trend, corn up as much as 4fll cents a bushel, and oats as much as two cents. Soybeans went up the limit of eight cents.

The rise in grain prices was due to continued dry weather in the wnter wheat belt of Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and Nebraska. Government officials are frankly worried over next year's wheat harvest, due to the extreme dry weather conditions delaying planting and retarding germination of seed already in the ground.

500 Million Bushel Cut Seen

Some are already predicting that next year's crop may be as much as 500 million bushels below this year's record of 1.4 billion bushels. If these forecasts prove true, the drop would equal the total volume of wheat this country hopes to export this year to avoid starvation abroad.

At President Truman's Citizens Food Committee officials were busy on a program for grain conservation for farmers.

The committee received with satisfaction a report from the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Internal Revenue Department, indicating that the nation's distillers are observing the 60-day holiday in operations that went into effect Saturday night.

The report showed that more than 99 per cent of the industry's distilling capacity was idle.

Food conservation experts estimated that the food-conservation

Eaton Urges Interim Aid Action First

Sees House Accord On Stopgap Plan By December 1

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Swift action on interim aid to Europe, in advance of any formal consideration of the Marshall Plan, last night was urged by the man who will pilot both aid measures through the House.

House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) said emergency assistance will bog down in prolonged Marshall Plan discussion unless handled separately and swiftly by Congress.

"Our (House) plan is to get emergency aid through at once, and then go to work on the Marshall Plan," Eaton said.

"I don't know about the Senate, but the House can pass a stopgap bill by December 1. The Marshall Plan will take longer. I doubt we can clear it in the special session."

Will See Vandenberg

Eaton will confer here next Tuesday with Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) on joint House-Senate legislative strategy.

There is some Senate sentiment for considering at least the first year of Marshall Plan operations concurrently with stopgap aid. Eaton is expected to insist on separate handling, with simultaneous

U. S. Steel Cuts 17-Million Melon

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—U. S. Steel Corp. directors today marked one of the gloomiest days in financial history—October 29, 1929—with a present of some 17 million dollars in dividends to more than 168,000 stockholders.

The board authorized a special dividend of 75 cents a share. The last extra dividend, of $1 a share, was authorized on Tuesday 18 years ago. On that day the stock market broke wide open.

Government Buys Tobacco To Hold Price

$25,000,000 Worth Taken to Plug Hole Left by British Crisis

The Government yesterday moved into the tobacco market to stabilize prices by buying up an estimated 25 million dollars worth of flue-cured leaf which normally would have been sold to Britain.

The Agriculture Department said Commodity Credit Corporation buyers would begin "immediately" to bid in the large quantities of "cigarette-grade" tobacco left in warhouses when usually heavy British purchases were abruptly cut off last week for lack of dollars.

Some big tobacco markets had been scheduled to close yesterday before the announcement was made.

Supports Loan Program

The department is required by law to maintain tobacco prices at 90 per cent of parity—about 40 cents a pound on flue-cured leaf. Normally, the department exercises this function by extending crop-loans to tobacco farmers, who are permitted to repay the loan by surrendering their crop to the Government if market prices fall below 90 per cent of parity.

Officials said yesterday's decision was based on the belief that Government buying would "stimulate and stabilize" private bidding at tobacco auctions, and "reduce substantially" the amount of tobacco forfeited to the Government under the loan program.

Store It For Britain

Another major consideration was that direct buying will enable the Commodity Credit Corporation to make a better selection of tobacco grades that can eventually be resold to Britain and other foreign countries, than would be possible if the Government simply took whatever tobacco was surrendered under the loan program.

Officials conceded that the Government program was based in part on the belief that Britain would take tobacco when its present dollar crisis is relieved. The Commodity Credit Corporation

3 More Film Writers Cited for Contempt For Defying House Communist Quiz

Trumbo, Alvah Bessie And Maltz Refuse To Tell Affiliations

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Three more $100,000-a-year Hollywood writers, identified as card-carrying members of the Communist Party, were cited for contempt of Congress yesterday.

The House Committee on Un-American Activities, in addition sternly warned the writers' attorney, Robert E. Kenny, former attorney general of California, of the two years in jail and $10,000 fine penalties for conspiracy to commit contempt.

The three Hollywood writers who were cited for contempt when they dodged answering questions concerning their affiliations were:

1. Dalton Trumbo, 42, author of scripts for such movies as "Kitty Foyle," "A Guy Named Joe," "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo" and "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes." Trumbo was listed as "Dalt T" on his Communist Party card and had a record containing some 39 citations for Communist or Communist Front affiliations, according to committee investigators.

2. Albert Maltz, 39-year-old Brooklyn-born author of such scripts as "Destination Tokyo," "Moscow Strikes Back" and "Cloak and Dagger." Committee investigators put 58 citations into the record of Maltz to show his Communist and Communist Front affiliations. Maltz' Communist Party card is numbered 47196, it was testified.

3. Alvah Bessie, middleaged veteran of the International Brigade which fought for Loyalist Spain, and author of such scripts as "The Very Thought of You," "Hotel Berlin" and "Objective Burma." Bessie had 32 different citations in the record of his Communist and Communist Front activities introduced by the committee. Bessie's card was numbered 46836, the committee said.

The three followed the same pattern set the day before by John Howard Lawson, first Hollywood writer to be cited for contempt.

They all challenged the right of the committee to inquire into their Communist Party affiliations or any other affiliations and avoided even questions on whether or not they were members of the Screen Writers Guild.

Lawyer Sworn as Witness

Apparently inviting contempt citations which will put their cases into the courts and may test their theory that Congress cannot inquire into their affiliations, the three shouted some of the same phrases in responding to questions.

Trumbo yelled loudest of all. Hubub and confusion, however, were kept to a minimum by the presence of an extra detail of Capitol policemen patrolling the aisles of the crowded hearing room, and by the prompt and steadying pounding of the chairman's gavel.

Kenny was hailed before the committee and sworn in as a witness because of a press association news story which quoted him as saying that he was advising all his 19 clients who have been summoned as witnesses to invite prosecution by refusing to say whether or not they are members of the Communist Party.

The California attorney, vice president of the National Lawyers Guild, cited by Attorney General Francis Biddle as a Communist front, said he hates to disavow a newspaper story.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) read him the statute relating to conspiracy to commit contempt, and warned that Kenny might be in more serious trouble than any of his clients.

Kenny wound up by saying the United Press story was not quite accurate.

Permanent Ward for Drunks May Be Set Up by District

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Funds taken in by provisions of the new Alcoholic Clinic Law here may be used to set up a permanent ward where police can take intoxicated persons for a complete physical checkup.

Commissioner Guy Mason said the question would be discussed at 2:30 p. m. today at a meeting of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Alcoholic Clinics.

(The law provides that alcoholic clinics be financed by adding 10 per cent to the cost of liquor licenses here. District budget officials estimate the added fee will bring in about $75,000 per year. Mason said it might be possible to spend some of this money for the permanent ward.)

Mason's announcement came yesterday near the end of a stormy city officials' conference in the week-old system of keeping police "stretcher cases" overnight at Gallinger for complete physical check-up, even though they are apparently drunk.

Despite a volley of charges and countercharges, the meeting ended in a conciliatory vein with Police

Curbing 3d Army Extended War, Patton Memoirs Charge

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

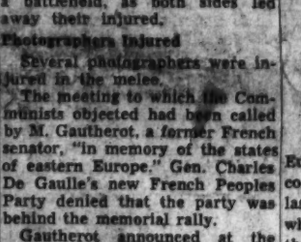
Gen. George S. Patton carried to his death the conviction that at least two chances to shorten World War II were lost by curbing too closely his great Third Army.

In his informal memoirs, published in part today by the Saturday Evening Post, Patton blamed these lost opportunities chiefly on the influence of British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery. But he piled no punches in criticizing Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his own immediate superior, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, when their decisions thwarted his own.

Neither the Army Department here nor the War Office in London would comment yesterday on the spectacular commander's thrusts at his superiors.

Patton believed, he confided to his journal during and after the war, that these major opportunities were tossed away:

1. If the Third Army had been permitted in early September, 1944, to continue driving east "we could have gone through and on across the Rhine in 10 days." Instead, fuel for its vehicles was diverted to supply the First Army, sent north to help Montgomery, and the Third Army was bogged down along the Meuse.



Patton Montgomery

Had he been permitted to drive on, Patton wrote, "this would have saved a great many thousand men." He felt the event to be the "biggest mistake" of the war.

2. If the Third Army had been given troops to capture Saarburg in early November, when it was within its grasp, Trier "probably" would have been captured.

"With Trier in our hands," concluded Patton, "Von Rundstedt's breakthrough (Battle of the Bulge) could not have occurred."

As for his own performance, which placed his Third Army high in American military annals, Patton was at the last complacent.

"I can say this," he wrote, "that throughout the campaign in Europe I know of no error I made except that of failing to send a combat command (of armor) to

U. S. Security Advisory Board Eases 'Gag Rule' Regulations

Confronted with the charge that the Government was attempting to invoke political censorship, the Administration yesterday backed down on major restrictive items in a proposed set of security regulations.

The security advisory board of the State, War, Navy Coordinating Committee disclosed that it had abandoned plans to classify as "confidential" any Government information which, if divulged, would cause "serious administrative embarrassment."

Another phrase chopped out of the confidential classification involved disclosure of information prejudicial to the interests or prestige of the Nation "or any governmental activity thereof."

The "top secret" classification likewise was further narrowed. After classifying such information as paramount to security, unauthorized disclosure of which would cause exceptionally grave damage to the Nation, the board eliminated a final phrase, "the prestige of the Nation or any governmental activity thereof."

The action of the board came after the American Society of Newspaper Editors and many columnists and newspaper editorials

Reds have infiltrated Hollywood were:

1. Roy M. Brewer, international representative of the Hollywood Alliance of Theatrical State Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators, told the committee "the Communist plan to control the motion picture industry as a whole . . . came dangerously close to success." Brewer said that plan was developed with the direct advice of a Soviet official, Michael E. Aisenstein, representative of Amtorg Corp., Soviet trading corporation.

2. Paul V. McNutt, attorney for the Motion Picture Association of America and the Association of Motion Picture Producers, demanded that Thomas prove what McNutt termed "vicious charges" that the motion picture industry had attempted to stifle the committee inquiry.

3. Thomas promised a full reply, and asked McNutt if he knew a Mr. Rosner who lived at the Shoreham Hotel. McNutt said Rosner had no connection with him or with the clients he represents. The Rosner reference was not amplified.

4. A galaxy of Hollywood luminaries led by Actor Humphrey Bogart and his wife, Lauren Bacall, filed a petition for re-dress of grievances "with the Clerk of the House, stating that the House Committee on Un-American Activities is persistently violating "the civil liberties of American citizens."

The flickerland personalities, members of the newly formed "Committee for the Preservation of the First Amendment to the Constitution," were accompanied to the clerk's office by Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.).

New Building Planned for Legislature

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—Plans for a two-million-dollar State office building at Annapolis were proposed today by the Maryland Legislative Council for consideration of the State Legislature.

The new four-story Colonial structure would house the overflow of legislative business from the historic Maryland State House, built in 1772 and now deemed "inadequate" as a capitol building in a modern State.

Deliberative sessions of the Legislature may eventually be moved from the State House to Senate and House chambers in the new building across the street on State Circle in Annapolis.

The council resolved to ask Attorney General Hall Hammond to include a two-million-dollar building fund as an amendment to the State Bond Act of 1947 and recommended that a special session of the General Assembly November 5 also name a building committee.

State Engineer John B. Funk told the council that estimated cost of the structure would be $1,222,000, and that the cost with legislative chambers added would be $450,000 more, or a total of $1,672,000.

The building, without House and Senate chambers, would provide for committee hearings and offices for the legislators. Funk outlined "a rough idea" for a structure including:

A main hearing room, seating 300, for joint committee hearings; four smaller committee hearing rooms; separate rooms for county delegations, ranging from one seating 50 spectators for Baltimore City's delegation to delegation rooms of the smaller counties for two delegates each.

The Governor's lay committee would provide historical advice on possible methods of restoring the State House to its original design, possibly by removing a wing which has been added to the eighteenth century structure.

Maryland's first State House, built in 1697, was destroyed by fire; the second, built in 1704, was torn down to make room for the present structure, in which the Annapolis Convention of 1786 assembled as a forerunner of the convention that framed the American Constitution.

Greenbelt Unit Approves Plan To Buy Town

A proposal to negotiate for mutual purchase of the Town of Greenbelt by its present occupants had been approved by the local Mutual Housing Association, composed of 900 families residing in the town.

Officials of the association said yesterday the group, in anticipation of Federal sale of the town in the near future, has agreed to engage a private home development firm to conduct the negotiations in an effort to assure sale of the homes to the present tenants.

At the same time, the membership approved a resolution calling for formation of a local mutual home ownership corporation to supplant the present association. The board of directors was authorized to take immediate steps to obtain a charter for the new corporation.

Present association members would be accepted as charter members of the mutual housing group on payment of a $10 membership fee within 15 days after its formation. As charter members they would be entitled to receive "such preferences and privileges as may be prescribed in the by-laws."

Action was taken after Sherrod East, president of the association, said the immediate steps on the part of residents are necessary to protect their interest in the sale of Greenbelt homes. He said mutual ownership of the town would result in "the greatest financial savings" to its occupants.

Bids Asked on Va. Dam

Grange Told Of Lee's Aid To Agriculture

Richmond, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—Robert E. Lee — who coveted "above all things" a farm but never owned one—nevertheless devised one of the "earliest and most complete" programs of agricultural education, Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, said here tonight.

The commander in chief of the Confederate Army at the end of the War Between the States was "quietly exploring possibilities" of purchasing a farm when he was offered the presidency of Washington College and with it "an opportunity which he felt he could not decline."

So, instead of retiring to the country, Lee set to work building up the college, which now as Washington and Lee University, bears his name, Dr. Gaines told 300 delegates to the Virginia State Grange at their banquet session tonight.

"Interpreting with largest educational statesmanship the needs of the new South, Lee brought to the Lexington college new programs in engineering, in journalism, in applied science," the W&L president said. He devised, though he was not to execute, courses in business administration and agriculture.

"The proposed course in agriculture, recommended in January, 1869, embraced 13 divisions, all that was then known and most that is now known in the field of agriculture."

Dr. Gaines' address was one of two highlights of the banquet. Later State Commissioner of Agriculture L. M. Walker, jr., was to present the "sweetheart of the Virginia State Grange."

Earlier in the day the 300 delegates had heard Paul D. Sanders, grange master, declare that—in event a retail sales tax should be adopted in Virginia—fram production items should be exempt.

If these production items—such as seeds, feeds, fertilizers, baby chicks—were included among taxable items under a retail sales levy it would mean double taxation for the farmer and "would destroy farming as a profitable pursuit," Sanders asserted.

Indictment Says Two Men Cashed Same Check Twice

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—Two camp parole men stood indicted by the Anne Arundel County grand jury today after police charged they cashed the same check twice.

Nelson Eades and Rudolph Pinkney were accused of for stealing a $99 check from a neighborhood grocer, and County Police Sergt. Brooke Meade said it came about this way:

Mrs. Emma Eades, Nelson's mother, indorsed a County Welfare Board check last May 15. Eades and Pinkney took it to I. Finklestein's grocery down the street from their home. Finklestein cashed it. Eades and Pinkney left the store with the money said was lifted from the top of —and the check, which Meade Finklestein's cash register.

They came to Annapolis and cashed the same check in another store. They tried the same stunt with another check, police charged, but aroused suspicion.

Danish Reds Trail In Parliament Vote

Copenhagen, Denmark, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Returns from 33 of 117 districts in today's general election showed that the Communists had lost 50 per cent of the votes they got in 1945. The election is for members of the lower House of Parliament.

U. S. Security Advisory Board Eases 'Gag Rule' Regulations

denounced the proposed regulations as a "gag rule."

They pointed out that the regulations could be used to cover up Administration errors and inefficiency.

Criticism has been leveled at the Administration because the new rules on classified information henceforth wil lapply to all Federal departments and agencies, in addition to the recognized "sensitive" departments including State, Army, Navy, Air Force and the Atomic Energy Commission.

It has been pointed out, for example, that the Veterans Administration, which is not apt to be handling top secret, secret or confidential information insofar as national security is concerned, already has applied the Security Advisory Board's original set of rules to its employes.

Michael J. McDermott, special assistant to Secretary of State Marshall, in making public the revised definitions, called the move "a loosening up."

He declined to make public the rest of the Security Board's recommendations, however.

One of the most important of the latter is understood to be that a security officer hereafter shall be installed in each department and agency, charged with protecting classified information.

President Truman directed this standardization in an executive order of last March, applying the "loyalty" test to all Federal employes.

The three-man Security Advisory Board, headed by Hamilton Robinson of the State Department made original recommendations to a coordinating committee representing State, Army, Navy and Air Force. They were approved. Yesterday the board reconsidered and made the current eliminations.

Eventually, as revised, the classifications will be proclaimed by the President in an executive order.

The board said that wherever "security protetcion . . . for the national welfare" demands it, official information will be given one of these four classifications:

"Top secret. Information, the security aspect of which is paramount, and the unauthorized disclosure of which would cause exceptionally grave danger to the Nation." (Before the amendment, it had read . . . "Unauthorized disclosure of which would cause exceptionally grave danger to the prestige of the Nation or any Government activity thereof)."

"Secret. Information, the unauthorized disclosure of which would endanger national security, or would cause serious injury to the interest of prestige of the Nation, or would be of great advantage to a foreign nation."

Va. Plane Crash Victims to Get Grave Marker

A granite monument will be placed Saturday over the mass graves of eight persons buried at Union Cemetery, Leesburg, Va., who lost their lives in the crash of a Capital Airliner in the Blue Ridge Mountains June 13. The stone is being erected by the airline, but no ceremony is planned.

The monumetn is 4 feet high, 4½ fet wide and 4 inches thick. On the polished face are inscribed the names of the eight persons whose bodies remained unidentified.

Fifty persons were killed—including an 18-month-old girl—when the giant DC-4 airliner plummeted into the fog-shrouded Blue Ridge, about 10 miles from Purcellville, Va.

100 Families Flee As Flood Hits Galax Again

Galax, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—A flash flood early today forced about 100 families to evacuate their homes in this valley community which has not quite recovered from a more serious flood October 17.

There were no casualties reported.

Chestnut Creek overflower after what officials described as a "very heavy rain" between 3 and 4 a. m. today making the city's water supply inoperative and closing four furniture plants employing about 1000 persons. The factories were closed because of the unavailability of water and not because of any damage to the plants.

Damage was described as "considerable," but no estimates were available immediately. Personal losses on October 17 were estimated at $250,000.

Mob Wounds Miss. Negro in Lynch Attempt

Aberdeen, Miss., Oct. 28 (AP).—Police Chief John Barret reported today "a mob of about 20 white men" tried to lynch a Negro Sunday night, but succeeded only in wounding him.

Barret said the Negro apparently is the "wrong man," and had nothing to do with an attempted attack upon a white woman.

"The mob took him out," Barret said, "and left him wounded. They thought they had killed him, I believe. He's in a hospital here. I think he will recover."

Following the rape attempt Saturday night, bloodhounds led a posse to the home of John Lloyd, 43, a farm worker. He was released later because of "lack of evidence."

Lloyd returned home and on Sunday night was seized there, beaten and shot twice—once in the spine and once in the arm.

"The Negro can't identify any of the mob who shot him. Everything here is quiet. It has all blown over. There was a lot of hard feeling Sunday. But everything is under control," Barret said.

Woodward, Okla., Fire Destroys 4 Buildings

Woodward, Okla., Oct. 28 (AP).—Fire accompanied by two heavy explosions destroyed four business buildings in this northwestern Oklahoma town of 5500 today and threatened the entire business district before it finally was brought under control.

Insurance men estimated the damage at $250,000 to $300,000. So far as could be learned, no lives were lost, but several persons were injured when one explosion hurled debris into Woodward's main street.

All the buildings destroyed today had been repaired after suffering damage in the April 9 tornado which swept into Woodward from the Texas panhandle, killing 156 and injuring more than 1000 in the two States. Of that total, 106 deaths occurred in the Woodward area and much of the town was wiped out.

Cholera Kills 408 More; U. S. Vaccine Arrives

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—The cholera plague killed 408 more persons during the past 24 hours and 880 new cases were reported, the health ministry announced tonight.

The ministry said 1,200,000 units of cholera vaccine arrived today from the United States through the United Nations International Health Institute and that two million more units were expected momentarily from Shanghai.

Middie Discharged In Grid Ticket Deal

Irregularities In Handling Penn Ducats Charged

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—A Naval Academy spokesman announced tonight Midshipman Frederick W. Lauer, jr., Wilmette, Ill., had been discharged chiefly for "irregularities in the handling of tickets for the Penn-Navy game of last weekend."

The spokesman said:

"Careful investigation by the Naval Academy authorities indicated that Mr. Lauer was the only midshipman who stood to profit by the transaction and who was involved in major irregularities."

Civilian Apprehended

Lauer, a first classman or senior, was confined at the academy after a man who identified himself as Harry Rubin of Philadelphia, was apprehended October 15 at the main gate carrying 400 tickets to the Penn-game, the spokesman said.

He added:

"Mr. Lauer obtained the tickets from individual midshipmen of the junior classes who turned over their applications to him in good faith.

"The midshipmen were entitled to purchase a maximum of four tickets for the Penn-Navy game if they so applied."

The spokesmen said Rubin "of his own free will" stated another Philadelphian asked me to come down to the United States Naval Academy to pick up a bundle from Midshipman Lauer.'"

Lauer entered the Naval Academy August 4 1944 and had served previously in the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps at Notre Dame.

No rule specifically prohibits a midshipman from reselling tickets. Application forms state, however, "a member will be held accountable for tickets falling into the hands of speculators."

Midshipmen are members of the Navy Athletic Association, which supervises the sale of tickets to sports events.

In South

Nurse Group Is Removing Racial Bars

New York, Oct. 28.—Southern branches of the American Nurses Association are taking steps to remove discriminatory barriers against Negro nurses, Miss Alma Vessells, executive secretary of the National Association of Colored Graduate Nurses here said today.

Miss Vessells estimated that more than 4500 Negro nurses in the South, alone have been denied professional status because they could not obtain membership in the American Nurses Association. Memberships are controlled by constituent State and district units. Prior to 1942, she said, exclusion of Negroes was a uniform practice throughout the South.

The Kentucky State Association of Registered Nurses, one of 18 ANA constituents which formerly excluded Negroes, has notified Miss Vessells that its convention has voted a reversal of policy in this respect. The Florida association took the lead in 1942 and was followed more recently by those of Delaware, Maryland and Tennessee. In Missouri, District 2, embracing St. Louis, has paced the State association with similar action.

Last month, she said, at the Chicago convention of the House of Delegates, the Tennessee association was represented by a Negro.

2 More Facing Gaming Quiz In Arlington

Only two more witnesses face interrogation by an Arlington grand jury investigating a possible tieup between county police and local gambling interests.

Police Chief Harry Woodyard and Detective Chief Capt. Hugh Jones will be called before the jury today at 10 a. m. when it reconvenes in the Arlington County courthouse.

In its four days of hearings, the grand jury has thus far heard the total of 35 witnesses. The grand jury investigation was said to be the longest within memory of county officials.

Heard yesterday were five witnesses: Police Identification Officer Walter Bell, F. Mitchells Lewis, a plumber's assistant of 1762 N. Troy st.; Detective Sergt. Dudley Rector, Detective Louis Elliott and Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence Douglas. Douglas was before the grand jury nearly three hours.

Evidence which touched off the grand jury probe taken from the home of convicted gambler Russell Scheele, 2716 N. 19th st., was presented to the grand jury yesterday. Included were cash and checks totaling more than $2500 and a quantity of numbers and horse race slips.

Meantime, the Arlington County Ministerial Association in a meeting at the Arlington YMCA, planned to set up its own committee to determine whether gamblers and other "criminal elements" are "spilling over into the county" from Washington.

The group asked its president, the Rev. Joseph Johnston, pastor of the Arlington Methodist Church, to appoint the sutdy committee.

The grand jury, which is expected to wind up its witness hearings today, may return with any one of three decisions: (1) it may bring in an indictment or indictments, (2) it may bring in a complaint asking for ouster proceedings against county officials alleged to be involved, or (3) it may come back with a report of having found no evidence on which to make any charge.

Russian Midget Actors Weep for 'Giant' Director

Miami, Fla., Oct. 28 (U.P.).—The little people of the once-famed Royal Russian Midget Co. laid to rest their "giant" friend today.

Tears dribbled down the doll-like cheeks as the quartet of actors, only ones left of the original group of six, stood on tiptoe for a final farewell to the 6-foot 10-inch figure that lay in the casket. He fell dead yesterday.

In the 38 years they had lived and worked under his guidance, the midgets always had called the Muscovite "teacher." And when he brought them to this country and to theatrical fame, he changed his unpronounceable Russian name to Joseph Peter Teacher, at their insistence.

In 1941, the six little Russians retired from the stage to live in a small white house in Miami. Then one of their number married a normal-sized man. Last year another trouper died.

U. S. Employe Held in $2000 In Abortion

A National Bureau of Standards physicist yesterday was charged with abortion and released on $2000 bond for hearing November 12.

Called to police headquarters for questioning, Harold De Freest Miller, 46, of 1604 Q st. nw., the physicist, was held for performing an abortion on Agnes Marie Blume, 26, of 821 Emerson st. nw.

Miss Blume, a receptionist at the Remington Rand, Inc., was admitted to Emergency Hospital at 3 a. m. last Thursday and died at 8 a. m. Sunday. Police were not notified of the case until her death and said she had told hospital attendants the abortion was performed in Baltimore.

Authorities charge the illegal operation was performed at Miller's apartment and that a private physician was called in Thursday when her position became worse. Her death was due to the illegal operation, Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy announced following an autopsy. Date for a coroner's inquest has not yet been set.

Miller was granted the freedom ance yesterday by U. S. Commissioner Needham C. Turnage in order to obtain legal counsel. He is divorced and has no children, police said.

Episcopalian, Presbyterian Union Debated

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Debate flared yesterday on a proposal to unite the Episcopalians and Presbyterians.

The occasion was the first open meeting of the Episcopal Commission on Approaches to Unity, held at the Washington Cathedral's college of preachers. It was marked by lengthy discussion on Episcopal recognition of the equality of Presbyterian ordination vows, the chief "stumbling block" in the proposed plan.

Episcopal-Presbyterian union is timely, the Rev. Albert J. M. Wilson, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Greenwich, Conn., said. He contended there would be general agreement between the two church bodies but reminded that "it is in the doctrine of the ministry that we shall find debate, discussion and difference."

The Rev. Francis John Moore, rector of the Church of the Advent, Cincinnati, Ohio, said Episcopalians should be prepared to recognize the equality of Presbyterian ordination vows or "the Commission should pack up and go home."

Opposing union with the Presbyterians but favoring closer Episcopal cooperation with Eastern Orthodox churches were the Rev. Francis J. Bloodgood, canon of the Episcopal Cathedral at Milwaukee, Wis., and other repreesntatives of the American Church Union, a "high" Episcopal church organization. John Lord O'Brian of Washington, former United States Solicitor General, presided at the sessions, slated to continue today and tomorrow. The Right Rev. Robert E. L. Strider, Bishop of West Virginia, is Unity Commission chairman, and Dr. A. C. Zabriskie, dean Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, secretary.

Need of Church Services to Aid Students Cited

Dr. Lawrence D. Folkemer, head of George Washington University's religious department, last night challenged churches to meet their opportunities and responsibilities in ministering to students.

The church should be just as alive and alert in its student ministry as it was in ministering to service personnel, said Dr. Folkemer, reminding that campuses are now filled with former servicemen.

Dr. Folkemer addressed the fall dinner of the Christian (Disciples of Christ) Church Council of Metropolitan Washington at Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park Rd. nw. He said there are now eight clubs ministering to the spiritual needs of Catholic, Jewish andProtestant students at George Washington University. Dr. William J. Lineback, executive director of the Christian Church Council, presided at the dinner.

Parley Bid Declined

Senate Group Set to Resume Hughes Probe

By the United Press

Round two of the Senate investigation into movie-maker Howard Hughes' war plane contracts is scheduled tentatively to open here Monday with Hughes and his free-spending press agent, John Meyer, high up on the list of witnesses.

Sources close to the Senate war investigating committee said members of the group and their staff have been holding daily secret sessions and have questioned at least two new witnesses in preparation for the new hearings.

The committee's original hearing was terminated suddenly on August 11, after two weeks of wrangling testimony on Hughes' 40-million-dollar wartime aircraft contracts.

It was reported that when the new hearing begins, the committee will investigate charges that at least one high-ranking army procurement officer profited handsomely from his job.

Undersea Oil Deal Critics Map Plan to Outlaw Wells

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

New moves were hinted yesterday to outlaw the Krug-Clark deal for private wells to draw oil from the California sea bottoms.

Critics of the deal said they might ask for an injunction against Interior Secretary Julius A. (Cap) Krug and Attorney General Tom C. Clark.

The Government owns the undersea oil, according to a Supreme Court decision last June 23 and a decree signed day before yesterday.

Gave Up U. S. Claim

Last July Krug and Clark made a deal with California's attorney general, Fred M. Howser, to let the private wells—which had been licensed by the State—go on drawing oil from the Government's pools. They also agreed to new wells being drilled, and gave up the Government's claim to three bays. These deals were filed as stipulations with the Supreme Court.

Critics told the court Krug and Clark had no power to give away the Government's rights and asked the court to hold the deals void. The court did not do so, but on Monday it struck both stipulations out of its record.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman at once said the stipulations were in full force and effect just the same.

Agrees With Perlman

The Attorney General told The Washington Post last night that he fully concurred with Perlman on this point.

Clark said he regarded the stipulations as an interim arrangement to keep up the production of oil during the settling of the lawsuit over who owned the sea bottom.

Asked upon what authority he and Krug signed the arrangement, Clark said the attorney general has general authority to preserve and protect the property of the United States. He said the deal was made upon the joint responsibility of himself and the Secretary of Interior, and that they held many conferences over the terms before they signed the papers that were filed in the Supreme Court.

Littell Demurs

Former Assistant Attorney General Norman M. Littell—whose brief attacking the stipulations was accepted by the Supreme Court at the time it threw out the stpulations—did not agree that Clark was proecting any Government interest.

"This agreement," said Littell in a statement, "constitutes what is probably the most naive, the most incompetent and the most inadequate operating agreement, over the most vast area of oil resources, of any operating agreement in the history of the oil industry . . . No practical oil man can find here any of the protective provisions of the usual operating agreement in an oil field. Patently, the interests of the people of the United States are not adequately protected."

Littell accused the solicitor general of defying the Supreme Court and chided Clark for saying the position of the Government continues as it has.

"These shocking statements," Littell said after quoting Clark and Perlman, "fairly pose a question as to whether or not anyone is trying to 'throw this case'—the biggest case in the history of the Federal courts, and having more at issue in terms of oil resources upon which the National security is dependent than any legal controversy in the history of the country."

Sees Further Fight

After declaring the Supreme Court went out of its way to use scathing language, in washing its hands of the deal, Littell said:

"It is possible that further legal proceedings of an appropriate character may yet be necessary to enjoin the Attorney General from sanctioning the continuous exploitation of the tidelands, merely to demonstrate that a stipulation stricken from a court proceeding is not a stipulation at all. Must the solicitor general be taught the law in this hard way—and the attorney geenral?"

President Roosevelt appointed Littell to the Justice Department in 1939 and fired him three years ago after he quarreled with former Attorney General Francis Biddle. Littell at the time accused Biddle of giving discriminatory breaks to clients of Thomas E. (Tommy the Cork) Corcoran.

Meanhwile, it was learned at the Interior Department that the Krug-Clark deal is not in full force and effect that way it was made, the terms having been relaxed by further deals between Interior officials and California State officials.

Harry M. Edelstein, assistant solicitor of the department, said some changes had been made to accomplish smooth operation.

Jury Convicts D. C. Painter in Attack on Boys

A Municipal Court jury last night convicted a 57 year-old housepainter of two charges of indecent assault on 11-year-old boys. The jury deliberated 25 minutes.

Judge George D. Neilson on request of defense counsel delayed sentencing of James G. Mattice, 714 12th st. s.e. until November 6. The judge thanked the jury for "the great service they had rendered the District of Columbia," and said he completed agreed with their decision.

Mattice was accused of inviting the two young boys to help him paint a garage in the rear of 3535 Holmead pl. nw. last June. After they had painted for a while Mattice invited the boys into the garage allegedly for the purpose of paying them.

Once inside, the boys said that Mattice wired the door shut and tried to assault them.

Eisler Is Refused Hall for Address

Newark, N. J., Oct. 28 (U.P.)—Gerhard Eisler, who has been described as the top Communist agent in the United States, today changed the place of his scheduled Thursday night address here to Newark Opera House when the management of another hall canceled the reservation. Demonstrators prevented Eisler from speaking at a meeting at Trenton Sunday night.

The opera house here is located directly across from the First Precinct police station.

Lawyer Guilty of Theft

Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 28 (AP).—Harry Lieb, a Newark attorney, was convicted today by a Union County jury on two charges of stealing cigars from a stand in the county courthouse operated by a blind man.

As the jury of eight women and four men announced its verdict, the 38-year-old lawyer, married and the father of two children, broke down and wept. His weeping yesterday had interrupted the trial for 10 minutes. Sentence was deferred two weeks.

31-Day Drought in D. C. Area Ended by Heavy Downpour

ave. nw. to Wisconsin ave. and M st. nw.

A flooded streetcar line pit at Florida ave. and Eckington st. nw., where cars change from under to overhead power lines, and a streetcar-auto accident at Florida ave. and 6th st. ne. held up Mount Rainier line cars.

The District Sewer Department reported at least 25 sewers were clogged by rainswept leaves.

A stopped-up drain pipe caused the basement of an office building at 1773 Massachusetts ave. nw. to flood.

PEPCO reported several wires to private homes down in College Park, Md.; Central ave. and Vista pl. ne., the 1600 block U st. se. and the 7400 block Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, Md.

Electricity over most of northern Virginia was temporarily disconnected during part of the storm yesterday.

A fault in an aerial control cable connecting the Virginia Electric Power Co. plant with the electricity transmission system caused the disconnection. R. C. Hopkins, district manager, estimated that the disturbance lasted for a maximum of 45 minutes. Affected were parts of Alexandria, the area south of Alexandria as far as Occoquan, parts of Arlington County, Falls Church and all of Fairfax County, and points west of Leesburg.

Rumors that squirrels biting at cable wires in the Leesburg area might have caused the cable fault will be checked by VEPCO official, who plan a careful inspection of the affected cable connection.

Maryland State Forester H. C. Buckingham reported last night that rains throughout the State had put a damper on the outbreak of forest fires that have plagued the State, and West Virginia State Forester Wilson Sayers reported all fires in that State either out or under control.

In Virginia's Dismal Swamp area, which was still without rain, nearly 80 men were still fighting peat fires which State Forester George Dean said late yesterday might break into flames again and bring worse damage in the event of high winds.

Meanwhile authorities in several States were investigating the origin of fires believed of incendiary origin.

Garrett County State's Attorney Walter Dawson said a man held in jail at Oakland, Md., had admitted setting four fires in the Bloomington area of the county, including one which destroyed a home.

Three fires on the edge of South Mountain, Washington County, were termed the work of incendiaries by Buckingham.

In Pennsylvania, a 12-year-old boy was held at Johnstown on a charge of setting a forest fire, and Scranton police had arrested a 29-year-old Brooklyn, N. Y., man accused of setting five forest fires.

County agents reported that yesterday's rainfall, while not enough to restore springs and wells gone dry, was probably sufficient to bring up lagging grasses and small grains.

County Agent J. E. Beard at Fairfax, Va., said the rains "had broken what appeared to be a drought" and was sufficient to improve conditions.

County Agent William H. Cockerill at Leesburg, Va., said the rain in that area "has been a blessing. While it will take considerable more to bring up the wells and springs it is enough to tide us over on small grains and grasses."

At Rockville, Md., County Agent O. W. Anderson reported the rainfall sufficient "to wet the ground down to where the wheat is. What we really need," he said, "is a week of rain like this to help the pasture grasses and wells, but we are thankful for this."

The Weather Bureau here reported that the country's winter wheat belt—which includes the Texas Panhandle, Nebraska and Colorado—had no rain yesterday, but had some rainfall several days ago.

Democrats Pick Parley Site Today

Philadelphia, San Francisco in Running; McGrath's Election Also Is on Schedule

The Democrats will get to work selecting a 1948 party convention site today and it looks like Philadelphia. But San Francisco will be bidding for it, too.

The Democratic National Committee, facing other decisions for the presidential campaign year, will gather here for two sessions today. Besides picking a convention site, it will:

1. Select a convention date, expected to be in early July.

2. Elect Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island to succeed Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan as committee chairman. Hannegan, chairman since January, 1944, is giving up the committee post because of ill health.

3. Consider a recommendation of a subcommittee headed by Frank M. Hale, Indiana committeeman, to increase the convention delegate bonus for States which went Democratic in the last presidential election. Final approval of the delegate apportionment will be up to the convention itself. The 1944 convention had 1176 delegatese.

4. Act on resolutions praising the Administration of President Truman, who is expected to be the party's presidential nominee next year.

Philadelphia's bid for the Democratic convention—it already has won the Republican convention for the week starting June 21—will be presented by a group of 100 headed by Mayor Bernard Samuel, a Republican. Their offer will be the same as that made for the Republican meeting—$200,000, plus $50,000 for entertainment expenses and a free auditorium.

San Francisco interests will be handled by Mrs. Edward Heller, California national committeewoman.

3 Teachers Here Win Radio Awards

Three Washington teachers won first awards for their plans for use of radio in classrooms submitted to the School Broadcast Conference now in session in Chicago, Mrs. Hazel Kenyon Markel, WTOP Director of Education and Community Service, reported last night from Chicago.

All three deevloped their plans as members of Mrs. Markel's WTOP Workshop classes at Wilson and Miner Teachers Colleges.

The teachers are Miss Elizabeth L. Chase, 439 Butternut st. nw., of Calvin Coolidge School; Miss Charlotte Wischhusen, 811 Butternut st. nw., of Whittier Grade School, and Miss Beatrice L. Walker, 504 T st. nw., of Monroe elementary school.

No False Alarms

Halloween Pranksters Are Warned

Fire Chief Clement Murphy yesterday warned Halloween pranksters that false alarms aren't much of a joke.

"False alarms of fire imperil the lives of firemen and citizens needlessly," he said.

"Many Halloween celebrations in the past have been transformed into tragedies, due to carelessness with fire. He said: "Careless smoking and careless use of matches are particularly serious fire causes during Halloween parties."

Chief Murphy also warned against the use of inflammable decorations in restaurants, night clubs and other places where special celebrations are planned. Make sure that all exits are unobstructed and clearly marked, he said.

Tax Privileges Held Little Aid To Small Firms

The Treasury Department's division of tax research said yesterday that small business firms would profit more by a good sound, overall tax system than from laws giving them special tax privileges.

In a report on "Taxation of Small Business," the Treasury's experts said that, after all, the prosperity of all business firms, large and small, depends to a great extent upon the prosperity of the whole national economy.

"Although it may be desirable to give consideration to measures designed specifically for small business," the report said, "the most important contribution the tax system can make to the healthy growth of small business . . . is through general tax revisions that improve the equity of the system."

The report discussed in detail various suggestions to ease the tax burden on small business. The experts made no specific recommendations but pointed out the effect these proposals would have on the Government's financial system.

Dealer Charged With Selling Beer To Minor Here

Sale of two cans of beer to a minor was charged yesterday at a hearing before the Alcohol Beverage Control Board.

Policeman Jesse F. Hasty of the Twelve Precinct told the board he saw James Carter, 16, of 216 T st. n.e., come out of the Terminal Liquor Store, 1912 4th st. n.e., carrying a package. On investigation, the officer said, he found that the package contained two cans of beer.

The youth claimed someone had purchased the beer for him but he was unable to identity the person, ABC attaches said.

Lewis Hamburger, proprietor of the store, testified he was not in the store the night the alleged purchase was made. His attroney, F. Joseph Donohue, entered a plea of nole contendere.

The board took the case under advisement.

World Cub Fliers Reach Aleutians

Adak, Alaska, Oct. 29 (AP).—Pilots Clifford Evans of Washington, D. C., and George Truman of Los Angeles, landed at Shemya at 5:35 p. m. State May Amend Montgomery Tax

Proposed Tax Revision for Baltimore May Set Pattern for Large Counties

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—Whatever broadened taxing power the Legislature gives to Baltimore City may be sought by Montgomery County and other large counties, the legislative council learned today.

While Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., and Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, jr., of Baltimore conferred in Annapolis on a bill to satisfy the city's revenue needs, legislators gathered in Baltimore let it be known they wanted to see the measure and determine what the big counties might want to do.

Lane called a special session for November 5 to pass a tax bill for Baltimore.

A lengthy discussion on the propriety of "inviting" counties to seek broadened tax powers just now was precipitated after Senate President Joseph H. Byrnes advised the council that Governor Lane has no objection to counties asking for the same revenue privileges as Baltimore City.

Sales Tax Battle Coming

Byrnes said he understood that Baltimore County, Montgomery County and possibly Allegany County might want to avail themselves of the privilege.

Both Byrnes and Senate Majority Leader Harold Sothoron (D., Prince Georges) were emphatic that no "invitation" was intended but that if counties found themselves in financial troubles they should be allowed to ask for means of solving their problems.

Although the special session was called mainly to help Baltimore, from 30 to 40 "emergency" measures were before the council today, and there was new evidence that a battle over the State's 2-percent sales tax was on its way.

News of the "emergency" bills before the council were of a local nature and noncontroversial.

Among general matters, however, were proposals for a Maryland tobacco authority and a two-million-dollar legislative office building.

Delegate Pollack (D., Balto 4th) said in a statement he had 45 House votes lined up for repeal of the sales tax, which he has opposed from the start.

Bookies License Proposed

Pollack said that as an alternative he would offer a program similar in part to one placed recently before the council by Attorney Hyman Pressman of Baltimore. Among other things, Pollack advocates a law to license bookmakers.

The administration has been reported to be considering revision of the sales levy—probably by increasing the nine-cent exemption to around 14 cents and by giving the Board of Public Works authority to raise or lower the exemption as conditions seem to permit.

Other measures approved by the council with favorable reports included:

To regulate dumps in Montgomery County and to increase the tax rate in Laytonsville, Md.

The council adopted unfavorable reports on proposals to change the tax year of Berwyn Heights in Prince Georges County and to authorize the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission to set up a 5 million dollar storm drainage system.

Chile Mines Normal

Iquique, Chile, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Normal operations were resumed today in the nitrate fields of northern Chile, disrupted last week by a series of "political" strikes. More than 170 communist union leaders have been arrested.

U.S. Asks Explanation of Arrest

Budapest, Oct. 28 (AP).—The American Legation demanded tonight that the Hungarian Ministry of Foreign Affairs disclose specifically the police charges against Miss Elizabeth Pallos, 31-year-old American citizen arrested at her apartment late last night and held incommunicado.

Miss Pallos, a secretary here for the Associated Press, is a former secretary to the headquarters commandant of the United States Military Mission in Hungary.

She was the second American citizen to be arrested here within two months. Stephen Thuransky, 54, a businessman, was seized by police for alleged anti-Communist expressions but was rescued when he fell into an American car and was driven off by an American official.

The American Legation asked that the Foreign Ministry state a definite time and place at which legation officials could interview Miss Pallos.

A ministry representative said, "Maybe she will be released within a few days."

The note was delivered about five hours after the Hungarian Foreign Ministry officially informed the legation of the arrest, but did not state the charges. It said that at the time of arrest she was in possession of documents which said she was "supposed to be an American citizen."

Fred Godsey, El Paso, Tex., American Vice Consul here, said "there is no question whatever of Miss Pallos' citizenship." She was born in Pittsburgh while her father, Francis Pallos, 73, was serving there in the Hungarian Consulate.

Her father was in the Hungarian diplomatic service in the United States from 1913 until his retirement in 1936. His daughter came to Budapest when he became ill.

Marine Sets Date

Vandegrift, Clay Plan Retirement

Clay Vandegrift

Marine Corps Commandant Gen. A. A. Vandegrift and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States commander in Germany, announced yesterday they would retire early next year.

Vandegrift said he asked in a letter to Navy Secretary Sullivan that he be retired January 1. He said he expected his request would be granted.

Clay told a news conference in Berlin, according to the Associated Press, that he did not intend to leave "for quite a few months" and that he would continue for "a substantial time" as military governor of the American zone in Germany.

The Department of the Army had not received his request for retirement last night. A spokesman said the department could not comment until the request reached here.

Vandegrift, appoited Marine Corps commandant in 1944, is the first four-star general in Marine Corps history. He said he had been considering retirement, which would conclude four years in his present post, for the last year. He said he expected to make his home at Lynchburg, Va., where he recently bought a home.

The tall, spare commandant first gained Nation-wide fame when he led the First Marine Division in its attack on Guadalcanal in August, 1942, launching the island-mopping campaign against Japan. He later commanded the First Marine Amphibious Corps in the conquest of Bougainville, and was awarded the Medal of Honor and the Navy Cross for the Guadalcanal operation.

A veteran of 33 years in the Army, Clay was assigned to military government early in World War II and has served with distinction in German since its occupation. He said his retirement would be "full and complete so I can go catfishing in Georgia."

The retirements of Clay and Vandegrift are the latest in a long list beginning with Gen. George C. Marshall, now Secretary of State; Admiral Ernest King, wartime Chief of Naval Operations, and Gen. H. H. Arnold, who commanded the Army Air Forces during the war. Others who have announced their impending retirements are Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff, who has accepted the presidency of Columbia University and doff his uniform early next year, and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, present Chief of Naval Operations, who commanded the Pacific Fleet during hostilities.

Maniu Trial Starts Today

Bucharest, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Iuliu Maniu, 74, chief of the Romanian National Peasant Party, and more than 15 other opposition leaders go on trial tomorrow for high treason.

AMG Plans Anti-Red Propaganda

Berlin, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—American Military Government officers will open a counterattack against Communist propaganda and the Cominform in Germany within the next week as part of a new American anti-Communist campaign throughout the world, informed sources said today.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay confirmed the opening of a counterpropaganda campaign in a press conference and indicated that Communist sympathizers would be purged in the American zone.

This followed reports from reliable Allied sources that the Russians have started a quiet but steady purge of all non-Communist German public officials in their zone.

Col. Gordon E. Textor, head of AMG's information control division, called a meeting of his department chiefs shortly before noon today and told them the orders were to "take off the gloves and start fighting."

Textor said the American campaign would be directed through the military government newspaper, Neue Zeitung, three official magazines and five American-controlled radio stations in Berlin, Bremen, Frankfurt, Stuttgart and Munich.

HAIR TREATMENTS

—do you want these facts about them?

E. W. PLASTERER, Trichologist

METHODS?
Hair & Scalp Clinic treatments are locally applied and consist of everything that has been proven beneficial in the treatment of hair and scalp problems. Cleansing and germicidal agents, electrotherapy, including Ultra Violet ray; physical and mechanical massage. The very methods used and recommended by foremost authorities. Each treatment takes 35 to 45 minutes and leaves your scalp feeling brisk, clean and alive.

RESULTS?
Each client accepted for treatment sees visible results within 5 treatments. New, replacement hairs are visible within 10 treatments. Thicker, healthier hair—stronger hair is evident within a few months. Dandruff, too dry or oily hair, and other annoying scalp conditions respond immediately to Hair & Scalp Clinic treatments. No one is ever accepted if results are not certain.

COST?
Any man or woman can afford Hair & Scalp Clinic treatments. Fees are reasonable and vary slightly with each case, but can be paid as treatments are taken. The average cost to put your scalp in healthy condition, save and thicken your hair and overcome your scalp problems is $110.00. (Average of 2,000 cases.) Based on the average life span, this is less than 25c per month to save your hair!

WHERE?
Hair & Scalp Clinic specialists are outstanding because of their past record of achievement. They administer the most effective fastest acting methods, developed in their own laboratories. Professional, business and theatrical people—people in all walks of life—take these treatments and praise the results. And—fees lower than most other types of treatment.

Eaton Urges Interim Aid

House and Senate hearings to speed interim aid.

Legislators of widely opposed political beliefs and backgrounds meanwhile agreed with Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) that Congress will clear emergency aid before Christmas.

Dubious on Marshall Plan

Mostly they took issue with Taft's other suggestion that the Marshall Plan might also be passed by that date. Their views on the prospects of price legislation, however, ran the scale of the political piano.

Senate Democratic Whip Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), following a visit with the President, commended Taft for his Boston statement. With the GOP Senate steersman's aid, Lucas said, "we can get emergency aid out of the way before the holidays."

The Illinois Democrat said European aid and curbs on the price rise go hand in glove, and he was glad President Truman tied them together. He predicted Congress will put emergency aid first, but pass price legislation as well before Christmas.

Representative Leo E. Allen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House Rules Committee agreed Congress will pass emregency aid to Europe in the special session, but said there is "a lot of opposition to it in the Midwest." He said there is stronger opposition to the long-range Marshall Plan "unless we can be shown that it will really check communism and build up Democracy."

Allen, whose committee calls the traffic signals on House legislation, said he doubted Congress will pass any "strong legislation" to check prices.

"We might do something mild about allocating materials but we won't approve price control or rationing. The people in my section would rather have high prices than a return to ceilings and rationing."

House Ways and Means Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), still seeking a nod from leaders to call up his four-billion-dollar tax reduction bill early in the special session, said Congress probably will vote stop-gap aid to Europe. He predicted rough going for price legislation and the Marshall plan, however.

Martin Summons Group

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) meanwhile called a meeting of his House Republican Steering group for November 7, a full week in advance of a companion Senate meeting called by Taft. Top GOP policy on European aid, prices and tax strategy will be set at these meetings.

House Appropriations Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.), however, will hold no presession meeting of his group. Taber said he is advised by the Budget Bureau that aid estimates won't be ready before November 17.

Two congressional committees canceled further hearings in the field after November 6, to return for the special session. They were the Midcontinent subcommittee of the Joint Economic Committee, which called off price hearings in the South, and the Senate Public Lands Committee, which canceled three scheduled hearings in California on Indian problems.

Expects Marshall to Act

Eaton meanwhile in an interview said he expects Secretary of State Marshall to present an interim aid bill to the House Foreign Affairs and Senate Foreign Relations Committee when they meet in joint session November 10.

He said the committee will use that as a base, and write their own bill in time for introduction when Congress convenes November 17. Under House rules, the bill must then be referred back to the Foreign Affairs group and reported while the House is in session.

"The House won't spend more than three days in debate," predicted Eaton. "So far as the House is concerned, the whole emergency aid authorization will be through by December 1."

Eaton said the Marshall plan, however, is more "than just a food and fuel proposition" and hearings may run into the special session.

Rolfe Farm Bull Brings $10,000

A 6-month-old Hereford bull calf by Modest Lamplighter X sold for $10,000, as record sales totaling $66,000 were marked up at the A. G. Rolfe farm's annual auction near Poolesville, Md.

Top female prices were brought by twin heifer calves, which were purchased for $2500 each by C. C. Potter, Pottstown, Pa. A total of 59 head of cattle, bred and developed on the Montgomery County farm, was sold at an average price of $1125 each.

The day-long sale attracted nearly 700 breeders from a dozen States.

Money Exchange Basis Proposed for 5 Nations

Paris, Oct. 28 (AP).—Five nations of western Europe today moved to make their currencies mutually convertible and invited all other "Marshall Plan" countries to join them.

Delegates from France, Italy, Belgium, Netherlands and Luxembourg on a currency committee of the16 nations who met here last summer advised their respective governments to establish a central clearing agency to handle credits and debts among the participating nations.

New Haven Dispute With Trainmen Settled

The National Mediation Board announced last night that the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen has settled its dispute with the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R., and have agreed to call off their threatened strike set for Friday.

Mediation board chairman Frank P. Douglass, whose board began the three-way conferences here Monday, said the settlement was essentially a compromise. He did not reveal details.

Mikolajczyk Whereabouts Still Secret

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—A big question mark hung tonight over the whereabouts of Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, Polish Peasant Party leader, who is said by his political foes to have fled from Poland to oppose his country's communist-led government from abroad.

There was none who professed to know for certain exactly where the 46-year-old leader of Poland's wartime government-in-exile might be after his reported flight from Warsaw a week ago, in apparent escape from the government in which he once served as vice premier.

Rumors flew thick and fast. He was reported in Stockholm, in Denmark, en route to London, perhaps on his way to the United States. But hard-and-fast attempts to locate him encountered silence and speculation.

The British Foreign Office and Home Office said they did not know his whereabouts.

Rain Respite

It is an unhappy commentary on the fickleness of the weather that the considerable rain which descended on the Washington area yesterday has not yet spread to the areas of New York and New England where it is most needed. The best the forecaster can offer is a sort of muted hope that before they drizzle out completely, yesterday's showers may reach into the parched wooded regions where forest fires have been wreaking havoc. A light rain would not end the drought, nor would it quench all the fires that have been mushrooming. Even a sprinkle, however, would slow fires down and aid the fatigued fighters in beating the flames out. Lest we appear ungracious, we hasten to add that while yesterday's intermittent performance by no means restored all the depleted moisture in the dryest Washington autumn on record, it certainly was welcome.

Unfortunately, in another area where rain means even more than it does here, there has not been even a slight respite. The great plains region of Kansas, where winter wheat sowing should have begun a month ago, is still seared by drought. Last week's torrents miscarried and again drenched the eastern portion of the plains region, where a superabundance of rain earlier this year resulted in devastating floods and a severely crippled corn crop. The fact is that with the unprecedented demand for food, we have been gambling on the weather. Much of the winter wheat belt lies in what used to be known as the great American desert. Rain, or at least much of it, is not normal in the fall. For the last few years our gambles have paid off magnificently, but, as with all gambling, snake eyes seem to be turning up when the stakes are heaviest.

It is not pleasant to contemplate the effects of a crop failure at a time when demands for our grain are at a peak and our carryover is virtually nonexistent. Perhaps never before in modern history has so much depended on the caprices of climate, here and elsewhere. Notwithstanding the as yet unreliable experiments in bombarding clouds with dry ice, the most outstanding thing about the weather is, as Mark Twain pointed out, the utter helplessness of the people to do anything about it. Other than to continue a fervent hope, the only prudent course is to start laying emergency plans in case the drought remains unabated.

Freedom Of Association

In his comprehensive attack on the Ives antidiscrimination bill, Donald R. Richberg achieves something of a record for the demolition of bugbears. "The dominant objective of the bill," he says, "is to prohibit by governmental action any freedom to choose one's associates or coworkers in business, if that choice is based on considerations of race, religion, color, national origin or ancestry." This is, of course, just the sort of dialectical confusion that led President Truman the other day to disparage rationing and price control as methods of the police state. It might be applied with equal validity to any prohibitory legislation designed for the advancement of the general welfare.

By perverting the stated purpose of legislation, as Mr. Richberg does, it is always possible to represent it as a denial of freedom. One may say, for example, that the dominant objective of a traffic regulation requiring motorists to stop at a red light is to prevent freedom of movement or that the dominant objective of a minimum wage law is to do away with freedom of contract. This sort of argument has been advanced by opponents in respect of every piece of progressive social legislation. But the saying of it by no means makes it so. And it should be by now a rather well-established principle that freedom is a relative affair and that the exercise of it by individuals is not permissible at the expense of the whole society.

Mr. Richberg, to be sure, does not even acknowledge that employment discrimination on the basis of religion or race forces, as the Ives bill asserts in its declaration of policy, "large segments of our population into substandard conditions of living." This is debatable, he reasons, "since it is difficult to understand how the forced employment of one person in place of another can improve the standard of living of the displaced person!" But displacement is no part of the intent or impact of the legislation. Mr. Richberg apparently subscribes to the long-exploded economic fallacy, once fashionable among labor-union monopolists, that the number of jobs available in an economy is strictly limited. The truth is that jobs create jobs by enlarging consumer purchasing power. The whole Nation would be the beneficiary if improved employment opportunities raised the living conditions of our 13 million Negro citizens.

The list of Mr. Richberg's misapprehensions about the Ives bill is too detailed for full recital here. He says that "bad thinking cannot be legislated out of the human mind." The Ives bill no more legislates against bad thinking than a statute forbidding murder legislates against malice; it is directed merely at a specific antisocial consequence of bad thinking. "Is it wrong or right," Mr. Richberg asks rhetorically, "for a free individualist to object to enforced association with a fanatic Communist who seeks to enslave him?" The Ives bill, of course, no more requires the employment of a Communist (or of an individual in any other category) than the constitutional prohibition against abridgment of the franchise on account of race requires the enfranchisement of minors or imbeciles.

The true aim of the Ives bill is a simple and wholly democratic one: realization of the central principle of American life that all men are entitled, by virtue of their citizenship in this society, to equal opportunity. We cannot, as a Nation, enjoy full freedom unless this basic freedom is assured to all. The principle deserves more recognition than Mr. Richberg has given to it.

Tools Of Foreign Policy

The United States has attained a bipartisan foreign policy by occasional spurts of thoughtful planning, by a series of happy accidents, or by the grace of God. We still have no adequate machinery for formulation of a foreign policy that will be truly national in scope, and cooperation between the Democratic Administration and the Republican leadership of Congress is on a mere hit-or-miss basis. No less serious is the fact that a majority of the people do not understand the foreign policy that is being followed, and little effort is being made to acquaint them with it.

On many individual problems in foreign relations there has been excellent cooperation between leaders of the two major parties, as even Senator Taft has acknowledged. In many other instances the Republicans are inclined to go along with Administration policy because they believe it is right or because it has the support of public opinion. But these are flimsy reeds on which to base the foreign policy of the most powerful nation in the world. What we need is a truly national foreign policy that will be generally recognized as such because it is formulated without partisan considerations with the systematic aid of the best minds in the country.

Former Secretary of State Byrnes was deeply impressed, as he reports in his book, Speaking Frankly, by the continuity of British foreign policy when Ernest Bevin of the Labor Party took over its direction from Conservative Anthony Eden at the Potsdam Conference. Such continuity can be achieved only if there is prior general agreement as to what our basic interests are and as to the methods by which they shall be pursued. And such agreements can be attained in the long run only through wide consultation and careful policy planning irrespective of party lines and in the light of thorough publicity and extensive public discussion. The existing machinery is obviously inadequate to the attainment of such a policy.

We think that the machinery for shaping a truly national foreign policy now that our position of world leadership has become the key to the future is no less important than the policy itself. To continue shaping this policy by a hit-or-miss procedure is to jeopardize the immense prestige which the United States holds today and to risk incalculable calamities. It is not enough to devise a statesmanlike policy for 1947. United States leadership in world affairs will become impressive from the long-range point of view only when we develop means of projecting our policies beyond the incumbency of any one Secretary of State. This is not to suggest inflexible adherence to a particular policy regardless of what changes may take place in our external relations, but rather a constant review of programs and policies by the wisest heads that the Nation can summon to this service.

As we see it, at least four notable improvements in our machinery for managing this gigantic problem can be made.

1. There ought to be an unofficial body of advisers on foreign policy, as suggested by the president of the American Society of International Law, Dr. Charles Cheney Hyde, when it met in Washington last May. Such a body of elder statesmen, selected without regard for party, would probably afford the most practical means of bringing to bear upon our foreign policy the collective wisdom of the people. Working closely with the State Department's policy-planning staff, this council would also advise the Secretary of State and the President, and, when requested, its members could be useful for expounding the national foreign policy to the people.

2. A closer working relationship between the President and Secretary of State on one hand and the two committees of Congress dealing with foreign affairs on the other is urgently needed. There has been some cooperation since Secretary Hull called in a group of Senators to study plans for the United Nations. But it is casual and uncertain. What is needed, in our opinion, is routine discussions that will make these ratifiers of treaties and holders of the Nation's purse strings real partners in the business of shaping foreign policy.

3. Better means of informing the public of our foreign policies seem to us imperative. Some improvement could be made by naming an alert and sagacious man to the vacant post of Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs. But that is incidental. More important than any position or any individual is a policy of open diplomacy—of letting the public know what is happening and why.

4. Secretary Marshall himself ought to be maintaining a closer contact with the people. To carry the people with him, a Secretary of State must speak to them daily, as Secretary Hughes did. Indeed, it cannot be said that we have a truly national foreign policy until the people understand and support it. At this moment there is abysmal ignorance of the plan for rehabilitation of Europe which bears the Secretary's own name. And without public understanding and conviction on such matters any passing wind of demagoguery may frustrate a course of action before there is time to demonstrate its rightness in actual results.

If we are to make the most of our unparalleled opportunity for world leadership, these defects in the machinery behind our foreign policy ought to be corrected with the least possible delay.

Tideland Profligacy

The Attorney General and the Secretary of the Interior have been in a great hurry to renounce all the benefits they won for the United States in the case they brought before the Supreme Court testing title to the submerged mineral resources of the marginal sea off the coast of California. They have, indeed, chosen to give away in large measure the substance of what Congress would have given away prior to the Supreme Court's decision if President Truman had not vetoed the tideland oil bill. According to the Supreme Court, "The United States of America is now, and has been at all times pertinent hereto, possessed of paramount rights in, and full dominion and power over, the lands, minerals and other things underlying the Pacific Ocean lying seaward of the ordinary low-water mark on the coast of California, and outside of the inland waters . . . The State of California has no title thereto or property interests therein."

But Messrs. Clark and Krug entered into two stipulations with the attorney general of California, one quitclaiming three large and important bay areas, the other providing for continued oil production by the State lessees with payment of nominal fees to the Federal Government. Then they sought to have the Supreme Court put the imprimatur of its approval on these deals. The court's response, made on Monday, was a stinging and, we think, altogether deserved rebuke. The court ordered that "the stipulations between the United States Attorney General and the Secretary of the Interior on the one hand and the attorney general of California on the other, which stipulations purport to bind the United States, be stricken as irrelevant to any issues now before us."

The response to this ruling on the part of the new Solicitor General, Philip B. Perlman, was as astonishing as it was high-handed. "The stipulations," he announced, "remain in full force and effect." We should like to know by what authority, since the authority of the Supreme Court has been withheld from this arrangement, any officials of the executive branch of the Government presume to give away resources belonging to the people of the United States. Only through an act of Congress can such a renunciation be authorized. And Congress would be most imprudent and ill-advised to authorize it. The oil beneath the marginal sea is of crucial importance to the national security. It should be conserved for that purpose. It was one thing for the Congress to quitclaim land title to which it supposed was actually vested in the State of California, quite another to renounce a natural resource to which the Federal claim is indisputable and of which the Nation has compelling need.

As Others See Us

It is doubtful whether the efforts of the State Department to spread international understanding of American ideals are much enhanced by the invasion of civil rights currently countenanced and even fostered in the name of security by the Government of the United States. The probe into the personal political opinions of motion picture industry employes now being conducted by the House Committee on Un-American Activities must seem especially anomalous. Americans have more reason to feel grateful than offended that the London News-Chronicle characterizes this committee as "the most un-American feature" of life in the United States.

Commenting on the committee's current inquiry, this British paper observed: "The inquisitors . . . appear to have opened their court by announcing their findings. And when an attorney protested at something, they had him thrown out. By tolerating its methods and its aims, by loosing the heresy-hunting hounds to bay at frightened civil servants, by restricting the movements of Communist journalists in the United States, Americans themselves are practicing those very evils of which they accuse the Kremlin and its satellites." What reply, we wonder, will the Voice of America be able to make?

At the Herald Tribune Forum the other evening, William Attwood, one of four correspondents who reported on life behind the iron curtain, made this ominous observation: "In the northern countries—say, Czechoslovakia, Finland and Austria—I'd say free speech is as complete as it is in this country. In fact, I would say that it would be safer—in terms of his job and his reputation—for a Czech to attack the Soviet Union than it would be for an American to defend it today. But the story in the southern countries is somewhat different." The comparison is scarcely very complimentary to a land which has traditionally prided itself above all else upon its respect for the principle of freedom of expression.

"Plebe System"

Your editorial of October 24 presented not only a distorted but a totally untrue picture of a plebe's life at the U. S. Naval Academy—in short it is only fair that you inform the public, whom you have allowed to be grossly misled, that there is no hazing or humiliation of plebes at the academy.

If you had been alert and interested enough to make a complete study of the situation, instead of taking Mr. R. L. Smith's and Atlantic Monthly article at face value, you would have found that the practice of hazing has been steadily on the decline at the academy in the past few years; moreover, the policy of the class of 1948 (now the senior class), which is a statement of the principles by which the upper classes govern the brigade, specifically bans hazing.

This action has the complete support of everyone concerned—both the midshipmen and their superiors. The plebe, along with the entire brigade, is required to meet exacting standards of military bearing, deportment, and neatness which are entirely in keeping with the building and preservation of a military establishment. It is self-evident that these requisites are logical and necessary in the training of future naval officers.

Your charges in regard to the educational standards could also be corrected, because the entire academic setup has been in the process of being revamped during the past two years, meeting the approval of many of the Nation's outstanding educators.

The academy today is qualified, as never before, to train and equip the young man with the necessary attributes of mind and body that will enable him to take his place in the United States Navy.

Special Session's Job

Your headlines of October 24 are contradictory. At the top and spread across the front page you say, "President Calls Special Session of Congress for November 17 on Foreign Aid and Living Costs; GOP Pledges Cooperation, 'No Rubber Stamp'"; below is your reporter's headline "(Republican) Leaders Assert Session Cannot Be Limited to Crisis Legislation."

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., states that they have no way of limiting the session to consideration of foreign aid and price matters. He also says "The President didn't ask us to limit it."

It looks very much as though Speaker Martin was providing an out in case the Congress intentionally or otherwise lets the President and the people down by not concentrating on these two vital issues for which the extra session was called. I sincerely hope I am wrong, because I believe the American people are expecting the Congress to take prompt action on these two important matters to the virtual exclusion of others of less urgency.

Will our Congress give us what we want and need—action on the foreign aid plan and relief from inflation at home—or will it fritter away its time and effort on some other "important" matter, the GOP tax-reduction bill, for instance? MILDRED BLAICH.

Subversive Thought

What is a fellow traveler? If a man supports a strike and the Daily Worker happens to support the same strike, is he suddenly a parlor pink. If a thief says that he believes all Americans should get a living wage and I say the same thing, am I a thief?

I do not think the analogy too strained, because in the last few years we have drifted far and fast. I saw a re-release of one of Hollywood's anti-Nazi pictures recently. The scene was in the bosom of a German family.

Said the mother to her husband, who had said he didn't like Nazis; in other words, he didn't like the way the government was being run:

"Father, you must be careful, everyone suspects everyone else. Everywhere people are listening."

Behind me on the streetcar the other day, a Government worker was talking with another.

Said one: "If the transit company can't operate the streetcars without raising fares again, I think the Government should take them and operate them. I'm not sure that I don't believe in government ownership of public utilities anyhow."

His friend's terrified voice stopped him before he could finish the next sentence.

"Be careful what you say! Do you want to lose your job? You don't know who might be listening."

I left the car trying to believe that this was the same country that I had read about in my school history books. F. E.

Bonds For Europe

The crying need of European countries is for American dollars. If the Marshall Plan goes through, the United States Government will lend the nations of Europe 16 billion dollars over a four-year period, the money, of course, to be raised by taxation. The amortization of this loan will presumably extend over a very long indefinite period. Eventual payment will, of course, depend upon the extent of European recovery. The history of previous loans does not present too bright a prospect for complete liquidation.

All right then, let's give the individual American an opportunity to do something about it. I propose that a foreign recovery bond issue be launched for an indefinite sum by the Treasury Department in units of any amount starting with, say, $10. The bonds would be noninterest-bearing and have no redeemable date. In other words, they would represent no promise of repayment except when, as and if the European nations so volunteered.

This plan would have advantages as follows:

Americans would feel that they were actually doing something individually to a much greater extent than if they did it indirectly by taxation.

It would reduce the amount of money needed for a Government loan under the Marshall Plan, and to some extent would reduce foreign cries of "Uncle Shylock" when times got hard and we had to insist on payments when due or overdue. MARK RHOADS.

Communism In Hollywood

Your editorial "Film Flam" of October 21 indicates that The Washington Post is definitely opposed to the current investigation into the moving picture industry by the House Committee on Un-American Activities under the direction of Chairman Thomas and provokes me to ask why. The investigation had only been under way for one day when the editorial was written condemning the proceeding before you had any knowledge of what might be brought to light.

Since this investigation is directed at Communists, subversive Americans or whatever you choose to call them as well as at insidious communistic propaganda so repugnant to all Americans, I should think the policy of your paper would be one of support for the committee in a work from which you and all of us would benefit, instead of condemnation before a good start has really been made.

A. D. BROWN.
Washington.

Representative Thomas and his committee are unjustly discriminating against the male population of Washington. They have brought Robert Taylor here for the ladies, but who have they brought for the men? Let's have Lana Turner, Betty Grable, and Hedy Lamarr subpenaed right away. After all, we men are paying the bills for the show.

JOHN C. COOPER.
Washington.

. . . Your latest chicanery has been your attack on the Un-American Activities Committee, headed by the courageous Congressman Thomas. All your newspaper can say is that this action is depriving Americans of their civil liberties, which is almost as asinine as that cartoon of two screen lovers embracing with the remark, "If You Ask Me, It's Un-American." The Washington Post has taken the most stupid, naive attitude of any liberal newspaper in the country. Do you remember Sinclair Lewis' great book, It Can't Happen Here. The characters in it, just as you, were so naive they thought it could never happen, but it was too late then.

Thank God we have some real Americans in Hollywood, like Adolph Menjou, Robert Taylor, Gary Cooper, Ronald Reagan, George Murphy, Walt Disney and many others, who were privileged to tell their story of communism in Hollywood.

DEWITT O. BURKE.
Washington.

In his testimony on October 23, Paramount Director Leo McCarey, in reply to a question by Chairman Thomas, stated that Hollywood should not make anti-Communist or other propaganda films.

Why would it add any more to the "present bitterness in the world" to make anti-Communist propaganda films than it did to make pro-Russian films and anti-German films now being circulated.

In fact these latter are pro-Communist in that they now stir up and keep alive race hatreds and thereby help to defeat the Marshall Plan. With today's Communist Party line as strong anti-Marshall Plan as it is, it would be interesting to know who is fostering anti-German films and other subtle and not so subtle anti-German propaganda appearing from time to time in the press. It is indeed naive to assume that the strongest Communist propaganda is "frontal attacks."

G. SCOTT HAMMONDS.

In your edition of October 25, in the article on the Hollywood investigation, your gremlin probably instigated a new investigation by having Mr. Kenny (patron of the 19 unfriendly witnesses) state the most perplexing addition to the cherished rights of American citizens, to wit:

"He (Mr. Kenny) said that the right of a secret ballot is guaranteed in the United States."

Well, it looks like everybody wants to get into the act. Hollywood has done it again.

Atomic Day Of Crisis

By Malvina Lindsay

Loose Bomb Talk

HOW WOULD Americans take it—the shock of learning that Soviet scientists had figured out a way to make atom bombs? Worried atomic scientists are increasingly asking this question among themselves as they also speculate upon another. How would this country know it if the Soviet Union had completed a bomb?

The second does not alarm them so much as the first. For it is in the realm of technical matters relating to detection of test explosions. However human reaction is something else. And loose bomb and war talk and general atomic ignorance indicate that the Nation is not braced for such a shock to its fool's paradise of "keep the bomb secret" security.

Many psychologists as well as atomic scientists believe the public should be prepared against an inevitable day of crisis when it learns that its oceans and riches no longer make it invulnerable to an enemy. And the atom bomb, so effectively dramatized at Hiroshima, has become the concrete symbol of all weapons of mass destruction.

IF SUCH a day of revelation should arrive during tense relations with the Soviet Union, and with public emotion at high pitch over communism, as at present, there is real danger of hysterical, irresponsible or bellicose action. For the appalling failure of Americans to grasp the meaning of atomic warfare is shown daily, not only in ignorant remarks of the uninformed, but in loose, saber-rattling statements of high officials, and the casual predictions of savants concerning the date of the "next war." The unrealistic tendency of both the people and their leaders to talk of future wars in terms of traditional warfare is especially alarming to those who understand either atomic or bacteriological weapons.

One atomic information specialist and student of mass reaction, who recently took a personal poll among persons of varying backgrounds, asked the following question:

If and when the American people discovered that the Soviet Union had found out how to make the bomb, what would be their reaction and what public action would they demand? Here are some typical responses:

"We should kick all the Commies out of the country." (Labor leader.)

"The American people won't believe it—they've been fooled too often." (Clubwoman.)

"How can the Russians ever do it if we have the secret?" (Member of Congress.)

"There'd be nothing to do but beat 'em to it—drop the first bomb." (Taxi driver.)

"We'd find a defense—somebody always has." (Government worker.)

"We should start at once digging bomb proof shelters, disperse industry, decentralize our cities." (Businessman.)

"We should drop one bomb just to give the Russians a lesson so they won't be so intransigent in the United Nations." (College graduate.)

"The whole answer is to make America stronger, and more powerful than any other nation." (Military man.)

"I don't know. The American people have enough trouble in their personal lives without having to think of that problem." (Housewife.)

NOT ONCE was rigid international control of atomic energy mentioned. No one suggested pressing toward world government. It was generally felt such measures would be useless because of the Kremlin's attitude. Yet the atomic scientists have not lost hope of international control. The believe the Soviet's experiments with the bomb may make it more aware of atomic threats to its own survival, more willing to cooperate on control.

In any case, the scientists regard it as their duty to keep working for this, and also to awaken Americans and all other peoples to the terrible meaning of atomic warfare. The more such knowledge is disseminated, the more it will penetrate human minds everywhere—even those behind the Iron Curtain. They also feel that if Americans are to act with self-control in a time of crisis they need to know in advance all the stark facts. Here is the bitter truth, from doctor to patient as one distinguished physicist phrases it:

"The great danger from the atom bomb is not the explosion itself, but the deadly radiations, which can kill, burn, cause sterility, change genes of humans, as well as of animals and vegetation. The world is surrounded by a gaseous mixture, which gets thinner as it reaches into the outer atmosphere, and which is a good conductor of radiation. That is why a definitely calculable number of bombs can kill all life on earth, both animal and vegetable.

"If another country dropped bombs on this one, the military and the scientists would have to decide whether it was worth while to retaliate. If retaliation took place with the concentration of radiation over this country, and the additional radiation which might be generated through conductivity of gaseous material, it might well be national suicide."

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Meet Vittorio Vidali

TRIESTE.—In these days Trieste is a toy state on the scale of Liechtenstein, where nothing, agreeable or disagreeable, is easily hidden. Even the Communist Party, ordinarily habituated to dark places, has its headquarters just across the broad waterfront street from the headquarters of the Anglo-American forces. The Communist chieftains share with British General Airey and American General Moore the splendid panorama of Trieste harbor, which the Kremlin is seeking to bring within the Soviet sphere.

Among these fortunate and hard-working men, there is one worth closer study, as a symbol of the problem posed for the free world by the existence of a powerful imperialist state possessing agents everywhere in the disguise of advocates of high-sounding ideals. His name is Vittorio Vidali, and although not the front man, he is almost certainly the controller of the Communist Party apparatus and the direct representative of the Kremlin in Trieste.

He must now be in his fifties. At any rate, he was a minor figure in the Italian Socialist Party at the close of the last war. In the turmoil of the Kremlin's first great effort to destroy the democratic non-Communist left in Europe, he became a Communist. Thereafter, probably because he had to flee from the Italian Fascist terror, he left Italy and began the wandering life of an agent of the Comintern.

FOR SOME time he was in the United States, and for some time in Moscow. Without doubt in Moscow he attended the Comintern schools, which can now boast as many eminent politician graduates as Britain's Eton in its heyday as a production line for cabinet ministers. For some time also he was one of the Communist agents in Spain who helped to wreck the Loyalist cause from within while the Fascists attacked it from without. Then he was transferred to Mexico. There he must have formed part of the special wartime American apparatus organized by the late, unlamented Ambassador Oumansky, the NKVD bigwig who rose to greatness by betraying his superiors without ceasing for an instant to smile his broad, gold-bestudded smile.

Finally, in 1943, the Comintern was organizing the Italian Communist partisans—a special brand of partisans who spent almost as much time fighting future democratic competitors as the more widely popular enemies of those days. Vidali was brought from Mexico and smuggled into Italy to help in this effort. He must be able and courageous, for he survived the considerable tests of that time and emerged as the big man behind the scenes in Trieste. The official Trieste leaders are Slovenes, since Slovenes constitute a huge majority of the local Communists. But Vidali, in view of his record, is unquestionably the real fount of power.

HE HAS two missions. His first and minor mission is to watch over the Trieste station on the underground railway to Yugoslavia. This is the organization responsible for recruiting and delivering to Yugoslavia, sometimes legally and sometimes illegally, idealistic young people from all over Europe.

These are being invited "to help build Yugoslav democracy." A good many thousands—the large numbers are well confirmed—have already been brought into Yugoslavia, ostensibly as volunteer workers on the roads and railways. In practice, there are the best possible grounds for believing that once they cross the Yugoslav frontier, the best of them are trained for and incorporated into the new International Brigade. This is the weapon, of course, which the Kremlin is preparing for possible emergencies in Greece or elsewhere.

Signor Vidali's major mission, however, is to bring Trieste under the eager heel of Marshal Tito. This he must do despite Trieste's huge anti-Communist majority of over 200,000 Italians. In order to accomplish this mission, three main methods are employed.

First, the Communist Party busily infiltrates every possible organized manifestation of the life of Trieste, whether labor unions, or social clubs, or humble cultural organizations. The Cosulich, the rich family who own the shipyards, have been unappetizing employers. Most of their workers are Slovenes. Naturally, the union is Communist-controlled. Thus it was the San Marco shipyard workers who sought unsuccessfully to lead the general strike, timed to coincide with the even more humiliatingly unsuccessful Yugoslav coup d'etat on September 15.

METHOD NO. 2 is economic infiltration. The lire looted by the Communist partisans are almost exhausted, but from Belgrade, where the whole Communist effort in Trieste has its zone of the interior base, ample additional funds are forthcoming. Phoney firms are being formed. Fronts are being acquired for every kind of transaction aimed to give the Communists a foothold in Trieste's economic life. Finally, the third and last method is simple terror. Dangerous opponents, like the anti-Tito Slovene editor, Ursic, are made to disappear. Or when it is feasible, they are even more publicly done away with, like the Istrian priest, Bulesich.

In the little Slovene villages still included in the Free Territory, and among the Slovene population in the city, these methods have been successful. Despite the discouraging spectacle of seven Yugoslav divisions hungrily living off the countryside across the border, these people would either like to join Tito or dare not voice their opposition. Among the Italians, little headway has been made. If the Anglo-American command in Trieste continues to be supported and to do the same good job, Vittorio Vidali's mission is likely to last a very long time. But it is interesting to watch the process here, even though Vidali may be frustrated. For it has all the neat visibility of a miniature, and one remembers it is going on less visibly but on a far vaster scale, in every other region of the world that interests the Kremlin.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

GAG: There's an amusing new definition of civil service making the rounds of Federal offices. Here it is:

Kluttz

Civil service is what you get in restaurants between wars.

SEVERAL HUNDRED employes will take it on the chin again when Agriculture's Office of Labor is liquidated the end of this year.

By all moral and just standards, these people are entitled to permanent civil service status. They have worked for Uncle Sam up to 15 years, but they are still considered as war service appointees. A series of bad breaks has kept their jobs in a "temporary" state.

These workers were transferred to the Labor Office from Farmers Home Administration's (formerly Farm Security) itinerant labor camp division. A congressional rider several years ago prevented them from getting status while they were FSA employes.

But Congress consented earlier this year to civil service for all FHA employes. War service and temporary employes who had been in FHA for as little as six months were given status. And if the Labor Office had been kept in FHA, its employes, too, would have won status. But it wasn't and now many long-service employes will be fired without any reinstatement or bumping rights whatever.

POSTOFFICE STORY: The other evening about 10 o'clock, a well-dressed lady went into the main postoffice to mail some letters. The windows were closed and she was unable to buy stamps for them.

The lady was visibly provoked. She walked over to two men in conversation and asked where she might buy stamps. One suggested the Willard Hotel, down the street. The lady then didn't talk ladylike. She loosed a verbal blast at what she called Postoffice bureaucrats who sit in their big offices to think up ways to inconvenience the public they are paid to serve. The men only puffed harder on their cigars.

The lady didn't know it, but she was talking to Joseph J. Lawler, the Third Assistant Postmaster General, who is in charge of stamp sales and who was partly responsible for ordering the night closing of the stamp windows for economy reasons.

COMMERCE is planning to ask Congress for authority to extend and broaden its control over exports and to rapidly expand its Office of Export Controls if the authority is approved. Its plans all tie into the proposed European aid and reconstruction program.

The department's authority to control exports will expire on February 28. Controls over goods leaving this country are now considered to be a vital link in the Marshall Plan to aid Europe. This would mean an expansion of the Office of Export Controls from about 130 to more than 400 employes if the Marshall Plan is okayed by Congress.

JOBS: Civil Service has announced open competitive tests for engineer, $3397 to $7102 to start, and safety inspector, $4149 a year to start. The inspector test will be written. The engineer applicants will be graded on education and experience.

Engineer applicants are needed from persons who have had training in aeronautical, mechanical, electrical, electronic, chemical, petroleum, ordnance, civil, architectural, industrial, coal and fuel engineering.

DECISIONS: The Comptroller General ruled

1. That a Federal worker who is ordered to testify in court as an official Government witness cannot be paid overtime, and,

2. That the Veterans' Administration must pay the 25 per cent allowance to its medical and surgical specialists on their accumulated annual leave when they resign. The Comptroller decided the 25 per cent is a part of their basic salary.

PAY RATES: The Civil Service Commission yesterday approved a new list of pay rates for student nurses, doctors, dietitians, physical therapy interns, occupational therapy interns and clinical psychology interns at St. Elizabeths Hospital here. The hospital personnel office has full details on the new rates. A recent law exempted the salaries of student hospital employes from the Classification Act.

WHITHER UPWA? Now that an organized minority will oppose the left-wing leaders of CIO'S United Public Workers—what will be the result?

The answer could very well be this—a split-up into a single union for Federal workers and a separate union for State, county and municipal employes with the controversial left-wingers losing control of the Federal group in the process. In other words, the two public worker unions that merged in the spring of last year would be returned to independent status.

Some such plan as this is reported to have been discussed by those who could force the split as a solution to UPWA's troubles. The union operating here under the eyes of Congress and the Administration hasn't helped to improve the CIO's relations with the Government. If the split does come—and it couldn't come before next year's convention—it will be welcomed by a good many Federal members and former members.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Tradition And British Coal

WOLVERHAMPTON, England.—One of the stately halls of England, on the edge of Wolverhampton, has a new tenant. The tenant is the National Coal Board, represented in this division by Sir Ben Smith, who came up from the ranks of the trade-union movement to play an important part in the councils of the Labor government.

CHILDS

What has happened to Himley Hall is symbolic of the changes taking place in England in a difficult period of transition. This handsome Georgian house, with its stables, its paddocks and meadows, the lake, the farm and the gentle hedgerows, was formerly the home of the Earl of Dudley. The present earl was one of the close friends of the Duke of Windsor in the gay days long before the then Prince of Wales dreamed that he would go into exile.

When Sir Ben Smith was appointed chairman of the West Midland division of the National Coal Board, his first task was to find a building for office space. That is one of the scarcest commodities in austerity England. He decided finally to buy Himley Hall for $180,000. The big house would provide plenty of room for offices. The farm could be worked and the produce sold as before.

And as further justification for the purchase, Sir Ben pointed to the fact that the coal deposits beneath the fields could some day be worked to provide a return at least equal to the total purchase price. A considerable part of the Dudley wealth had come from nearby coal mines, which were taken over by the state under nationalization, as were all of Britain's 1400 mines.

BUT THE fact that Sir Ben and the Coal Board should be occupying Himley Hall has produced almost as much criticism as anything that the board has done in the 10 months it has existed. The Conservative press is deeply affronted by the idea. The attacks sound very much like the kind of abuse poured on the New Deal in the first Roosevelt Administration.

Conservatism—above all, traditionalism—has deeper roots here than in America. A controversy has developed because the Coal Board, in another division, proposes to dig up the coal under the beautiful hills of Lyme Hall, which was turned over by its owners to the national trust as a museum and public park. Now, as much of the press would have it, the Coal Board proposes to desecrate this beauty. This is the kind of resistance which any change inevitably meets when it comes up against England's richly storied past.

Sir Ben, who has broad autonomous power as a divisional chairman, is working hard to push modernization of the coal pits in his area. Many pits have been operated by methods long since abandoned in the United States.

I visited a small mine producing about 700 tons of coal a day. On the surface at the pithead, 30 men were employed in conveying the small cars full of coal that came up from the mine. The manager, who had inspected mines in America, said that with modern techniques a similar mine near Pittsburgh produced 5000 tons a day and that only three men were employed on the surface.

Modernization was going forward, although necessarily on a modest scale since that pit would be abandoned in two or three years as exhausted. Much of the machinery on the surface bore the date 1882.

Output per man-shift in Britain's mines today is slightly more than 1 ton. The comparable figure for the United States is about 5 tons. But, as the visitor is repeatedly told, the comparison is not a fair one since conditions in the two countries are so different.

BRITAIN HAS few of the broad, straight seams of coal that have made mechanization and high production in America possible. The presence of water below the surface creates obstacles that are exceptional in the United States. Then, too, the inherent conservatism of the miners and the mine owners has worked against change.

The present goal in the new Battle for Britain is 2 tons per man-shift. Output is rising, but slowly. The coming of Christmas, with an incentive to earn money, is considered likely to increase it.

This matter of incentives under socialization is always cropping up. The mine managers have formed a union since the mines were nationalized, to make sure that they get fair pay. Sir Ben Smith says that in all probability managerial pay throughout the industry will be equalized.

Sir Ben's own appointment caused an uproar on this same issue. The Tory press charged the government with finding convenient jobs within the Coal Board for over-age politicians. Sir Ben, who was in Washington for two years during the war as British cabinet representative for supply, was later a failure as Minister of Food, although his friends insist that circumstances beyond his control made it an impossible job. He is 68 years old.

The Labor government in London, insofar as I have been able to discover, had nothing to do with Sir Ben's selection as one of the eight divisional chiefs under the Coal Board. He was the choice of Lord Hyndley, who is chairman of the National Coal Board, with powers quite independent of the government.

This is all part of the curious and difficult experiment in evolutionary socialism in a democracy. Whether or not it will work, only time will tell.

The Gallup Poll

Public Wants Peace With Reds But Prefer Firmer U. S. Policy

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

This is the second of a series of three reports on public attitudes toward Russia.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—If James V. Forrestal and W. Averill Harriman are "warmongers" in the eyes of Russia's Andrei Vishinsky, than with equal logic the majority of the American people would have to be condemned as warmongers. The general views of those two Cabinet members are in accord with the public's own views.

But, on the basis of evidence from public opinion surveys, the American people cannot be described as warmongers. There is widespread desire for peace. The public is hopeful that ways can be worked out to get along better with Russia. Despite noisy and mounting tension between the two countries, the American public is not giving way to hysteria, and is showing very little desire to see the United States pull out of the United Nations because of Russia's continued bucking of the majority will.

To achieve accord, the American people need to understand the Russians better. By the same token, the Russian leaders and people need to have a sounder grasp of American thinking. Specifically, Stalin, Vishinsky and other Soviet leaders seem to be misreading American public opinion on at least two counts:

1. The Kremlin is misjudging the mood or temper of the American people if it believes that Henry A. Wallace, with his sharp criticism of our foreign policy, represents any considerable bloc of public opinion.

2. Soviet leaders are also misinformed if they suppose that there is any serious cleavage between the public's views on Russia and the State Department's current so-called "tough" policy toward Russia. Attempts at driving a wedge between the American people and the Government so far as Russia is concerned do not at present hold out much promise of success.

In fact, the mood of the public today is one favoring an even tougher policy toward the Soviets than the State Department is following.

What are the reasons for this attitude? The American people have a list of specific grievances, real or fancied, against Russia which will be given in detail in a forthcoming report by the Institute. But aside from specific criticisms, one underlying fact which colors American attitudes toward the Soviets is a deep-seated fear of the consequences of appeasement.

Many Americans feel that Uncle Sam got his fingers burned by giving in to Hitler in the years prior to 1939. The memory of what happened and the realization that giving in did not make for peace has produced a sharp reaction in the American public mind. The majority of voters now believe that peace is more likely to be maintained if we make clear to the world just what our position is and where we will make our stand.

THE extent to which the people back up the Government in its present foreign policy is shown in a series of polls by the Institute covering various aspects of the situation, as follows:

"Do you think that in dealing with Russia and other countries the United States is insisting too much on having its own way?"

The vote:

Yes	12%
No	78
No opinion	10

"Do you think the United States is being too soft or too tough in its policy toward Russia?"

Too soft	62%
Too tough	6
About right	24
No opinion	8

"Do you think Secretary of State Marshall has been doing a good or a poor job in handling our relations with Russia?"

Good	63%
Fair	20
Poor	2
No opinion	15

It seems clear that Henry Wallace and others who have been critical of our foreign policy are speaking only for a minority. In Wallace's case, poll figures are available on his personal popularity as a political figure. In June it was found that if Wallace were to start a new political party only about 1 voter in 10 (13 per cent) said he would support such a party.

Lustig Pays $115,000 Fine, Faces Prison

New York, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Henry Lustig, former owner of the luxury Longchamps restaurant chain, today paid a $115,000 fine for Federal income tax evasion and tomorrow must surrender to serve a four-year prison term.

Lustig and his codefendants, E. Allan Lustig, a nephew, who is former general manager of the firm, and Joseph Sobel, former accountant, will be transported to Federal prisons tomorrow.

The three men were convicted ernment of $2,800,000 in taxes of attempting to defraud the Gov during the years 1941-44.

Elizabeth's Wedding Gifts On Display

London, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—A match box encrusted with sea shells, a sofa pillow embroidered "Don't Fence Me In," and a book on how to act in a courtroom were among Princess Elizabeth's wedding gifts which went on display today.

South African tribeswomen sent a doll which they believe will insure the Princess a large family.

Lady Martineau sent a book, "The Campaign of 1815" to while away the long winter evenings. Somebody else sent "The Arabian Nights," unexpurgated.

The gifts, the first lot of thousands, went on display at St. James's Palace.

They included half a dozen rocks, as many vases, innumerable blankets, pillow cases, handkerchiefs, stockings, vacuum cleaners, lengths of cloth, lamps and books.

A ruby necklace from Burma, diamonds and other jewels, minks from the Aga Khan, and similar gifts were not on display.

Gifts shown today, included the great fitted dressing case in gold sent by the Diplomatic Corps, the huge silver wine bowl from the Maharajah of Nepal and the "Agni Mani," the "magic wishing gem," sent by Baron Richard de Touchetadding. Near them was a hand-carved oak cigarette box from Corpl. C. T. Papadopoulos of the British army.

(Among the presents, said the Associated Press, was President Truman's glass vase, done up in a merry-go-round motif. Ambassador Douglas' daughter Sharman sent a neat little antique silver bookstand.

Navy Gives Commission To Negro

The Navy announced yesterday that it had approved the application of Ensign Charles Teale, 24-year-old Indianapolis, Ind., Negro for a regular Navy commission.

It was the second time in history that a Negro has received such a commission. The first was Ensign John Lee, whose commission was approved last March. Lee is now at the General Lines Officers School, Newport, R. I.

Teale is a graduate of Yale University and of the Yale Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps. He applied for his commission as soon as he graduated last month. His mother lives in Brooklyn, N. Y. His father died in 1931.

So far, no Negro has ever graduated from Annapolis—the Navy's usual training center for regular officers. There is one in the senior class, however. Six Negroes have attended Annapolis in the past but all failed to graduate.

Women Called Key to Food Campaign

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Women are the key to the success of the food conservation drive in the District, a food committee official said last night as reports arrived of the failure of two wholesale bakers' bread-saving attempts.

District Purchasing Officer Roland J. Brennan, a member of the executive board of the District Food Conservation Committee, said the housewives' part in the drive cannot be overemphasized.

Brennan suggested to the women:

1. Try new foods that are plentiful and cheap.
2. Plan meals for the week with alternate choices for available foods.
3. Avoid overbuying; never overbuy because it seems a bargain.
4. Keep all perishables under refrigeration.
5. Cook vegetables in a small quantity of water.
6. Avoid overcooking.
7. Save water in which vegetables have been cooked for soups, sauces and gravies.
8. Scrub vegetables, then cook in their jackets and peel when cooked.
9. Use all green tops such as celery, beets and turnips.
10. Use every scrap of food, meat, bones, vegetables and breads.
11. To save flour, serve fresh or stewed fruits in salads instead of pastry.
12. Use stale bread for desserts such as puddings or in dressings.

Two major bakery wholesalers—Rice's Bakery and the Charles Schneider Baking Co.—which yesterday tried to curtail consignment sales to District groceries as o conservation measure, gave up the attempt.

Officials of both firms agreed the practice could not be halted without complete cooperation of competing bakeries. They found yesterday that grocers, unwilling to give up the practice, transferred their patronage to other bakeries.

Under the practice, which has existed for several years, grocers accept bread with the understanding that unsold loaves will be accepted for credit. At the first meeting of the local food committee, Chairman James E. Colliflower urged the wholesalers to discontinue the practice during the drive.

As the conservation drive marked its third meatless Tuesday, restaurant observance was s till spotty. Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association, said that since "business is off, restaurateurs cannot force the public."

"The general public has got to be sold on the conservation program," he declared.

The Washington Committee for Consumer Protection, consisting of 35 District groups, announced last night that next Wednesday it will launch an intensive campaign to get Congress to reenact price control.

The slogan for the drive will be "Get purse control with price control," Mrs. Sarah Newsman, chairman, said. The campaign will include petitions, telegrams and visits to Congressmen, she said.

Food Saving May End in '47

drive is 35 per cent along the way toward President Truman's goal of saving 100 million bushels of grain for foreign relief.—Industry pledges will account for that much, they declared. Most of the rest must come from public self-denial, they added.

Next industry to be called upon to contribute grain savings to the campaign will be the meat packers, officials said.

The farm program for grain conservation will be announced today after approval by Agriculture Department experts. It reportedly will will call for:

1. Selling hogs at market weights about 30 pounds per head less than normal.
2. Reducing pig losses, death from Cholera, feed loss due to worms and lack of minerals and salt.
3. Reduce grain-fattening of cattle.
5. Cut down the feeding of grain to dairy cattle; more use of hay and pasture, and culling out unprofitable cows.
5. Campaigns to cut down waste due to rats and weevils. One rat can eat and waste more than 100 pounds, or about two bushels of corn. Iowa alone has five million rats, and the Nation an estimated 100 million. Corn weevil in th esouth may destroy as much corn as is consumed by livestock, Alabama official State.

Henderson Sees New Isolationism in U. S.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 27 (AP).—Former OPA Chief Leon Henderson declared tonight "a new isolationism is arising" in the United States, which "makes itself evident in proposals to limit relief to Europe; to postpone needed help; to surround our aid with conditions which would compel needy countries to surrender their rights of free choice."

In an address prepared for the thirty-third annual convention of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America, Henderson called Congress "illiberal and anti-democratic," saying "it denied the raising of the minimum wage, denied American relief to displaced persons, denied the need of the Fair Employment Practices Commission; the anti-poll tax bill, the extension of national health, housing, education and social security measures."

Traffic Toll in Md. Is 31 for Month

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission reported today 31 persons were killed on the State's streets and highways in September and pointed out the roadways are still more dangerous for pedestrians than any other kind of user.

Five weer killed in Baltimore, 26 in the counties. In September of 1936, 10 were killed in Baltimore and 31 in the counties.

The 1947 death toll stood at 280 through September 30, as compared with 301 in the corresponding period of 1946.

Economic Advisers Favor Marshall Aid

President's Council Drafting Study Stating Prices Can Bear More Inflation Pressure

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers will indorse Marshall Plan aid to Europe as essential to international economic stability, it was reported reliably yesterday.

The Council's study, one of three commissioned by the President as background for Administration policy on foreign help, will probably be sent to the White House at the end of this week. It is now in the final stages of drafting.

The assignment of the Council, composed of Chairman Edwin G. Nourse, Leon Keyserling and John D. Clark, was to consider the impact on the American economy of Marshall Plan assistance to Europe.

Its conclusion, it was understood, is that the program will undeniably intensify price problems for certain items, principally wheat and coal. But, Council members believe, all of these can be met and solved by the installation of Government controls.

Inflation Blamed on U. S. Demand

For some weeks, it was reported, the Council has felt that a foreign-aid program in the general terms requested by the Paris Conference report on the Marshall Plan can be, and should be, put into effect by this country. Otherwise, it appeared, western European conditions would deteriorate, and governments possibly collapse. The ultimate economic effect, it seemed to the Council, would be more damagin gon the United States than any immediate difficulties with prices.

Furthermore, it is known that the Council has long since taken the view that the present problem of inflation is primarily caused by the high level of demand at home. Foreign demand for American goods has only a fractional effect.

In previous reports, the Council intimated that the inflationary situation must be dealt with vigorously whether or not a foreign-aid program is adopted.

Its corollary proposition is that the measures adequate to control inflationary pressure at home will at the same time prevent a foreign-aid progrom from having disastrous inflationary consequences.

The Council is not expected in its current report to go into much detail as to what those remedial measures should be.

But it has previously indorsed certain standard devices and presumably will mention them in its present study. These are allocation controls, to limit the amount of scarce commodities going to various kinds of users; retention of present high tax rates; and new legal powers to restrain expansion of credit buying by individuals and businesses.

The Council is believed to take the position that nine tenths of the pressures toward higher prices comes from home demand, and only one tenth from the export of goods abroad.

Its report will probably point out that in the aggregate, aid to Europe, even at the maximum levels requested in the Paris Conference report on the Marshall Plan, will result in less of an ex spring of this year.

At that time, the United States was shipping abroad an excess of exports over imports at a yearly rate of 13 billion dollars. At present the rate of the export balance is about 10 billion dollars.

Foreign aid at the peak level contemplated in the Paris Conference report may run somewhat higher than the present export balance rate, but not nearly so high as the peak in the second quarter of this year.

Discount Inflation Pressure

Therefore, the council is said to believe that the inflationary pressure of Marshall Plan aid will be less than that which our economy was able to withstand earlier this year.

From an aggregate view, then, the foreign-aid program does not appear to raise serious problems. But the Council does not deny that major problems—specifically, price repercussions—are involved with certain commodities in short supply and in great European demand.

These commodities are the ones listed in the report on national resources issued 10 days ago by Secretary of Interior Krug. They are wheat, steel, coal, nitrogen fertilizer and certain types of industrial, mining and transportation machinery.

The council's report is thought to be primarily concerned with the first two. It is said to state that if the price effects of shipping large quantities of wheat and coal abroad are potentially serious, there is no reason why any adverse consequences cannot be prevented by Government controls.

Government Buys Tobacco

will buy tobacco of the same grade and types ordinarily purchased by Britain, and will pack and store it in such a way that "Britain or any other foreign country could use it."

Department spokesmen said the situation definitely "will require an additional reduction of the 1948 crop-marketing quota." In order to be eligible for Government "parity loans," farmers must keep their annual plantings within quota limitations fixed in advance.

New Railroad Brake Insures Quick Stops

Philadelphia, Oct. 29 (U.P.)—Perfection of a new railroad disc brake which "can mean the difference between life and death" on the rails was announced today by the Budd Co. after 10 years of research and development.

The new brake will stop a railway passenger car without discomfort to passengers from 60 miles an hour in less than 1000 feet; from 80 miles an hour in less than 1600 feet and from 100 miles per hour in less than 2500 feet, the company said.

Cornwell Resigns As Aide to Clark

Attorney General Clark yesterday announced "with regret" the resignation of J. Leighton Count Cornwell as his special assistant.

Cornwell, who has been with the Justice Department since 1934, will leave October 31 to make his home in Deland, Fla. He is a native of Washington, D. C., but maintains a legal residence at Romney, W. Va.

Advertising Club Honors Hecht On New Store

The Washington Advertising Club paid tribute yesterday to The Hecht Co., which plans to open a new store in Silver Spring, Md., Saturday.

At a testimonial luncheon at the Hotel Statler, given for Hecht and Montgomery County officials, Brooke Johns, chairman of the ers, welcomed the local firm to Montgomery County Commission-Silver Spring.

Charles B. Dulcan, sr., vice president and general manager of the company, thanked the Advertising Club for the testimonial. The new store, which will open at 10 a. m. Saturday, cost $2,500,000.

Taft Urges One Agency to Direct Price Policy

Boston, Oct. 28 (AP).—Senator Taft of Ohio said tonight the coming special session of Congress should empower one agency to direct Gov- prices, limitation of exports and aid to Europe.

The candidate for the Republican presidential nomination asserted in a speech prepared for the National Association of Cost Accountants:

"Today there seems to be no one in the Government with any overall responsibility to prevent price increases and reconcile reasonable aid to Europe with the interests of the American people."

"I think the Marshall Plan in its present form is beyond all reason," Taft declared, and added:

"My own belief is that we should assist foreign countries only in such a manner as will enable them to increase their own production and do more work so that they may pay for the necessary imports by their own exports. . . . There is no hope for the future in an international WPA.

"I believe it is most important that a definite program be adopted by Congress and that some agency be set up with over-all responsibility to direct that program."

He cited as an example of such a need:

"Only yesterday the President spoke of the danger of further price increase, and the same day the Commodity Credit Corporation promptly raised the price of finer domestic wools for which there is the most demand."

The Ohio Senator offered these suggestions to "stabilize prices most quickly":

Cutting the expenses of government.

Cutting taxes.

Exercising the power to control exports and approaching the Marshall plan with the understanding that in the form and amount presented by the 16 nations it is a serious threat to any anti-inflation program in this country.

Set up some kind of control of buying for export which will avoid the confusion and demoralization of the markets brought about by government buying policies in recent months.

Put on a well-thought-out plan of education to persuade labor that more wage increases will do no good because they will be balanced by price increases.

Churchill Demands End to Socialism

Bids Labor Government Follow Lead Of U. S.; Calls for New Elections

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—Winston Churchill demanded today that the Labor Government cast aside socialism as a failure and follow the lead of the United States in an effort to achieve prosperity through a system of free enterprise.

The opposition leader, making his fourth parliamentary attempt to unseat Prime Minister Attlee, accused the Labor Government of "playing a low-down party game from start to finish," and declared it was time to hold new elections.

He declared that "false theories are leading the nation into an ever-darkening alley and praised the "astonishing feats of American mass production." He said "I am fortified by what has happened in the United States."

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison replied by calling Churchill's proposals "a plea for economic anarchy" and a "dreadfully reactionary speech."

"Where did this system of free competition and unbridled flow of profit motive land us between the wars?" Morrison asked. "It landed us with persistent depressions and persistent crises."

Morrison referred to a statement by Churchill that rising prices were "not a sign of evil but often of strength."

"If it be true that all is well with the controls coming off and the prices rising," Morrison asked, why had President Truman called Congress, "to deal with, among other things, this very question of the inflationary movement in prices consistent upon the removal of controls?"

Churchill's denunciation of the Socialist administration opened a two-day debate on an opposition resolution calling for a virtual vote of no confidence in the government.

Churchill accused the government of "authoritarianism" in proposing to cut further the powers of the House of Lords.

In reply to critics who have charged the Conservatives with having no constructive policy, he said:

"Here is the policy: Establish a basic standard for life and labor and provide the necessary basic food for all. Once that is done, set the people free, get out of the way and let them all make the best of themselves and win whatever prizes they can for their families and their country."

He said that the American cost of living index had risen to 60 per cent above 1939, but added, "What was the corrective to price rises? It was production and American production is now 80 per cent above 1939."

He said that "our wholesale price index—in spite of all our controls and, I hold, largely because of that—is 90 per cent above 1939."

Government 'Bad Odor' Explained by Churchill

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—Winston Churchill—referring in Parliament today to a recent suggestion by Fuel Minister Hugh Gaitskell that Britons take fewer baths to save coal—retorted:

"When a minister of the crown speaks like this on behalf of the government, the Prime Minister and his friends have no need to wonder why they are getting increasingly into bad odor."

Coroner's Jury Frees Girl Who Stabbed Sister

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—A 16-year-old girl screaming "I didn't mean it, Pa, I didn't mean it" was exonerated today by a coroner's jury of the fatal scissors stabbing of her sister.

Irene Zawistowski told of her quarrel yesterday with her sister Adeline, 18, and how she threw the long pointed scissors at her during a quarrel over the wearing of each other's clothes.

U. S. Is Asked To Intensify Air Research

By The Associated Press

Two top scientists recommended to the President's Air Policy Board yesterday more intensive basic research to provide world leadership in aeronautical advances.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, Research and Development Board chairman, said extra effort for several years is necessary to insure the country's ability to command its own air space if there should be another war.

Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, director of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, said the United States has rapidly taken the leadership in applied science "but has definitely contributed less than its due proportion to pure science."

(The distinction is between the application of a new principle to a practical use and the discovery of new principles).

Both men expressed hope that the forthcoming regular session of Congress would provide for a national science foundation to work on basic research.

Meanwhile, the Nation's railroads pleaded for the right to enter the airline business, asserting they are forced through taxes to contribute to a 200-million-dollar annual subsidy for the air industry.

The rail carriers spoke through the Association of American Railroads in a statement submitted to the Air Policy Commission.

They asked that they be accorded equal consideration with other applicants for airline routes. The law now is interpreted by the Civil Aeronautics Board as forbidding surface carriers to engage in full-scale air operations.

A Weak, Run-Down Feeling Is Often A Warning

That The Red-Blood Is Getting Low

If you do not feel like your real self, do not have the urge to be up and doing, why not check-up on your blood strength? Look at the palms of your hands, your fingernails, your lips, the lobes of your ears—are they pale and off color?

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that S.S.S. Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the S.S.S. Tonic formula, which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, S.S.S. Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too-little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on S.S.S. Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. S.S.S. Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Left Wingers Are Quelled In Bolivia

La Paz, Bolivia, Oct. 28 (AP).—An uprising against the mayor of the small Bolivian border town of Guayara Mirim has been put down by local police, Minister of Government Alfredo Mollinedo said today.

Previous reports received by the Brazilian Ministry of Justice in Rio de Janeiro said the Bolivian town had been captured by Communist elements and had caused border guards to be alerted along Brazil's remote frontier with Bolivia.

Mollinedo said he had sent a police detachment to Guayara Mirim, situated on the headwaters of an Amazon tributary to prevent further disorders. He said there was no truth in the Brazilian reports of a Communist uprising.

The Minister said members of the left-wing Revolutionary Party had revolted against the right-wing mayor, Admundo Alpir. They attacked the town hall, but were dispersed by police, who arrested the leaders.

Reds Riot as Premier Fights

mass meeting the impending formation of an "International of Oppressed Peoples" to fight Sovietism.

In his Assembly speech, Ramadier assailed De Gaulle as a modern "Caesar" whose policies threatened civil war, and tangled with the Communists in a tense debate with irate deputies screaming insults and waving their fists at each other in the most tumultous scenes witnessed here in many years.

The National Assembly is scheduled to act Thursday on Ramadier's demand for a vote of confidence.

Pandemonium broke out in the police-guarded chamber after Ramadier had warned that insufficient Marshall Plan aid would cause "all our industry" to be closed down, and Communist Secretary Jacques Duclos rose to answer him.

Duclos charged that Ramadier "wanted to obtain thanks from Washington by taking to your masters there the death certificate of French communism" and that "the dollar potentate gave you your orders."

Ramadier jumped to his feet and shouted, "We have received no orders from anyone. No power can give us any orders except the National Assembly."

Duclos Assails America

But Duclos went on with his attack, and was interrupted by other deputies who screamed at him "Petkov, Petkov," a reminder of the execution of Nicola Petkov, Peasant Party leader, by the pro-Communist government of Bulgaria.

When Duclos declared United States Secretary of State Marshall wanted to "mortgage the future of France" and that "American imperialism wants to dominate the universe," Ramadier again interrupted, shouting:

"It is not possible to let a speaker say the government has sold our interest to a foreign country. It is not possible to let a speaker declare a friendly republic is nourishing ambitions, when that country says aid yourself, do all you can and if it is not enough we will help you. You have no right to make such statements without proof. I order you to bring the proofs . . . or shut up."

Statement Applauded

All except the Communists applauded, but Duclos declared the government even was contemplating giving control of the French nationalized railways to the United States as collateral.

A moment later a mass of shouting, threatening Rightists and Communists rushed into the semi-circle in front of the rostrum when Duclos charged that Andre Mutter, a Rightist, had been liberated from a German concentration camp by the German Secret Police.

The uproar was quieted only after 15 minutes, when Duclos finally changed his statement to: "Monsieur Mutter, who was liberated from a German prison camp, and I will not say by whom."

Attlee Asked to Intercede In Dispute, London Hears

London, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—Prime Minister Clement Attlee received an urgent cable today from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India asking his cooperation in settling the India-Pakistan dispute over battle-torn Kashmir state, an authoritative source said.

Hagerstown Road Job Attracts Only One Bid

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—Bester-Long, Inc., of Hagerstown was the only bidder today on a State roads commission project calling for surfacing 4.3 miles of the Hagerstown-Williamsport road.

F. L. Houser of College Park was low bidder on a project for surfacing about one half a mile of the Dr. Fox's road starting at the Baltimore-Washington blvd. in Prince Georges County. Houser's offer was $19,769.

The next two bidders were William A. Harding of Lansdowne, $19,955.54, and S. T. Asher, Jr. & Sons, Inc., of Annapolis, $23,340.

India Chiefs, Jinnah to Discuss Kashmir

New Delhi, Oct. 28 (AP).—Government sources said tonight top officials of India will fly to Lahore to confer with Pakistan Governor General M. A. Jinnah of the tense situation between the two now dominions brought about by the decision of predominantly Moslem Kashmir to accede to India.

The informants said Governor General Lord Louis Mountbatten and Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru would fly to Lahore tomorrow at the invitation of Jinnah.

Kashmir's decision to join the Hindu dominion of India was disclosed after India had sent a battalion of Sikhs to help repel a force of invading Pathan tribesmen from the northwest frontier province in Pakistan.

Last word was that the Kashmir state forces and the Sikh reinforcements had stopped the invaders at Baramula, where a mountain pass opens into the famed Vale of Kashmir.

Nicol Smith, an American author-lecturer who returned after a 45-day tour of western Tibet, said he had learned that four Russian agents had been arrested recently in an area which was part of Kashmir. Kashmir adjoins Russia.

Kashmir's accession to India does not mean that the Hindu Maharajah Sir Hari Singh has signed away his throne.

Skinny Safecracker Leaves Bank's Money

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—A thin man sometime last night went in and out of a window 10 inches wide but failed to get into two strong boxes at the Clifton Savings Bank.

The would-be safecracker had broken the combination off the vault, forced its inside gate and smashed the combinations of the two strong boxes. Bank officials could find nothing missing.

Gromyko Demands Delay on Korea

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 28.—United States proposals for Korean independence, hamstrung for almost two years by the Soviets, today met another Russian demand for postponement.

Andrei Gromyko opposed immediate discussion of the American resolution by the United Nations' Political Committee until "real representatives from northern and southern Korea" who are not "appointees of military authorities" can be invited to participate.

Gromyko also proposed that American and Russian troops leave Korea by the end of this year.

His proposals came immediately after John Foster Dulles introduced the American resolution asking that:

1. The occupying powers hold elections before next March 31, under United Nations observation, to choose representatives for a national assembly which will form a government.

2. Armies of the United States and Russia be withdrawn immediately after formation of the Korean government.

Dulles presented a long statement of the woes that have befallen American efforts to obtain agreement with the Soviets; of the innumerable excuses that have prevented formation of a single government for the two zones.

The American proposal, he said, is based on the assumption that democratic government in Korea would be based on the proportion of people in each zone. The American zone, predominantly agricultural, contains two thirds of the population.

Although he made no mention of the reported 150,000 Russian-trained Korean troops in the northern zone, Dulles added:

"We believe any Korean government established must, if it is to be more than a sham, have complete control over any armed Korean bodies which may exist or be brought into being. We believe that when the Soviet and United States forces are withdrawn, no military equipment of any kind should be left behind which is not under the effective control of the Korean national government."

Gromyko claimed the American proposal was "unjustified and unlawful" in being brought before the United Nations. The United States Government, he said, had refused to reach an agreement based on the understanding reached in Moscow in 1946. That agreement recomemnded a five-year trusteeship for Korea under a joint commission.

The Soviet proposal for immediate evacuation of troops, made originally in Korea a few days after Secretary Marshall notified the United Nations of the American decision on Korea, "provides the most radical and simplest solution," Gromyko declared.

The United States was supported by Sir Alexander Cadogan of Great Britain. The Soviet proposal for inviting Koreans to the discussion is correct in principle, said Cadogan, but presents "very grave and insuperable difficulties. They couldn't be brought to New York in time for this session."

Besides, he added, there was a question as to which of the Koreans were truly representative of their country.

Cadogan made a pointed intimation of Soviet conduct in the Balkans with his objection to the Soviet statement that fair elections could not be held in the presence of foreign troops.

"Several elections," he said, "have taken place in these circumstances in other countries and have been accepted by many as valid."

Herbert V. Evatt asked that the United States and Russia attempt to iron out their disagreements during this Assembly on Korea and agree on some plan. But the American delegation, after the meeting, declared it had no hope and would make no further attempt to reach agreement on Korea with Russia.

An attempt to throw the entire proposal into the waste basket was begun by Dr. Oscar Lange of Poland, who said the question did not belong before the United Nations. He was supported by Vladimir Popovic of Yugoslavia—and by no other speaker today. But a vote is expected tomorrow.

Marshall to Return To Capital Today

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Secretary of State Marshall is transferring his headquarters back to Washington tomorrow after six weeks as head of the United States delegation to the United Nations.

Official American sources said the move was due to necessary preparations for next month's special session of Congress and the meeting of the Big Four Foreign Ministers at London, November 25.

U. S. Envoy Abets Chinese Liberals

Stuart Intercedes for League Allegedly Aiding Red Revolt

Nanking, China, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—United States Ambassador John Leighton Stuart interceded today in behalf of the Liberal Democratic League, banned by the Chinese government for allegedly aiding the Communists.

Dr. Stuart urged the Chinese government to hold "an immediate public trial under the laws of the Republic" for any league member charged with abetting the Communist rebellion.

He made the statement following a conference this morning with Dr. Lo Lung-chi, American-educated Democratic League leader and close friend of Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

Before the conference, Dr. Lo told newsmen he believed his life was in danger and he was considering asking the American embassy for refuge. An embassy spokesman, however, said no such request was made.

Dr. Lo and other league leaders were placed under "house arrest" last night and league headquarters were shut down.

At 9:30 a. m. today, secret police suddenly were withdrawn from the homes of League leaders.

Li denied all charges against the league and challenged the government to back up its accusations with facts. He said Dr. Stuart had interceded for the league "since the beginning of the month."

Banning of the league, which is supported by students, workers, Shanghai businessmen, most American-educated Chinese and other liberal and leftist elements, came less than a month before China's first scheduled national elections, November 21-23.

Unless the ban is lifted, only the small Young China party and the Democratic Socialists will oppose the all-powerful Kuomintang in the elections.

Interior Minister Chang accused three league leaders—Lo Pin-chi, Kung Chung-chow and Li Yin-feng—of helping the Communists directly. Lo was said to have aided Communists forces in Manchuria, Kung was accused of "instigating a revolt" in Shensi Province and Li was charged with organizing armed rebels in Szechwan province.

Police Station No Place To Slap Your Wife

Fort Wayne, Ind. (U.P.)—Walter Kamphues, 32, will be more careful where he is when he picks a fight with his wife next time.

Police reported that an argument led to physical violence when the Kamphues were going home in a cab early in the morning. The cab driver stopped under the police station windows.

The desk sergeant said police came out the door in time to see Kamphues slap his wife.

Man, Charged in Wife's Death, Found Insane

Henry T. Wright, 73, of 913 Perry pl. ne., charged with first degree murder in the slaying of his wife, was found of unsound mind in a lunacy hearing yesterday before Associate Justice Edward M. Curran.

Wright was indicted September 16 for allegedly shooting to death his wife, Lulu Belle, 49 at their home June 3. Yesterday's hearing was held at the request of the Government.

Sociable Squirrel Joins Lake Fishing Party

Milwaukee (U.P.)—Fred Dudley, Henry Schwab and Andrew Naviarcyk stake their reputations on the truth of this story.

While fishing at Pewaukee Lake they were joined by a squirrel which swam out to their boat and crawled aboard up the outboard motor.

The animal sat quietly for two hours. As soon as the fishermen pulled ashore, the squirrel hopped out of the boat and scampered away.

Pius Urges Peace Efforts in U. N. By Small Nations

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—Pope Pius urged smaller nations today to use their voice in the United Nations to promote a just and worthy peace.

The Pope said mankind must collaborate with the United Nations "even though there are many signs in the organization which show that its aims are destined to remain for a long time 'a voice in the wilderness.'"

He spoke in Spainsh to Antonio Alvarez Vidaurre, new Salvador Minister to the Vatican, who presented his credentials at the Pope's summer palace.

Women Can Help Men Suffering From Backache

Don't let your men-folk or your family feel tired, run-down or suffer from Backache, Getting Up Nights, Bladder Weakness, Burning Passages, Leg Pains, Circles Under Eyes, Nervousness, or Rheumatic Pains, due to non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles, without trying Cystex.

This great medicine, a doctor's formula, has helped thousands of sufferers for over 20 years. Usually the very first dose of Cystex starts to work immediately to help you in these 3 ways: 1. Helps nature remove irritating excess acids, poisonous wastes and certain germs. 2. This cleansing action helps nature alleviate many pains, aches, soreness and stiffness. 3. Helps reduce night and day calls, thus promoting better sleep.

Get Cystex from your druggist today. Give it a fair trial as directed on package. Money back guaranteed unless Cystex satisfies you.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS
Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

WHY DOES FOOD COST SO MUCH?

The crisis of the world at the moment is in the American grocery store. We certainly need to do all we can about it. To do so intelligently, it seems to us that we need to know all we can of what got us into this trouble. We are sure we do not know and understand all the causes, but here are some observations and suggestions we feel are the ones most likely to be helpful in this disturbing situation.

HUNGRY WESTERN EUROPE

Europe's bread basket is in the eastern part, beyond the Iron Curtain and useful only to Russia, who is believed by our Government to want only chaos in western Europe. America is the only source of aid to western Europe until North Africa and other new areas can be brought into food production.

We have been sending tremendous quantities of foodstuffs to western Europe, and now it appears a great deal more is urgently needed. Whether we meet this crisis is up to the citizens of this country through their Congress. The problem is one of the greatest challenges of our times. But in any event the shipments made to date have been a great drain on our supply here.

MORE MOUTHS TO FEED HERE AT HOME

Since 1939 the population of the United States alone has increased by twelve and one-half million people — a jump of almost ten per cent. And all of them want to be, and deserve to be, well-fed Americans by our standards.

EVERYONE WANTS TO LIVE BETTER

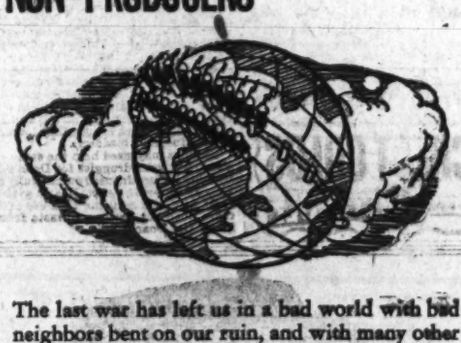
Not only are there more of us, but each of us wants to live better. We already have the highest standard of living ever seen anywhere in the world — even compared to prewar United States — but we still want to eat more and we still want to have the better cuts of meat, the scarce and more pleasant items that are more expensive. And as a nation we are eating more and better food than before the war, despite the high food prices and shortages caused by the high demand. The average American is eating 153 pounds of meat this year, against 133 pounds prewar — and it's better meat. The packers report that 75 per cent of the less attractive cuts of meat are unwanted on the average American table.

MORE MONEY IN PEOPLE'S HANDS

Everybody feels poor after expenses and taxes these days. Yet the fact remains that people are putting more money in circulation than ever before. They are not only spending their current income, which is at an all-time high; too many are also dipping into their wartime savings because they feel it is necessary to do so, or because they feel it is no longer vital to save against the inevitable rainy day.

But savings during the wartime were made out of money that was artificially created and then paid for goods that were shot away or otherwise consumed in war. Ghost goods and empty warehouses are all we have on call against those savings. When, in a sellers' market such as this, we add some or all of those savings to our present income, and try to use the total to buy goods, what do we do? We, as a nation, simply insist on paying that much more for what we could buy with our current income alone, if we would restrain ourselves and act as prudently in our own individual interests as we do in ordinary, rather than flush, times. We as a nation ought to be able to buy our current output with our current income, and we can if we only will.

AFTERMATH OF WAR — MORE NON-PRODUCERS



The last war has left us in a bad world with bad neighbors bent on our ruin, and with many other bad consequences of five years of destruction. It has left the world in two armed camps, with the United States the principal support of one whole camp. We are required to maintain large military forces scattered all over the world. These essential military forces are non-producers of food but they consume great quantities of agricultural products, as do those who help them and those whom they support.

Also, as an aftermath of the war, there are the millions of veterans in schools and hospitals and there are still more than a million extra civilian employees on the Government payroll than there were prewar.

OTHER PRODUCTS SCARCE

Goods made of metals and other ingredients used in war have been scarce for seven years — and during that time the dollar income of individuals has reached the highest level of all times. Because these goods have been scarce — and still are — too many of us have developed the habit of spending a greater portion of income in an effort to get more and better food. This was certainly a worthy objective, and it worked up to a certain point. But the pressures of the extra money supply were finally concentrated on foods to such an extent that black markets developed disgracefully and rationing and price controls broke down completely. You will recall that President Truman voluntarily removed almost the whole of the remaining controls in November, 1946, when he felt the election that month had indicated the public had become convinced the controls were hindering supply and making real prices worse all the time, despite what any official prices were.

PRODUCTION UP, BUT—

The farmers did a heroic job during the war, aided by new mechanization to free manpower for the armed forces. Since the war, production has continued to rise some, but not enough to cover our needs and the needs of those we are trying to help. It must be kept in mind that our food supply here is more than ample to satisfy far more than any reasonable needs and desires; it's the foreign aid that makes our supply seem short. There is still need for every garden and every other bit of help from everyone in increasing the food supply.

PRICES DEPEND ON ALL OF US

The inescapable conclusion we gather from all this is that present prices are the result of supply for humans failing to meet human demand under very unusual and unfortunate circumstances. We as a nation have been placed in a position before and during the war where we felt unusual practices were wise and necessary in the purchase of farm products by the Government and in the support of farm prices by the Government. Too many of us, in turn, as individuals have developed careless, wasteful, and expensive habits in the food field as well as in other activities—something we apparently always do when we are in a flush sellers' market for our services and our products.

It's a convenient habit sometimes to blame some of the cause of any price rise on unusual profits, but in the case of food prices this seems particularly not to apply. People tend to set 10 per cent of sales as the expected return that would influence them in investing their savings in a business of their own. They seem to feel 10 per cent is a fair average for a business to make with the best usually doing some better and the less able ones usually doing less well — down to the breaking point. General Electric, for instance, made around 7 per cent on its sales during the first nine months of this year, whereas last year the leading food concerns in manufacturing and distribution made less than half that—they actually having averaged 3.4 per cent for 1946 and 2.6 per cent for the ten-year period before that. Accordingly, we may fairly judge that over 96 per cent of the price of food is due to influences other than the profits of leading corporations in the field.

The food-price situation seems to have resulted from the war and from our own acts and those of our agents in the Government. The solution in the main seems to depend on how intelligently we act as individuals here at home and how intelligently we help our Government to act here and abroad in food matters.

WHAT WE ALL CAN DO

Here are some of the all-too-few things we can each do to help others—and ourselves. These suggestions are based on the statements of Democrats and Republicans, of union heads, the clergy, and business leaders, of President Truman and his Citizens Food Committee.

URGE REALISTIC ACTION

We are asked to urge our Congressman to be extremely realistic in acting on the best information the Government can get and to be sure we give only the foreign aid we sensibly should, and not anything extra that may do us more harm than good here and abroad. We are asked to urge our Congressman to satisfy himself that the Government's operations in buying food and subsidizing food prices do not go beyond what is wise and good for all the people. We are asked to urge our Congressman to rid the Government payroll of all non-producers who are not absolutely essential to the real best interest of the whole public.

OPERATE OUR OWN CONSERVATION PROGRAM

We are asked to engage in an individual conservation program at home and at each meal; to waste less, clean our plates, watch the garbage can, have only left-overs one day a week. Estimates run to 22 million tons a year as to what we waste—contributing to shortage of supply and high prices here and to lack of sufficient food to starving people abroad.

BUY ONLY WHAT WE NEED

We are asked to substitute for scarce and expensive foods wherever we can. No meat on Tuesdays. No eggs and poultry on Thursdays. Save a slice of bread a day. A given amount of food value from corn costs about four times as much in the form of meat as when eaten as direct corn products in meal or cereals. And remember to look for the cheaper cuts and to find ways of making them agreeably edible. There is some self-denial being urged on us here, to be sure, but it's nothing compared with what others are suffering as a result of the war and its aftermath of confused thinking.

HELP CHECK INFLATION BY SAVING MONEY

We are asked to try to retard the spending of our savings and to try to resume making some new savings both for our own good in the future and for our own good now in taking the pressure off prices of food and other products. So let's try to put away in savings the money we don't spend as a result of our joining in this national food conservation program. Let's not let the money so saved be added to the pressures already on prices in the non-food field. A little self-denial now will help make prices correct themselves and will make our savings have a greater buying power later.

Wallace Speech Was Jolt to Hopes for United Support of Foreign Policy, Byrnes Says

every point of view for me to continue in office, even temporarily. Therefore, if it is not completely clear in your own mind that Mr. Wallace should be asked to refrain from criticizing the foreign policy of the United States while he is a member of your Cabinet, I must ask you to accept my resignation immediately. At this critical time, whoever is Secretary of State must be known to have the undivided support of your Administration and, so far as possible, of the Congress.

"I shall, of course, remain here until my successor arrives. In case you are not ready to make that appointment promptly, you can, of course, appoint some one other than the Secretary of State to head the United States delegation at the peace conference."

Message to Truman

THE FOLLOWING DAY I was informed that the President wished to talk with me over the telephone. We had difficulty getting a clear signal and finally I was told that a third party was on the channel and the telephone company's operator was unable to "clear the line" for our conversation. I then asked the President if we might arrange for a teletype conversation. He kindly consented. There is a teletype instrument in the White House, and one in our Embassy in Paris. I went to the message room of our Embassy and dictated to the operator this statement:

"I realize that in reaching the agreement announced by Mr. Wallace you were trying to reconcile the difference in views held by us on the one hand and by Mr. Wallace on the other.

"But Mr. Wallace's last statement leaves the representatives of our Government abroad, as well as other governments, in more doubt than ever as to just what American foreign policy will be.

"Mr. Wallace has reiterated that he stands by his New York speech which he does not deny was intended to be critical of our foreign policy. There is little difference in a member of the Cabinet issuing to the press statements that he stands by his criticism of your foreign policy and making such criticisms from a platform.

"Mr. Wallace has promised to refrain from speaking until the present Paris Peace Conference concludes, but the form of his statement indicates that he will continue to press publicly his own ideas on foreign policy which differ from your ideas and that you recognize his right as a member of your Cabinet to do so.

"When the Administration itself is divided on its own foreign policy, it cannot hope to convince the world that the American people have a foreign policy.

"The position of the delegation in this particular conference is not restored by Mr. Wallace's agreement not to speak during this conference when he remains a member of your official family and indicates in effect that he will renew his criticism of your present foreign policy as soon as the confernce is over. We are promised only a moratorium from criticism of your policies by your own Administration.

"The world is today in doubt not only as to American foreign policy, but as to your foreign policy.

"This particular peace conference is only a stage in the peace-making process. The conference makes only recommendations to the Council of Foreign Ministers which upon the adjournment of the conference will meet to draft the final treaties. Then while the Foreign Ministers are at the most critical stage of their negotiations, Mr. Wallace can resume his public criticisms of our policies and says he will do so.

"Moreover, this conference deals only with some of the treaties, and the making of peace with Germany, Austria and Japan is still ahead of us. This conference is only a start and nothing done will have a finality if there is not continuity in our foreign policy.

"You and I are confronted with most serious problems entirely disassociated from the conference and demanding unity at home.

"When the representatives of other governments know that as soon as the conference ends we will again have conflicting statements made by your Secretary of State and your Secretary of Commerce, your delegation here cannot contribute much to the making of peace. As matter of fact, since these attacks upon us by a member of the Cabinet, our efforts have been greatly handicapped.

"When the conference ends and the Council of Foreign Ministers meets to make the final decision, each day I would be confronted with statements of Mr. Wallace in conflict with views expressed by me. I would then have to insist upon being relieved. It is far better for the Administration to let us come home now, rather than for us to return October 23, by which date we hope the conference will adjourn.

"If Wallace is influenced by any ill feeling toward me it is possible that if you accept my resignation he might be willing to support your foreign policies or at least refrain from attacking such policies.

"To me the important thing is to try and restore confidence in our policies.

"I sincerely hope that when you appoint some one you can announce that you are wholeheartedly and undividedly behind the foreign policy of the United States as it has been heretofore determined by you and as it is being carried out; that our foreign policy is an American foreign policy and not the policy of any party or faction; that no change in American foreign policy is desired or contemplated by you. If for any reason you wish to modify your policy in any way, I hope that whatever policy you determine upon you will announce it as the American policy to which we are going to adhere, and that while a private citizen can express his views in opposition, that no member of your Cabinet can express views in conflict with your policies.

"I have been urging on every Foreign Minister with whom I have talked that the American policy as fixed by you was a permanent bipartisan policy and they could rely upon it that it would not be shifting from time to time and it would not even shift if there were a change in parties because for the first time we had the cooperation of the Republicans. Any statement that in six weeks the policy will be re-examined and discussed with Mr. Wallace whose statements have caused such consternation will cause these Foreign Ministers to doubt the stability of our policy.

"I respectfully submit that if Mr. Molotov believed that on October 23 there would be a re-examination of the question of permitting Wallace to again attack your policy he would derive great comfort. No other member of the Cabinet would claim the right or be allowed to criticize your policy. The fact that it is not decided now that a man who stays in the Cabinet must support your policy is bound to hurt us. The work of our delegation is at a standstill. Representatives of the other delegations kept our delegation busy asking whether the administration will permit Wallace to make another speech attacking us. These governments would never permit a member of the Cabinet to do such a thing and they cannot understand how we would permit it unless his views were shared or there was a serious division of sentiment among the people. I do not want to ask you to do anything that would force Mr. Wallace out of the Cabinet. However, I do not think that any man who professes any loyalty to you would so seriously impair your prestige and the prestige of the Government with the nations of the world. This is particularly true, if you showed him telegrams such as we have received from Greece. You and I spent 15 months building a bipartisan policy. We did a fine job convincing the world that it was a permanent policy upon which the world could rely. Wallace destroyed it in a day."

Confidence Restored

It is not proper for me to quote the President's statements. But I think it is proper to say that, as a result of the conversation, I knew he did not intend to change his policies or leave any doubt about his views. He did not tell me what action he would take. However, the following day the President settled the matter in a manner satisfactory, I hope, to the overwhelming majority of the people of the United States.

With the resignation of Secretary Wallace, confidence in the American policy was restored. Senators Connally and Vandenberg continued to serve in support of our foreign policy with unswerving loyalty. The Wallace incident took place during a national campaign which resulted in the shifting of the majority rule in Congress from the Democrats to the Republicans. Senator Connally met opposition in his primary election, but would not abandon his work in Paris where he was helping his country and come home to help himself. Senator Vandenberg, who also was a candidate for reelection, not only took no part in the campaign but was barely able to get back to Michigan to vote; he urged other Republicans to support the bipartisan foreign policy.

The results of efforts to maintain a bipartisan foreign policy were clearly indicated by the overwhelming approval of the Senate in its vote on June 5, 1947, ratifying the five treaties thus far concluded. When I was informed of the vote, I could not help but recall again the unhappy months after World War I when President Wilson struggled with a disgruntled and determined Senate that finally defeated his efforts for peace. And I renewed my hope that never again would our policy makers repeat President Wilson's mistake; that hereafter the responsible leaders of both parties would be kept informed of our policies from the beginning of their formation to their ultimate conclusion.

Probably no non-Russian statesman has had Mr. Byrnes' opportunities to study the Soviet Foreign Minister, V. M. Molotov, in action. A former trial lawyer with experience in all three branches of the United States Government, Mr. Byrnes admits frankly that no experience in his life had prepared him for negotiation with Mr. Molotov. In tomorrow's installment of "Speaking Frankly" Mr. Byrnes gives a profile of the Soviet leader, as well as an estimate of the subtle relationship between Molotov and Generalissimo Stalin.

15 Months of Work Destroyed by Wallace

The Byrnes note to Truman on Wallace: "You and I spent 15 months building a bipartisan policy. We did a fine job convincing the world that it was a permanent policy upon which the world could rely. Wallace destroyed it in a day."—From today's installment.

Fuel Truck, Streetcar Collision Burns 11

Cincinnati, Oct. 28 (AP).—Eleven persons were burned or injured, nine seriously, early today when a streetcar was sprayed with gasoline and was destroyed by fire after a collision with an automobile trailer hauling thousands of gallons of the fuel, Fire Marshal Durward George reported.

With the front door of the streetcar blocked by flames, the 15 passengers and motorman crowded through the rear exit or broke windows and climbed to safety.

President Truman endorses your Community Chest

"in the name of common humanity!"

I want to salute and thank the millions of Americans who will be generously giving of their time, their devotion and their money to the Red Feather services of the nation, through the Community Chest campaigns this fall.

The Community Chest is a thorough-going American idea that wins a warm response from all of us. We can be sure that our nation is sound at the core when citizens unite whole-heartedly and of their own free will to build the good community in their own home towns. And that's what happens in a Chest campaign. Here people of all faiths, political parties, national and racial backgrounds forget the many small things that divide them. They remember the one big thing that unites them; their common humanity.

In a Chest campagn we capture some of the very elements of unity and good will toward which the United Nations are even now patiently working. As we prove that these words, unity and good will, really work in our own communities we can more confidently expect them to work in the world.

With full confidence in the success of this project from which everybody benefits, I am

Very sincerely yours,

Harry Truman

Patton Book Hits Strategy

take Hammelburg. Otherwise, my operations were, to me, strictly satisfactory.

"In every case, practicaly throughout the campaign, I was under wraps from the higher command. This may have been a good thing as, perhaps, I am too impetuous. However, I do not believe I was, and feel that had I been permitted to go all out, the war would have ended sooner and more lives would have been saved."

The journal reveals that in early March, 1945, Patton asked to be relieved of his command if he had to go on the defensive as ordered by Bradley.

"I told him," Patton wrote, "that I was the oldest leader in age and in combat experience in the U. S. Army, and that if I had to go on the defensive, I would ask to be relieved. He stated I owed too much to the troops and would have to stay on."

Patton's memoirs also reveal a strategem he employed to prevent troops being detached from his command: when he heard of a possible detachment or feared one, he would commit the unit so it would be in battle when engaged for. He employed this device a number of times and wrote of it proudly.

Revealed as Man With Mission

Couched in blunt, vigorous and salty language, Patton's journal clearly is that of a man with a mission. His frustrations were not annoyances but catastrophes; his decisions were not those of a unit in a great machine, but broadly decisive.

He must have been difficult for his superiors, a pain to his associates and a holy terror to his subordinates. He writes bitterly of his over-ridings by Eisenhower and Bradley, sourly of arguments with those on his own level and jauntily of discipling subordinates who did not meet his ideas of aggressiveness.

Of one armored division commander whom he relieved, Patton wrote that he "came and tried to explain why he was no good. I offered him a lesser command in another division, but he told me he needed 48 hours to consider it. I did not tell him so, but I realized that any man who could not make up his mind in less than 48 hours was not fit to command troops in battle."

Noved Christmas Thought

In the same vein, he wrote of needling a division staff trying to find on the maps a crossing of the Seine. Patton told them he "had just waded across it and that it was not over 2 feet deep . . . and asked them why in hell they had not gone down to the river personally. They learned the lesson, and from then on were a very great division."

On another occasion, when a corps commander asked how much he should worry about his flank, "I told him that depended on how nervous he was by nature."

Patton's love of battle runs through his narrative in brief accounts of his own exploits among the forward foxholes and in such statements as this, written of the period during his brilliant change of front to the north during the Battle of the Bulge:

"Christmas dawned clear and cold; lovely weather for killing Germans, although the thought seemed somewhat at variance with the spirit of the day."

Denies Swimming to Assault

He took occasion, however, to deny the story that he had swam the Sauer River to lead an assault of the Fifth Division. Actually, he wrote, he and Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy crossed on a partly submerged footbridge and appeared among the troops in a heavy smoke screen. The appearance of so many stars in such a place might have led any infantry soldier to believe they had materialized from ectoplasm.

The central theme of Patton's journal is his own desire to attack and keep attacking, and his belief that attack is the only way to fight as long as supplies hold out, and his disgust with delays and defensive warfare. He pointed out that neither the Maginot Line nor the Siegfried Line offered any considerable resistance to troops who attacked with vigor and determination.

"Pacifists," he wrote, "would do well to study the Siegfried and Maginot lines, remembering that these defenses were forced, that Troy fell, that the walls of Hadrian succumbed, that the Great Wall of China was futile, and that, by the same token, the mighty areas which are alleged to defend us ca nalso be circumvented by a resolue and ingenous opponent. In war, the only sure defense is offense, and the efficiency of offense depends on the warlike souls of those conducting it."

The version of Patton's story published in the Saturday Evening Post is condensed from a book to be issued soon by Houghon, Mifflin Co. As a narrative of the brilliant commander's campaign it suffers from editing so close that any reader not a student of the European war will find difficulty following its episodes.

As a quick insight into the nature of George Smith Patton, it is clarity itself.

HALLOWE'EN PARTYING, always a big event for Washington citizenry, should fill the downtown niteries a la New Year's Eve. Two of the biggest All Hallows shindigs will probably take place in the Mayflower Lounge and the immense Neptune Room. There'll be a modest $1 couvert at the Mayflower, noisemakers and so on . . . At the Neptune Room there'll be no minimum, no couvert, all the traditional Halloween trimmings.

Mimi Kellermann
At the Balalaika

Football fans will appreciate the "Gridiron Dance" being done at the Casino Royal by the Mayo Brothers and the Elaine Shaffer Girls. College football songs, too, by Danny Sullivan.

DIVING GIRL'S SCION. Mimi Kellerman, provocative new star of the Balalaika, is the niece of Annette Kellerman whom white-whiskered oldsters will remember as the famed "Diving Venus" and the first gal to flaunt a one-piece bathing suit . . . Mimi's last appearance in Washington was at the National Theater as the premier dancer of "Passing Show of '47."

THE PROMOTION TERRIFIC. Duke Jacobs, new tub thumper of the Club Cairo, has been shooting a series of mysterious missives at nitery editors. They were dimes (tips), heel taps (tap dancing), a top. It all added up to a tip that Eleanor Powell, opening at the Cairo tonight, is tops in taps . . . After this, we expected the postman would lug in Eleanor Powell wrapped in cellophane. But, no. The climax will be an Eleanor Powell dinner for the press tonight.

Merry-Land's Ko-Ko-Nuts have scored a double header in the new issue of Hi-Notes, musicians' mag. Their picture is spread across the cover, also appears on an inside page.

THE PRODIGY GROWS UP. Ted Rolfe, personable Boston Irisher who makes so well with songs and piano at the Brown Derby, was once one of those awesome little monsters—a child prodigy. At age 8 he played a "long hair" recital. At high school he dropped piano playing entirely until his senior year when he organized a band. These junior swing men burned up New England and started Rolfe on his present career as solo entertainer. He's also written a couple of songs, "After It's Over" and "One Foot in Heaven," which have been recorded by Vaughn Monroe.

"MISS RHEINGOLD" REGISTERS. Bang-up hit of the new Fiesta show is Gloria French, a former "Miss Rheingold" and prettier than most magazine covers. She's a platinum blonde, radiant in a white dress with a bustle behind and practically nothing in front. As an extra bonus to all this loveliness, Miss French sings and clowns charmingly. Other and clowns charmingly . . . Other good acts are those of the handsome Arlos who almost make a ballet out of acrobatics; Dancer Deanna Lure who's reasonably like her name . . . Comedian Barney Grant shells corn all over the place. If you care for hillbillies, he's your dish.

'Drunk' Ward May Open

Supt. Robert J. Barrett declaring his satisfaction with the new system and Health Officer George C. Ruhland promising to "do our level best" to cooperate in handling drunks at the hospital.

Meeting with the Commissioners were Barrett and Ruhland, Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, Gallinger Hospital Superintendent Alvin R. Sweeney and other Health Department and hospital officials.

The conference was prompted by Dr. Ruhland's Monday letter to Commissioner Guy Mason which said that little could be done to handle drunks at Gallinger until additional personnel and space are obtained.

Mason Accuses Ruhland

Mason glared at Dr. Ruhland across the table in Commissioner John Russell Young's office and repeated his Monday accusation that the doctor was showing "lack of cooperation."

"Here you let people die in cells and on the street and don't want to do anything about it," Mason charged.

"I will not admit to that," Dr. Ruhland replied sharply. He denied the hospital had ever examined 426 of the 600 persons police said were turned away from hospitals because they were drunk. Of the remainder, he said, 48 were admitted to Gallinger and 151 investigated.

Barrett said he had never claimed that all of the 600 persons were turned away from Gallinger Hospital. Many of them were refused admittance at other hospitals, he explained. "We knew it was no use to take them to Gallinger."

Mason said he wasn't holding anybody responsible for recent deaths of apparently drunk persons after they left the hospital. But when persons are ruled drunk and are later found to "have coronary or pneumonia, the onus is all on us," he added.

"I attribute these cases to a lack of sufficient diagnosis at the hospital," he declared.

Later, Mason remarked to Ruhland: "You haven't even a friendly mental attitude toward the drunk."

"I must really resent that, Commissioner," Dr. Ruhland replied. "My letter certainly wasn't a categorical refusal. My intention was to make plain our position. We have no housing facilities for the intoxicated to just sleep it off."

It Looks as If Rickey Will Give Durocher a Job

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

STRICTLY FROM MUNGER—Penn-Navy football relations were not improved by the circumstances of the last touchdown by Penn in the 21-0 licking handed the Midshipmen at Franklin Field Saturday. No accusations have been made against Penn Coach George Munger, but at least one Navy man says Penn poured it on unnecessarily.

POVICH

Penn was leading 14-0, with only eight seconds to play and the ball was on Navy's 9-yard line. The clock was threatening to run out before the Quakers got off another play when all of a sudden Jim Conway of Penn went to the ground apparently writhing in pain. The referee called time, the clock was stopped and Conway was borne from the field on a stretcher.

Thus gaining time by the only way they could—an injury, real or faked—Penn scored its third touchdown on the next play, a 9-yard pass. With the clock running, neither team could have put the ball in play again, so Penn was risking no chances of losing the ball game.

What pained Navy though, was the sequence in front of Penn's bench at the final gun. The supposedly injured Conway leaped to his feet, went into a happy dance, and was gleefully backslapped by Munger—according to my Navy informant.

SPIRIT OF THE RULES—Referee Bill Halloran was the man on the spot when Penn gained the advantage of the rules to get the time out that would permit one more play. The heat is always on the referee in that situation, it is pointed out by Jim Tatum, Maryland coach.

"Halloran could have made the injured player get up and walk off the field if he thought it was an attempt to fake an injury," said Tatum, "but the referee usually stops short of that."

There isn't a football coach who wouldn't take advantage of the protection of the rules offer if it's wise to fake an injury, said Tatum. "It goes on all the time, and they're rarely penalized the half distance to the goal line for unsportsmanlike conduct."

Tatum pointed out that Munger may not have been trying to rub it in with Penn's last touchdown. "It could have been a legitimate injury. The fact that the player leaped off the stretcher at the end of the game could be meaningless. Football players and coaches can get pretty happy when they win a game."

NOTRE DAME DEPT.—Purdue's 14-7 upset of Illinois the other day came as no surprise to Notre Dame's football players, who called that shot after beating Purdue 31-0 earlier in the season.

When an assistant coach of the Irish told the Notre Dame players that they didn't look so hot after the Purdue game, they protested. "You should have been in there," they told him. "Purdue has a good team and a rough one. We were lucky to roll up that score."

This is the week when Frank Leahy must gear the Irish to the idea they must go all out to beat Navy on Saturday at Cleveland. Rain at South Bend the last two days has driven the Irish indoors, and Leahy has been orating on the need for them to be at their best, despite Navy's defeats by California, Columbia and Penn.

Leahy's tack this week is simple. "Don't believe what you hear about Navy's weaknesses. Believe what I tell you when I say that the Navy team that almost knocked off Army last year can beat you, too, if you don't play your best football game."

BASEBALL DEPT.—Joe McCarthy, the new manager of the Boston Red Sox, hasn't been to Boston since he got the job as Joe Cronin's successor, but he hasn't been idle at his Buffalo manor house. He's already made some changes that presage new faces on the Boston club.

Five of Cronin's pitchers are no longer with the Red Sox. It's significant that the releases were announced after McCarthy took over. Johnny Murphy was given a job with the Boston farm system, but McCarthy released outright Edgar Smith, Bill Zuber, Eli Klinger and Tommy Fine.

That's a pretty good shuffle by any manager. But it's typical McCarthy, who has very positive likes and dislikes. The interesting day will be when the temperamental Ted Williams has a brush with McCarthy. That could be the day when the big shuffle takes place.

Illinois Holds Key to Michigan's Glory

Big Nine's Top Game on Saturday Will Probably Decide Championship

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—When Michigan and Illinois lock horns in their traditional powder-keg rivalry at Champaign, Ill., Saturday, the undefeated Wolverines will be risking a potential triple-decked hunk of football glory.

It's a fair bet that if they hurdle the tough Illini, the Wolverines will march to:

1. Their first undisputed Big Nine title since 1933, with only Indiana, Wisconsin and Ohio State remaining to face.

2. A Rose Bowl trip, Michigan's first since Hurry-Up Yost's boys walloped Stanford, 49-0, in the 1902 inaugural of the New Year's Day classic.

3. And perhaps the mythical national championship, currently held by Notre Dame.

In the national AP football poll, Notre Dame and Michigan are running one-two and the feud, if the Wolverines can dispose of Illinois handily, probably will roar right down to the finish wire.

In the final analysis, it may be a comparison between the outcome of the Notre Dame-Southern California game on December 6 and the prospective Rose Bowl meeting betwen Southern California and Michigan which will determine the king of the collegiate gridiron this year.

All of which is peering too far into the future of a season already pock-marked with many developments and certainly, as far as Michigan is concerned, not taking into consideration one of the Wolverines' worst jinx opponents, the fightin' Illini.

The Illini are madder than hornets after getting their warpaint scrubbed off by Purdue last Saturday which will give psychologist Ray Eliot (remember the Rose Bowl game) all the fuel he needs to stoke up a red-hot team this Saturday.

Wolverine's Eye Rose Bowl Trip, And National Title After Victory

Illinois and Michigan have faced two mutual opponents, Pittsburgh and Minnesota.

The Wolverines trimmed Pitt, 69-0, while Illinois plodded to a 14-0 victory. However, against Minnesota, Illinois rolled up a 40-13 decision, compared with Michigan's close 13-6 shading of the Gophers last Saturday.

Gopher Coach Bernie Bierman has picked Michigan over Illinois, but apparently he is more impressed by the Wolverines' man-power than how his team fared statistically against the two contenders in Saturday's big collision.

Against the Gophers, the Illini gained 200 yards by rushing and pushed 132 yards through the air with 8 completions in 11 tries. In that game, sharpshooter Perry Moss had an amazing record of seven hits in seven tries.

Michigan, scoring both times against the Gophers on lightning thrusts, gained only 114 yards on the ground and 131 on 8 passes in 12 attempts.

Colonials, VPI Both Need Victory

A victory for either team in Friday night's contest between George Washington and VPI at Griffith Stadium would be especially welcome to the rival coaches, Skip Stahley and Jimmy Kitts.

Both are suffering from much the same troubles and their season records and team performances are almost parallel.

Each team is in the throes of a serious losing streak. The Colonials have dropped five in a row this season and the Gobblers, after winning their opener against Furman, have tasted nothing but defeat in four subsequent games.

Weak In Air

Most of the scoring against both teams has been accomplished through the air and both coaches are bearing down hard on their pass defenders.

Only last week VPI lost to Maryland as a result of a passing barrage by Vic Turyn which enabled the Terps to overcome a two-touchdown VPI lead.

As for GW, its weak pass defense has cost the Colonials at least four games. The Wake Forest contest was the most obvious in exposing the Colonials' failings against passes.

During the first half in which the GW line stopped every running play cold, Tom Fetzer, Wake Forest's ace thrower, found a glaring weakness in the defensive left halfback zone. No less than five Deacon touchdowns resulted from this blind spot, and Fetzer probed every time Wake Forest got the ball.

GW's other serious weakness has been its lack of a dependable passer. Frank Cavallo, Hank Bartelloni, Charlie Butler and Howie Williams have all tried throwing the ball, but with infrequent success.

However, Cavallo has been coming along nicely this week and Stahley will probably let him do most of the chucking. The loss of End Dick Koester, the squad's best pass receiver, didn't help matters, but the other ends are beginning to show more ability at grabbing the ball and the coaches are convinced that this may be the week for GW to shine.

Johnson Winners Receive Awards

Gold balls presented by The Washington Post will be awarded tonight to members of winning teams in the Walter Johnson Memorial baseball leagues the past season.

Players of four championship teams will appear on Bob Wolff's radio sports program over WINX at 6:15 o'clock. Commissioner Andy Farkas of the leagues will hand out the awards. The winning teams were Anacostia Eagles, Rosedale Indians, Banneker Yellow Jackets and Francis Bugs.

Irish in Bowl Rumor Denied

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 28 (AP).—A Notre Dame spokesman, commenting on persistent reports that the "fighting Irish" may consider a Sugar Bowl bid, said today that the school had no intention of lifting its ban against postseason football games.

The Notre Dame rumor is revived each season about this time when talk starts over possible selections for the New Orleans football classic for New Year's Day.

Stribling's Win Okayed

The decision which was awarded Ken Stribling over Johnny Walker because of a foul by Walker in Monday night's bout at Turner's Arena is thoroughly in accord with NBA procedure in most other States," Lieut. Col. Harvey L. Miller, District boxing commissioner announced yesterday.

Miller's announcement was in answer to many queries from local fans about the validity of such a decision. Many fans had claimed that bouts in other States could not be won on fouls.

Two instances of such procedure were cited by Miller. Petey Sarron won over Bennie Bass on a foul on August 27, 1934, and Andrew Lenglett was disqualified when he persistently fouled Marty Gallagher in a bout fought in New York on October 16, 1937.

Any time a boxer is fouled so badly that he cannot continue the fight, Miller added, the offender is automatically disqualified.

Mrs. Anderson Wins at Manor

Mrs. C. F. Anderson carded a 46—9—37 to win a nine-hole Ladies' Day tournament at Manor yesterday. A card of 51—13—38 gave Mrs. J. H. Nash a second-place tie with Mrs. R. D. Watson, who scored 44—6—38.

Another feature of Ladies' Day wa sthe election of officers. New chairman is Mrs. R. B. Zuber; vice chairman, Mrs. D. H. Hutchison; treasurer, Mrs. A. J. Loda, and secretary, Mrs. R. A. Haynes.

9 Touchdowns in 5 Games

Tommy Dean of Friends Is Running Opponents Dizzy

By Roger Walbarst
Post Reporter

THE DEAN OF the area prep school football players is a student at Sidwell Friends named Tommy.

He stands a good chance of scoring more points than any football player in the District.

Only 16 years old, Tommy Dean is playing his fourth year of football for Friends. And althugh he was outstanding, even as a 135-pound stripling at the age of 12, he is really coming into his own this year.

Already, in five games, Tommy has scored nine touchdowns and scored three extra points him-

Friends has pushed over 16 touchdowns in winning four of its five games, so Dean's feat of having a hand in 12 of these is worth yelling about.

Coach Tim Swett considers Tom a self-made athlete. He is the hardest worker on the squad. Never too tired to learn something new, Tom has improved his kicking until today he is one of the best punters in the city.

* * * *

"Four years ago he could only kick about 20-25 yards," Swett pointed out, "and today he averages 41 yards per try. He has gotten off several kicks of 60 yards in the air, which is exceptional for a prep school kid."

Tommy, who weighs 165 and plays fullback, has always been a good passer, but his running and kicking keep getting better each season.

Football isn't his only sport. He made the All-Prep basketball team last winter and was the second baseman on the Boys Club All-Star baseball team that easily defeated Brooklyn this summer.

* * * *

QUIET, MODEST and extremely well-liked by his teammates and fellow students, Tom was elected captain of the football team and secretary-treasurer of his class.

Son of Dr. Ben Dean, Tommy would like to enter the medical profession himself.

You Sort of Gather That Bell Just Isn't Interested

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (AP).—Bert Bell is "not interested."

The National Football League is "not interested."

But Admiral Jonas Ingram, commissioner of the All-America conference, says the public is—and wants a playoff between the two mapor pro grid circuits. Yesterday he tried again to interest the NFL.

NFL Commissioner Bell today bellowed "not interested."

A reported remarked that Ingram lauded Bell as a "pioneer" in the pro grid field.

"Not interested," was Bell's echoing comment in the telephone receiver.

"Commissioner Bell," the reporter asked, "Admiral Ingram says the AAC has four teams 'beter than anything the National League has.' What about it?

This time dead silence.

"But Mr. Bell," the reporter went on, "can't you say why your league won't meet the All-America conference in a playoff game? Surely . . .

"Not interested," Bell said dryly, then cut off the telephone conection.

Former Big Nine Grid Coach Dies

Hollywood, Oct. 28 (AP).—John R. Richards, 72, State director of finance under Gov. Colbert Olson and former football coach at Wisconsin and at Ohio State, died today at Hollywood Hospital of a heart block and complications.

New Haven's Freak Goal Trips Lions

Jean Lamirande fired a 30-foot shot that bounced past Goalie Gordie Bell for a freak goal to give the New Haven Ramblers a 3-2 victory over the Washington Lions before 1450 fans last night at Uline Arena.

Lamidande's shot was blocked from Bell's view by defenseman Bud Foley who was standing in front of the cage. The teams had finished two periods of play all even at 2-2.

The Lions, determined to hold on to their one point, first-place margin, wasted no time in getting out in front.

Defenseman Larry Archambault grabbed the puck after a scramble in front of the Rambler cage and fired a hard shot at Goalie Jim Henry. The former Ranger net tender stopped the rubber, but Ken Schultz hammered the rebound past him at 1:07.

Follow-up Scores

Ten minutes later New Haven drew even as Eddie Kullman beat Gordie Bell after the Lion goalie had repelled shots by Chick Webster and Scotty Cameron.

But Joe Cluman put the Lions in front again at 17:37 as he took a pass from Ken Schultz, who had feinted Henry out of the cage.

Again the Ramblers came from behind to even things at 2-2 in the second period when Sherman White took a pass from Jean Lamirande and easily pushed the puck past Bell, who had been drawn out of his cage.

Biff Jones Boxes Williams Here

Johnny (Honey Boy) Williams, New York lightweight, will meet Herbie (Biff) Jones, local southpaw, next Monday night at Turner's Arena in the 10-round feature match.

Williams has beaten Lenny Mancini, Ruby Kessler, Maxie Shapiro and Joey Peralta. Jones beat Willis Roach in his last Arena appearrance after a rugged battle. His only estback of the season was at the hands of Johnny Bratton, with whom he is seeking a return shot in Chicago.

Unbeaten Navy Soccer Team Meets Princeton

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 28.—The undefeated Navy soccer team meets Princeton at Annapolis tomorrow The Middies, who have been scored on only twice this season, boast an early season victory over a Lehigh squad which swamped the Tigers, 5-0.

They Decide To Talk It Over Within Next 2 Days

Brooklyn, Oct. 28 (AP).—President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers said tonight that he expected to talk baseball with his former manager, Leo Durocher, "within the next couple of days."

The announcement followed an hour's meeting at the Brooklyn club offices attended by Rickey, Durocher and four men—the latter otherwise unidentified—concerning a "matter personal to Leo and having nothing to do with baseball."

The quotes were supplied by Harold Parrott, secretary of the Dodgers, who also sat in on the mysterious session. He declined to say who the four strangers were or to say what was discussed.

"Not Before Outsiders"

"It is obvious," Parrot asserted, "that they (Rickey and Durocher) would not have discussed Leo's managerial status before outsiders."

Durocher, who was suspended for the 1947 season last spring by Commissioner A. B. Chandler, has been in the city for the past two days. At the time he flew in from the Coast he said he was here to contract for supplies for a sporting goods store he is opening in Beverly Hills.

Rickey steadfastly has refused to indicate whether he intends to give Leo his old job back or to leave the Dodger reins in the hands of elderly Burt Shotton, who pushed the club to a pennant and a losing World Series against the Yankees after taking over in the opening days of the season.

On his last visit here during the World Series Durocher had a lengthy conference with his former boss, from which both exited smiling, but without comment.

Awaiting Happy's O. K.

It since has been speculated that Rickey is awaiting an official green light from Commissioner Chandler before taking Leo back into the fold.

Chandler announced that, as far as he was concerned, Durocher's suspension ended with the last game of the World Series, but some observers have felt that Rickey would like for the commission to say something special.

Before today's mystery confab, a member of the Dodgers' front office said positively that he knew Rickey nad Durocher were not going to talk baseball.

"There's nothing for them to talk about on that score," he declared. "They did plenty of talking the last time, and they understand each other perfectly."

Rickey's announcement tonight, however, that he "undoubtedly" would talk with Leo in the next couple of days, appeared to indicate that there still were a few loose ends.

Vernon Morgan Made Free Agent

Richmond, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—Vernon Morgan, University of month was declared ineligible for Richmond freshman who early this Southern Conference athletic competition because he signed a professional baseball contract in 1944, was declared a free agent today and university officials indicated that they would request a review of the eligibility question by the conference executive committee.

Action voiding Morgan's contract with the New York Giants, signed wheen he was 15 years old, came today at Columbus, Ohio, from Minor League President George Trauman.

Big If at $24.20 Wins $20,000 Race

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Mrs. J. T. Maloney's Big If, a $24.20 for $2 shot, won the $20,000 Remsen Handicap at Jamaica today, defeating nine other juveniles in a photo finish.

W. L. Brann's Escadru was second and Ben Whitaker's My Request third, with all three horses only heads apart at the end of the mile and one-sixteenth race. Big If returned $24.20, $10.40 and $5.80.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 28.—Kent Miller's Elkridge and W. M. Jeffords' Snow Goose head their respective fields here tomorrow in the thirty-fourth running of the $15,000 Chevy Chase Steeplechase and the seventh edition of the Queen Isabella Handicap for fillies and mares, which is worth $10,000 added money.

Six rivals will face Elkridge over the 2½-mile route in the Chevy Chase in which Miller's representative will carry top weight of 154 pounds.

Mrs. Stephen C. Clark's Trough Hill, 147; T. T. Mott's Floating Isle, 147; R. W. Grant's Sun Bath, 139; Mrs. C. E. Adams' Refugio, 139; H. E. Talbott's Big Wrack, 138, and Brookmeade Stable's Greek Flag, 137, make up the field against Elkridge.

Snow Goose, under 120 pounds, will face eight foes in the mile and a furlong Isabella, her opponents including William Heils' Ear Shot, 117; Christiana Stable's Camargo, 113, and Oberod, 107; D. Djordjadze's Rosa Blanca, 110; Paradise Farm's Dog O'Sullivan, 109; G. Y. Booker's Lawless Miss, 109; Audley Farm's Pine Lake, 102, and W. L. Brann's Legendra, 102.

WHILE ELKRIDGE will be the top weight of the Chevy Trough Hill. Winner of the Butler Chase field, the likely favorite is Trough Hill. Winner of the Butler Handicap at this meeting, Trough Hill is certain of strong support. Elkridge was fourth in that event, but won the Glendale and Lion Heart in New York.

Refugio will be seeking to repeat his triumph of 1946, but so far has not shown the form which enabled him to win the Chevy Chase a year ago.

Greek Flag's best race was a victory in the Cherry Malotte, while Sun Bath looms as dangerous since he was second in bot hthe Butler and the Ogle. Floating Isle, winner of numerous stakes, lost rider in the Ogle as did Greek Flag.

Snow Goose, successful in the Beldame and Ladies Handicaps in New York, shapes up as a stout choice in the Queen Isabella, with her chief opposition likely to come from the Christiana pair.

The Rhymer Beaten in Close Finish

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 28.—Brandywine Stable's Dirl whirled around this racing strip today to win the Patuxent, feature race of the Tuesday program.

For the first time during the long meeting here, the track was sloppy but Dirl seemed to thrive on the wet going and led H. S. Horkheimer's The Rhymer into the finish line with the Nydrie Stable's Highfortidies third in the field scratched down to six horses.

Money was burned in bales when the King Ranch's Flash Burn, everybody's best bet, finished fourth, being out-photographed for the show position while under the handling of Apprentice Leo Buttler.

Dirl, in winning his third race in 19 starts this year, returned a $22.20 mutuel and was clocked in 1:47 1/5 for the mile and a sixteenth while nicely handled by Apprentice C. Martens.

Meetmenow Sets Pace

Dirl had competition all the way. Meetmenow, from the Allnutt barn, set the pace but Dirl went right along with this fleet mare. When she finally gave up, The Rhymer, who had ben forced to await an opening along the inside, came on. The two battled head and head before Dirl drew out approaching the wire.

Flash Burn didn't run a little bit. The 4-year-old trailed the field for a half mile, rallied mildly but was floundering in the going in the final drive.

The day's big controversy came in the seventh race, the Constitution. There was a gang rush at the first turn in which Laurania all but fell. Apprentice J. Snyder who rode that filly, claimed a foul against J. Gilbert, rider of Now And Again, which finished second to Cedar Farm's L'Heure. Laurania was third.

The race was run in a driving rain. L'Heure and Magic Lily on the outside appeared to cut in going to the turn, causing the jam. Gilbert, however, was a factor, for he bulled his way through to get to the front.

L'Heure finally went around Now And Again to take the lead and win going away. Laurania recovered to be third in a photo.

The stewards listened to Snyder and Gilbert and then lighted the "official" sign.

Armed Is Horse to Beat in Pimlico Special

Bowling

THE SECOND SERIES in the Men's Major District League will open tonight on four fronts, with Burr Heishman meeting Winn's Motors at Rosslyn; Winchester Motors opposing Galliher and Huguely at Greenway; Mann's Potsto Chips battling Maple-Edge Pins at King Pin, and Arcade Pontiac taking on Heurich Brewers at Clarendon.

There's a three-way tie for the lead between Winchester, Galliher and Burrs.

Marked man tonight will be Howard Parsons, the 40-year-Silver Springer, who set a new world's record for seven games of 1091 last Sunday night in Baltimore over the Recreation Alleys. Parsons is the anchor man on the Winn's team which is pretty well loaded with talent, including Paul Perkins, Lindsay Stott, Paul Jarman and Nick Rinaldi.

Lou Jenkins of the G. and H. quintet is showing the way to the duckpinners with a high individual average of 131.

ALTHOUGH SHE failed to finish in the money in the Meyer Davis classic the other night at Lucky Strike, Lorraine Gulli is leading the Ladies District Major League with an average of 118.6. Captain of the Hi-Skor team, Lorraine is topping Evelyn Nickel of King Pin and Lucy Rose of Rosslyn, who have 115.7 each. Kay Luckett of King Pin and Francis Wilson of College Park, with 114.7 each, are next in line.

Tonight's feature will be provided by King Pin, leading with 14 and 4, and Rosslyn, entrenched in third with 10 and 8, with Rosslyn the scene. College Park, second with 11 and 7, will be host to Brookland; Lafayette will be at Hi-Skor and Mount Rainier at Ice Palace.

IN THE Men's Minor District League, Greenway, still the leader with 15 and 6, will be at Alexandria; Petworth No. 2, which vaulted into second place, will roll at Queen Pin. Other games show Spillway at Colonial Village, Ice Palace at Temple, Clarendon at Petworth against No. 1 team, and Lucky Strike at Arcadia.

ANN CARLSON, of the league-leading Temple team in the Ladies Minor District League, has become the first feminine bowler to win the one-ball tournament at Petworth. Miss Carlson won herself $50, rolling a 209 with a 26 handicap for 235. F. Garner and E. Timmerman, with 234, were second; Joe Rhodes, Bob Chalfonte and Reds Dietrich, with 233, were next in line. There were 100 entries.

'Little Assembly' Simple Majority Plan Voted Down

Lake Success, Oct. 27 (AP).—A United Nations subcommittee today rejected a United States resolution which would permit the proposed year-round "Little Assembly" to take up the discussion of disputes or situations by a simple majority vote.

The 13-nation political subcommittee voted to require a two thirds majority in determining whether the 57-nation interim committee shall consider an item.

Dr. Jose Arce of Argentina, said the decision "killed the Little Assembly," which was initiated by United States Secretary of State Marshall to handle matters within General Assembly jurisdiction between regular sessions of the 57-nation body. All 57 member nations would be represented on the Little Assembly. Russia has boycotted meetings of the subcommittee discussing the proposal, terming it a United States-led attempt to circumvent the Security Council's authority.

Benes' Memoirs Are Published

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 27 (AP).—President Eduard Benes, in his memoirs, published today, called on eastern and western states to "cease to boast about their revolutionary force or atomic bombs" and return to their wartime cooperation.

"If not," he said, "then woe without distinction to all of us."

The book reiterated Benes' belief that western democracy and Soviet socialism can live side by side.

Calumet Seeks 4th Win in Classic

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—There was some maneuvering around today in an attempt to block Warren Wright's cagy Calumet outfit fro mwinning a fourth Pimlico special come Friday, thereby bringing up these questions: can Eddie Aracaro do it? Will Stymie try it?

Eddie will have a shot at it aboard Walter M. Jeffords' 3-year-old Loyal Legion, one of the bright stars in the meeting which closes at nearby Laurel tomorrow.

Trainer Oscar White announced today that Eddie had agreed to come down from New York for the mile and three-sixteenths, $25,000 winner-take-all classic.

Snider Switches

Al Snider has been riding the Legion, racking up wins in the $15,000 Maryland and $25,000 Washington Handicaps at Laurel. But he's already committed to wear the Calumet silks on Friday atop Feverent, another 3-year-old and second half of Wright's entry in the special.

Armed, of course, is the horse to beat. Doug Dodson will ride Calumet's 6-year-old star as the other half of the entry. If he's first to the wire, it will be Armed's second victory in the special. If either Armed of Feverent come home on top, it will be Calumet's fourth. Whirlaway did it in a walkover in 1942, Twilight Tear in 1944 and Armed in 1945.

As of right now, William Helis' Cosmic Bomb, a three-year-old, is the only other probable starter.

Then there's the Stymie question. Will Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs pass up the Scarsdale Saturday at Empire-Jamaica for a fling at the special

Choice For Jacobs

Stymie, also six years old was assigned 130 pounds for the Long Island go. The old Hill Toppers figured Jacobs might prefer the weight-for-age Special's distance to the Scarsdale's mile and a sixteenth. Six-year-olds carry 126 pounds in the Special, three-year-olds 120.

If Armed and Stymie do renew their rivalry, there won't be a chance for the Calumet raced to overtake the $816,060 all-time money winning record set by Stymie when he romped off with the Gallant Fox Handicap at Jamaica last Saturday.

Armed's winnings now stand at $761,500 and the Jones boys—Ben and Jim—have indicated they will probably retire him for the year after the Special, win or lose.

Bevin Blames France, Russia for German Disunity

London, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—France as well as Russia is partly to blame for the failure of Anglo-American efforts to achieve economic unity in shattered Germany, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told The Commons today.

Bevin also defended reparations policy in Germany against charges that the occupying powers had driven Germany to desperation and made her once again a "threat to the peace of the world."

He said France had contributed to German disunity by impeding the recovery of German transportation and communications—"central agencies" which Bevin said the French consider a menace to their own security.

Padway Will Filed In District Court

The will of Joseph Padway, chief counsel for the American Federation of Labor at the time of his death early this month in San Francisco, was filed yesterday without petition for probate in District Court here.

According to the will, he left $5000 and their Milwaukee home and its furnishings, except for law-books, to his widow, Mrs. Wydia Padway. A daughter, Mrs. Ruth Weinshel, and her husband, Dr. Leo Weinshel, were left $2500 each. Dr. Weinshel also was left a diamond-studded pocket watch.

Boston College Wary

Records Mean Nothing In Hoya-Eagles Game

Boston, Mass., Oct. 28.—Georgetown may be coming to Boston Saturday on the short end of the odds—but Coach Denny Myers' Boston College team isn't taking anything for granted.

The game is the fourteenth renewal of the classic between the two Jesuit schools, dating back to 1919—and in this one game a year, if in no other, anything can happen.

The Boston team in other years has found this fact out the hard way.

B. C. won the first game in 1919 10-9, and it's been that close ever since, climaxed by the famous 1940 classic.

That year both teams were undefeated until B. C. managed to win 19-18 and later triumph over Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl.

B. C. Won in 1946, 20-13

Last fall the Eagles were forced to stage an uphill fight to win 20-13. Al Cannava, B. C. scat back, scored two touchdowns in the last half to whip the Hoyas.

Jitterbug Joe Diminick, pint-sized sophomore halfback whose per game rushing average tops all Eastern ground gainers, has stolen the show this year from Classmate Cannava. Diminick has compiled 390 yards in four games. Georgetown must stop this Kulpmont, Pa., whiz in order to win.

Myers is preparing all sorts of defensive strategems to use against Jack Hegarty's spread formations.

Eagles Use the T

B. C. operates strictly from the T with Steve Stuka, another diminutive sophomore, carrying the quarterback burden. Ed Clasby, the regular signal caller, has missed three games and isn't expected to face the Hoyas.

The two lines will be evenly matched from a standpoint of weight. So far, the Eagle wall has proved almost invulnerable. B. C. ranks third in the East in rushing defense and rates fourth in total offense.

The Eagles enter Saturday's contest with the better record. The one-point loss to Louisiana State (14-13) being the sole blemish on the slate. Impressive wins over Clemson, Kansas State and Villa Nova indicate that once again the Hub may be represented in a post-season bowl classic.

Evans Named Terp Captain

Rich End Francis Evans has been named game captain of the Maryland Terrapins for Saturday's homecoming contest with powerful West Virginia.

If Maryland can defeat the favored Mountaineers, Evans and his team mates will have earned a distinction unique among Terp football players.

They will have been members of the first Maryland team ever to down West Virginia. In the four contests played to date in the series which originated in 1919, West Virginia has won two, while two other games ended in ties.

The most recent encounter between the schools, in 1945, ended in a 13-13 deadlock.

Catholic Switching To Single Wing

In the wake of three straight defeats, Coach Gene Augusterfer of Catholic University has decided to drop the T formation and switch to the single wing.

The general lack of experience of the Catholic players made the intricate ball handling and feints of the T a little too much for them to handle. In addition, the Cards lack a really fast ball-carrier to be sprung loose from the T.

The Cardinals will use their new formation in Saturday's contest with the Newport News Apprentice School at C. U. Stadium.

Annapolis Negotiating For Athletic Far m

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—The Annapolis Chamber of Commerce studied today a proposal of the Philadelphia Athletics to operate a Class D Baseball club here, provided the community furnishes a field with lights for night games.

John F. Brennan, representing the American League team, told members of the chamber and civic clubs Connie Mack was willing to field one of his 12 farm teams here.

Schwellenbach Assails Record Of GOP Congress

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (AP).—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach accused the Republican-controlled Congress tonight of "fumbling and bungling" and said that in contrast, the Truman Administration has built up a good record.

The secretary, a close friend of President Truman, delivered what was interpreted by some Washington observers and Government officials as an opening blast of the Democratic presidential campaign of 1948.

It was an out-and-out political speech prepared for delivery at a Democratic $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner. The Republican city chairman, David W. Harris, accused the Democrats of disregarding the President's food saving campaign by holding the dinner.

Schwellenbach praised the Truman record in the Senate and White House and denounced the Republican administrations of Harding and Hoover in the light of their campaign promises of 1920 and 1928.

Man's Chest Crushed In Derrick Collapse

An Alexandria, Va., construction worker was injured seriously yesterday when a derrick loaded with scrap iron collapsed crushing his chest.

Russell Frazier of 325 N. Henry st., Alexandria, an employe of the Mount Vernon (Ohio) Bridge Construction Co., was injured while on a construction job, repairing the Southern Railway Bridge 3 miles west of Manassas, Va.

At the time of the accident the derrick was loading the scrap iron into a truck.

Wherry Seeks Ban On Tanker Sale To Foreign Nations

President Truman will be asked to stop the sale of a fleet of 98 American oil tankers to foreign countries, Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.) announced last night.

Wherry is chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee. It held hearings yesterday on the question whether it might not be better to use the tankers to transport oil from Saudi Arabian fields, thus eliminating the need of shipping American steel there to build an 1100-mild pipeline.

The Senator has been fighting the export of steel which he says is badly needed here.

However, W. John Kenney, Undersecretary of the Navy, told the committee yesterday that suitable tankers are not available for the Arabian operation and that, moreover, there are not enough for domestic requirements.

"That is one reason there will be serious deficiencies in heating oil . . . on the East Coast this winter," Kenney said.

Along with these developments, the Senate War Investigating Committee announced it will resume hearings tomorrow on the Navy's wartime contracts to purchase oil from the Arabian-American Oil Co.

Workers Benefits Expanded, Group Told

Virginia Beach, Va., Oct. 27 (AP).—America's employers are expanding benefit programs to give their workers economic security against sickness, disability and retirement, the Institute on Industrial Relations sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers was told today.

Employe benefit programs are good industrial relations, said Dudley M. Mason, personnel research director for the Armstrong Cork Co., Lancaster, Pa., in a round table discussion at the Cavalier Hotel on "Company Programs for Employe Security."

Mason reported substantial growth in the number and variety of such programs and said "the interests of the employe will be served when the programs are soundly established and administered."

British Ryder Team Tunes Up

Portland, Oreg., Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Members of the British Ryder Cup team got in a few more practice licks today over Portland Golf Club's soggy layout and were pleased with their chances to take the coveted cup back home.

The matches will be played November 1 and 2.

Coming in from an 18-hole workout over the rain-drenched course with its tricky greens and fir-tree dotted fairways Monday, team Capt. Henry Cotton said: "It's just like back home."

The squad lost no time getting out to the Portland course today to limber up after a tiring 10-day, 7000-mile trip. Little Dai Rees led off followed by Max Faulkner, Fred Daly, British Open and Professional Golf Association champion from Ireland, Charles Ward and Jimmy Adams. Last to start were Cotton, Art Lees and Eric Green.

Following the British in practice rounds were several members of the United States team, headed by Ben Hogan, boss of the Yank forces, and Byron Nelson.

Jimmy Demaret, Herman Barron, Herman Keiser and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison all swung through the 18-hole grind. Scheduled to report for duty later were Slammin' Sammy Snead, Lew Worsham, Lloyd Mangrum and Ed "Porky" Oliver.

The Bowl Boom Starts

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Coach Jim Peelle of the University of Buffalo said today that he had received a "feeler" invitation for his team to play in the Sun Bowl game at El Paso, Tex., New Year's Day.

Singh, Talun Wrestle Tonight

Nanjo Singh, the Hindu grappler who created the "Cobra Clutch," returns to Turner's Arena tonight facing Wladislaw Talun, the 6-foot-8 Polish giant.

Babe Sharkey and Gino Garibaldi will meet in the semiwindup. Hans Kampfer will tackle Ivan Komaroff; Sheik Abed, an Egyptian newcomer, will oppose Jack Thomas and Jesse James, local boy, will take on Ace Freeman in other bouts, the first at 8:45.

School Election

2 Incumbents Hope for Split Vote

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

(Last in a series of four articles on Arlington's School Board election.)

Two lone, independent candidates for election to the five-man Arlington School Board pin their hopes on a split vote to return them to office November 4.

Long-term incumbent appointees John M. Stewart and Mrs. Lucy G. Bussey both declare that it is to the county's advantage to have members with board experience on the county's first elected school board.

Five of the 10 others in the race are candidates of the Arlington School Board Nominating Conference, while the Greater Arlington Association has indorsed five candidates, two of whom, Ernest C. Betts, jr., and William Montgomery Smith, are incumbents. The fifth incumbent, Harry W. Porter, is not a candidate.

Stewart Stands on Record

While GAA has based its campaign on improvements financed by pay-as-you-go spending, and the conference slate program underscores public participation in school board policy and more thorough planning and financing, Stewart says he is campaigning "on my record."

Mrs. Bussey says she is running on her record and on a platform of continued school improvement and a balanced financial program.

Highlights of the two independents' backgrounds and views are:

"Our first need is to relieve overcrowding in schools," said Mrs. Bussey, school board member for seven years.

"We must finance capital expenditures in such a way that when the tax dollar is divided there will be enough left for adequate salaries for teachers and other expenditures."

Stewart

Mrs. Bussey's husband, a real estate broker, died in 1932, and she now operates a home building business from her residence. A native of Virginia, Mrs. Bussey attended Old Dominion College and Virginia Christian College. She had two children who died.

Active in P-TA

Active in Parent-Teachers Association work, she is regional vice president of the State P-TA and was formerly State P-TA chairman and local president of the Robert E. Lee P-TA. She is also secretary of the Arlington Recreation Commission and school representative on the advisory committee for county playgrounds.

"I believe in a steady increase in teachers' salaries," said Mrs. Bussey, "the salaries have been raised every year since I've been a member of the board."

School board member for 15 years and board chairman for 11 years, John M. Stewart says he is convinced that the county schools "cannot be so bad, for my own two children survived them and went on to hold their own in competitive colleges."

Mrs. Bussey

An electronic engineer in the Navy Department's Bureau of Ships, he attended George Washington University for three years and has lived in the county 30 years.

"I am entirely in favor," he said, "of providing adequate schools for relieving overloading in the schools—that's our first priority.

"That is why the school board divided the bond issue into four parts, so the voters could select exactly the program they wanted and reject what they did not want. The board has never opposed kindergarten and half-day sessions—it was just a case of doing first things first."

Rent Boosts Sought for S. W. Housing

Rent boosts of approximately 10 per cent were asked yesterday for 209 units of Nichols Heights housing development in Southwest Washington.

William F. Mansfield, secretary-docket clerk of the Rent Control Administration, said the petition had been filed by the owners, Chamberlin Pessagno, Inc.

The housing units are located in the 4200 block of Nichols ave. sw., and the unit and 100 blocks of Danbury st. sw., he said. Increases asked would boost most units from $60.50 to $67 a month, Mansfield revealed.

Owners claim costs are higher than those figured by the Federal Housing Administration when rental rates were first established, he said.

Rent Control Examiner James G. Tyson took under advisement yesterday a plea for 15 per cent rent hikes for 27 apartment units at 6420 14th st. nw. The increase, if granted, would raise $37.50-a-month apartments to $43; $55-a-month units to $63.25, he said.

Capt. Vollten Suspended From County Police Post

Montgomery Chief Of Detectives Faces Trial for Inefficiency, Using Public Car

Capt. Theodore F. Vollten, veteran Montgomery County detective chief and organizer of that department 17 years ago, was suspended from duty yesterday on charges of inefficiency.

Vollten

In a letter to the County Commissioners Police Chief Charles M. Orme said he had suspended the 50-year-old detective also, among other things, for using a county-owned police car for a private trip on October 19.

According to Chief Orme, Vollten "wrongfully ordered" a detective corporal to drive him to Anne Arundel County, Md., on private business in a county-owned automobile.

In March, 1945, Vollten was given a 30-day suspension on a similar charge which grew out of an Office of Price Administration complaint he had used a county-owned car for a 2200-mile, two-week vacation trip to Florida.

Engages Lawyer for Trial

The veteran police official, who yesterday declined to comment on the more recent charges and the suspension, said that in 1945 he had "mixed business with pleasure" while in Florida and had investigated the 20-year-old unsolved Chevy Chase car barn murder case.

Former State's Attorney Joseph H. Simpson confirmed yesterday he has been retained by Vollten to represent him before the police trial board at a hearing on the charges scheduled for November 5 at 10 a. m. Simpson said he was sure Vollten's "good record will prevail."

Members of the Police Trial Board are Police Commissioner Wesley L. Sauter, Civil Service Commissioner Jo V Morgan and J. Douglas Bradshaw, a Takoma Park attorney.

Accused of Laxness

The charges listed by Chief Orme included alleged failure on Vollten's part to "regularly attend his office," supervise the work of his subordinates and make assignments of cases, to keep proper records and render requested reports.

Orme also charged the detective chief "has faile dto devote his full ti meand best efforts to investigation and soluution of criminal cases occurring in Montgomery County."

Married, with two children, Vollten lives at 4915 St. Elmo ave., Bethesda, Md. He joined the police force in June, 1930, as a private, and in 1943 was promoted to his $4000-per-year post as head of the 10-man detective bureau.

Police Sought As Solicitors For Boys Club

Directors of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club yesterday asked the Cmmissioners' permission to have police in uniform collect revenue-raising Boys Club subscription memberships.

Present District regulations prevent police or firemen from soliciting when in uniform unless specifically authorized to do so by the Commissioners.

Members of the Boys Club board of directors, including R. C. Simmons, James E. Colliflower, Max Farrington and John A. Remon, met with the Commissioners yesterday to discuss the plan, which has the full backing of Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett.

The Boys Club is supported by the sale of membership subscriptions. The directors told the city heads that subscription sales would be boosted if uniformed officers acted as agents.

The Commissioners said they favored the plan but would have to discuss it with Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West.

After the meeting, Commissioner John Russell Young said he thought it would be "a fine idea" to help raise funds for the Boys Club. "We ought to be able to work out something on it in the next few days," he added.

4-Year-Old Starts Car on Wild Ride —In Reverse

Frederick, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—Pedestrians and motorists scurried for safety today when a runaway automobile backed crazily down one of Frederick's main thoroughfares, W. Patrick st.

The car, after squeezing through two other vehicles, came to a crashing halt against a parking meter. When Traffic Patrolman Arthur Murray opened the door he was more surprised to find 4-year-old Arthur Gaver behind the wheel and alone in the car.

The youngster's father, Maurice Gaver of Waltersville, had left the boy and keys in the car while he went shopping. With an amazing display of automobile knowledge, young Gaver evidently turned on the ignition and stepped on the starter.

At Special Session

Buck Bars Legislation For District

District legislation will not be proposed or considered by the Senate District Committee during the coming special session of Congress, Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.), committee chairman, said yesterday.

The Senator expressed interest in the District reorganization report being prepared by a House District Subcommittee under the chairmanship of Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.).

Senator Buck said that if the House committee approved the report "early in next year's session, maybe we can get together on it."

He said his committee would probably not meet or hold hearings during the special session.

Board Opposes Purchase of Park Lands

Prince Georges County commissioners went on record yesterday as opposed to further purchase of park lands within the county for the time being.

Commissioner John H. Beall, presenting the park land resolution at a meeting at Upper Marlboro, said he believed land costs too high at present. He also pointed out that land taken for parks cuts county tax revenue.

Legislation to increase the bonding power of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission from $800,000 to $1,250,000 may be presented at the special session of the Maryland General Assembly, convening November 5.

Approve $4000 Budget

The park and planning commission has asked a bond limit increase to take advantage of Federal loans without interest for eral funds which provide eight-park land purchase, 40 per cent of the cost being donated by the Federal Government.

The commisisoners yesterday also approved a $4000 budget for Maurice P. McGrath, Maryland State veterans service officer, for the fiscal year beginning next July 1. McGrath reported $2429 remains of the $6209 appropriated for his office this year and that 3400 veterans have received assistance.

The commissioners rejected the petition of Harvey Ihrig, operator of Shadyside Trailer Camp in the 7300 block of Brinkley rd. for a zoning ordinance to permit operation of his camp at that location. The commissioners, in denying the petition, said they had already extended a temporary permit for the camp to January 1 to allow Andrews Field time to provide quarters for the families of enlisted personnel now living at the trailer camp.

Brown Honored

The commissioners presented a pair of gold oak "major's" leaves to Police Supt. Ralph W. Brown although doubt was expressed that they could legally give him the rank of "major," without special legislation creating such a position.

Commissioner Norman Collins was named to represent the board at the Seat Pleasant Lions Club Hallowe'en parade Friday.

The board approved award of a contract by the Maryland State Road Commission for improvements on Telegraph rd. in Lanham District to the F. P. Asher, jr., and Sons, Inc. of Annapolis, and authorized $13,948 for the county's share of the $25,360 contract.

Man Held After Bank Robbery Tip

Loaded Automatic Found in Auto Of Va. Salesman When Arrested

A 31-year-old Arlington salesman was arrested yesterday in Washington by District police on a tip he was headed to Falls Church, Va., to rob a bank.

The man was picked up in his auto in the Southeast section about 11 a. m. Police said they found a loaded .32-calibre automatic in a briefcase on the seat beside him.

Robbery squad men from the District and Arlington police had first rushed to the Falls Church Bank but found everything quiet there.

There was no sign of a would-be bank robber in an old Chevrolet car, which the tipster had warned police to expect, according to Arlington police.

The salesman, when arrested, declared he was bringing his gun into Washington to sell it, police said. He denied any criminal intent, they said.

He will be arraigned in Municipal Court today on a charge of carrying a deadly weapon. Police said he had a record of arrests for false pretenses and check forgery.

Second-Story Thief Loots 4 Apartments

An expert second-story man yesterday lifted $183 in a predawn raid on four flats at the Dorchester Apartments, 2480 16th st. nw.

Five tenants slumbered as the thief, raised unlocked windows to enter the apartments which all fronted on a terrace.

Victims and their losses were: Miss Corinne Ingraham, a red wallet containing $7.

Mrs. Anna M. O'Neill, a pocketbook containing $44.

Mrs. Jeannette Brownlee, a pocketbook containing $49.

Miss Caroline and Miss Adeline Stover, their pocketbooks with cash, a ring, pen and watch totaling about $86.

Women's Purse Stolen

Miss Mary Campbell of 762 Kenilworth ter. ne., yesterday told police her purse containing $59 in bills and a $700 demand note was stolen while she was waiting for a streetcar in the 3400 block of Benning rd. ne., apparently by a man who jostled her in passing by. She described the suspect as a slight man in dark clothes and pork pie hat.

Parked Car Looted

Costume jewelry and children's clothing valued at more than $350 were stolen from his car parked near his home, Harry Lipskind of 4209 Eastern ave., Mount Rainier, Md., yesterday reported to police.

Tree Preservation Urged

Preservation of trees and shrubbery at Silver Spring's shopping center, Colesville rd., and Georgia ave., was urged yesterday in a roselution sent to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the State Forest Commission.

The appeal was made by the Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring, which opposed a proposal to cut down the trees—a move urged by certain groups in the community.

The ACG's resolution also urged that other trees and shrubberies in Silver Spring be preserved and that a detailed study, aimed at enhancing the beauty of the city by further plantings, be conducted.

The resolution represents the opinion of 20 civic organizations in the area.

Chinese Visit Annapolis

A group of Chinese army officers attached to the United Nations and the Chinese Embassy here visited the Naval Academy in Annapolis yesterday.

The group was led by Maj. Gen. L. Y. Liu, representative to the United Nations, and included Brig. Gen. Pao Tsong-Kan, Col. W. Y. Chang, Col. H. S. Yang and Lieut. Col. T. S. Hwang, all assistant military attaches here, and Col. T. Y. Tuan, Chinese United-Nations representative. The visitors toured the academy grounds and witnessed a drill.

Judge Asks for Record

Whether Miss Frances Thibadeau called the fire department to retrieve keys she had locked herself out with may be a matter of record.

Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott yesterday continued a hearing yesterday to give fire alarm headquarters time to bring the automatic telephone recording record into court tomorrow at 1:30 p. m.

Miss Thibadeau, 41, of 2440 16th st. nw., is charged with telephoning in a false alarm the evening of October 21.

Women's Party Election

Closing arguments in the contested election of the National Women's Party will be heard today in District Court by Associate Justice James Proctor.

Cruz of the litigation is the question of deciding who are the duly elected officers of the organization. One faction recognizes Anita Pollitzer as the head while the opposing faction contends Mrs. John L. Whitehurst is the legal president.

Chef Gave Up Lucrative Jobs for 16 Summers To Cook for Youngsters in Chest Camps

The Washington Post

GOOD EATIN' JUST AHEAD—James Knight, 501-A 23d st. nw., veteran cook and "chef" to hundreds of children who have spent many happy days at Camp Pleasant during the past 16 summers, thanks to Community Chest support, assures two bright-eyed youngsters that his reputation as a culinary artist is not exaggerated. Photo was taken at Northwest House, 515 N st. nw., which also is supported by the Chest. The youngsters are Sonny Coehins, 9 (left), of 1243 6th st. nw., and Norvin Bradshaw, also 9, of 2131 6th st. nw.

P TA to Seek More Funds in Prince Georges

Council to Continue Study of Plans for School Expansion

A further study of proposals for school expansion in Prince Georges County will be conducted by the county's Parent-Teacher Association Council this year, according to the group's annual report, released yesterday.

Convinced that a four-million-dollar bond issue authorized for school construction in the past year is "insufficient," the council will continue its efforts to obtain more funds through a committee composed of county officials and laymen, the report said. The committee, authorized by the group last May, is "nearly perfected," it added.

In a review of its accomplishments in the past year, the council reported that most features of its six-point legislative program had been adopted "in one form or another."

Referring to the four-million-dollar school bond issue, which was adopted as a "compromise" by the State Legislature, however, the council said it was "convinced the $8,900,000 originally requested by the board of education, indeed, an even greater amount, is needed in order to house adequately the children of the county."

The council plans to continue its efforts toward revision of the county's Juvenile Court in line with recommendations made last year, and will make a complete study of the court program, according to the report.

New Highway To Link York And Baltimore

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 28 (AP).—Governor Lane announced tonight Maryland expects to start constructing a new Baltimore-York road next year.

At the same time the Governor invited Pennsylvania to take part in a shad restoration program.

In a speech delivered a joint meeting of the Harrisbury Chamber of Commerce, the governor said:

"In a large measure the location of this proposed new artery north from Baltimore city to the Pennsylvania line will depend on the steps taken by Baltimore city to receive traffic from this highway and feed traffic to it.

"We are agreed that a new York road is one of the prime needs in our efforts to rehabilitate the highway system of Maryland."

The Governor said he believed talks with Virginia officials on shad fisheries "are going to product most desirable results."

"I think there is every possibility that there will be worked out between the two states a formula which again will permit Maryland to enjoy a reasonable share of the shad fishery that normally would be available to us if this delicious variety of seafood was not halted near the Virginia Capes.

He said Maryland would be glad to share the shad with Pennsylvania iw they arrived in State waters.

Lone proposed a joint study of the use of fish ladders in the Conowingo and Hotlwood dams on the Susquehanna to permit shad to continue up the stream.

Program Is Only One Of Many to Benefit in $3,900,000 Campaign

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

"Chef! Chef! Don't you remember me?"

A wide bright smile breaks over the face of 54-year-old James Knight as he hears the shouts of the kids along the street.

"Of course, I do," he says.

Knight has cooked for more than 6400 kids, he figures, and they've propably all been in his kitchen at one time or another.

Even those he doesn't remember and he secretly admits there are some, are still dear to him.

"They're kids."

Gives Up Better Jobs

That is why for 16 summers he has given up more lucrative jobs cooking in Washington's better eating places to cook for the children at the Community Chest-supported Camp Pleasant, located with its twin, Camp Good Will, at Chopawamsic National Park, Triangle, Va., under sponsorship of the Summer Outings Committee.

The boys and girls, 9 to 12 years of age, are selected for free three-week vacations at the camps by 29 District social, health, welfare and recreation agencies such as Juvenile Court, Northwest House and Children's Hospital.

"When they first come," Knight says, "a lot of them get homesick. They go to the counselors, who send them to the director, and he brings them to me.

"I show them around the kitchen, and ask them what we would do if everybody went home.

Table Manners Improve

"They decide to stay then, and pretty soon they are interested in swimming, or arts and crafts, or dramatics and the first thing I know they are back to ask me to get the director to let them stay a little longer.

"Camp makes quite a change in them. Some of them sleep between sheets for the first time. Their table manners improve, too," Knight says.

Favorite desserts of the children, who average a three-pound gain in weight during their stay at camp, is ginger bread or cake, he says.

"This year I put raisins in the gingerbread and they went wild about it.

"They are crazy about chicken, baked beans and chile concarne, too, and sometimes come back three or four times for more.

Prices Curtail Milk

"We used to try to give them all the milk they wanted, but we had to cut down this year because of the expense.

"While they always have enormous appetites, this year I just couldn't seem to fill them up.

"Prices have been so high their families couldn't afford to buy them enough of the proper foods and the kids were hungry for the eggs, butter, meat and milk they didn't get at home," he says.

Economic need is the primary factor in selecting the children for the free three-week vacations at the Community Chest backed camps, which have a combined capacity of 240 children.

Before going to camp they receive free dental and physical examinations. More than 3800 dental corrections were made in the mouths of the 723 children served this past summer, including 500 extractions, by the School Dental Service.

Principal Handicaps Discovered

The children receive physical examinations at Children's Hospital or Providence Hospital to disclose any organic weakness and also last-minute physical examinations from a staff of eight doctors made available by the School Medical Service. Last year 61 children were found unable to attend because of physical handicaps such as rheumatic heart.

The camps, 35 miles from Washington, were founded more than 40 years ago and are made possible chiefly through allotments from the Community Chest, which this year is seeking $3,900,000 in its annual campaign to continue this and other socially useful work another year.

Applications for the camps always exceed their capacity, and nearly all the little campers want to return.

They want to see "Chef" again. And for him, "They are my family."

Symonds Asks Wider Range Of Md. Crops

Expert at Md. U. Cites Land Waste At Bankers' Parley

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—Dr. T. B. Symonds, director of the University of Maryland Agricultural Service, called tonight for diversified farming in southern Maryland for better use of its soil.

He made the statement addressing a meeting of southern Maryland bankers, extension specialists, farm leaders and soil conservation men sponsored by the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank.

"There are 700,000 acres of farm land in southern Maryland and only 45,000 in the cash crop—tobacco," he declared.

He suggested the establishment of a woodlconsuming industry in southern Maryland to utilize the land more effectively. If such a plant was established, farmers could clear up their woodlands and obtain a new cash crop, he explained.

He remarked also that southern Maryland could produce heifers for bigger dairy herds in the State and said some progress had been made in this field. In 1937 there were three herds in southern Maryland and 67 in 1947, he said.

He expressed the opinion that farmers in the State were generally opposed to Government subsidies.

Other speakers included W. B. Posey, tobacco specialist of the University of Maryland, who urged the bankers present to help southern Maryland farmers to maintain "a decent market" for tobacco; Horace G. Porter, agriculture economist of the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank, and P. D. Brown, Charles County farm agent.

Suffolk Man Elected By Knights of Pythias

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—O. F. Story of Suffolk was elected grand chancellor of the Grand Lodge of Virginia, Knights of Pythias, today at the seventy-ninth convention of the organization at Hotel Roanoke.

Mrs. Altha Ozment of Norfolk was named grand chief of the Grand Temple of Virginia, Pythian Sisters. The temple and lodge will end their three-day meeting at noon Wednesday.

Held in $2500 Bond

An 18-year-old Fort Belvoir Army private yesterday was held for action of the Arlington grand jury on charges of breaking and entering four county business firms in a single night.

The soldier, Philip Redondo, was ordered held in $2500 bond after his appearance in Arlington County Court yesterday. According to police, all four offenses were committed in the 1100 and 1200 blocks of the Jefferson Davis hwy in Arlington on October 21.

Drunken Driving Increases in Va.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—Convictions in Virginia Police Courts for drunken driving were 51 per cent greater in the first nine months of the 1946-47 fiscal year than in the entire previous fiscal period, and convictions for careless driving rose by 36 per cent during the same periods.

Total convictions, covering all infringements of the State's motor vehicle laws, mounted to 62,216 in the nine-month period, the State Motor Vehicle Division's Bureau of Safety Responsibility disclosed today.

Accident reports filed during the same time totaled 45,020. Of these, 12,982 were turned in by police.

Odenton Man Denies Slaying

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—Joseph H. Holland, 43, pleaded innocent today on a charge of murdering his wife, Mary Estelle, at their Odenton home September 11.

Holland, indicted last week by the Anne Arundel County grand jury, was arraigned before Judge William J. McWilliams, who set trial for November 17.

State police arrested Holland one week after he reported his wife was fatally injured in a fall down a well in the back yard of their Odenton home.

Police Intervention Frees 2 Banana Men

A policeman who feels banana-vending is a perishable business at best, intervened in court yesterday to keep it alive for two men he had arrested.

For his efforts, veterans policeman, Pvt. R. D. Dyas, 1323 Talbert terrace se., won freedom for his "clients" and high commendation from Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott.

"I feel," he told Judge Scott, "these two men know now they have done wrong and I don't think we ought to carry it any further."

Judge Scott agreed; said Washington needs "more policemen like you."

Dyas had arrested Milton Ross, 21, of 1253 4th st. sw., for vending without a license and vending on Sunday, and arrested his partner, Ulysses Daniels, 28, of 325 M st. sw., for permitting an unlicensed vendor to sell. Ross had a license, but it was Daniels'.

Ross asked for leniency, promising he'd get a license if allowed his freedom.

"Anyway," he said, "all our bananas have spoiled while we couldn't sell them."

Ross and Daniels were released on personal bonds.

Milk Increase Debated

Whether milk prices in the District will increase a cent or more per quart will be decided within the next 10 days.

A request by the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers' Association for approval of an increase is now under advisement by the Virginia Milk Commission, and District and Maryland prices generally follow Virginia prices.

John W. Owen, commission secretary, said the commission would probably act on the request within the next few days.

Guilty Plea Offered

Theodore Roosevelt Lucas, 28, of 1226 2d st. sw., yesterday pleaded guilty to manslaughter in District Court.

Lucas, who stabbed to death the mother of his girl friend last May 16, originally had been indicted for second-degree murder.

The victim, Mrs. Pearl McGillvery, 45, of the 2d st. address, and in Casualty Hospital from knife wounds inflicted on her by Lucas during an argument over Lucas' attempts to see her daughter, Cleo, 25.

Lucas declared the women had attacked him with an iron bar and a long barbecue fork.

Halloween Street Dance

To divert the soap-writing, gate-lifting tendencies of Halloween night pranksters, county police will block off Wilson blvd. from Clarendon Circle to N. Highland st. for street dancing between 6:30 p. m. and midnight Friday. Street dancing also will be held in the Westmont Shopping Center, Columbia Pike and Glebe rd. Parking in both locations will be forbidden during the dances, police said.

School Units Dedicated

Mrs. Frances Bartram, as a representative of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters, spoke yesterday at the dedication of the new auditorium and staff cottage for the Maryland Training School for Colored Girls at Glen Burnie.

As social welfare chairman, Mrs. Bartram directed the County League's survey of school needs a year and a half ago.

Dancer Overdoes It

Miss Arline Castle, staying at the Ambassador Hotel, received emergency treatment after she threw her right hip out of joint during a midnight floor show.

Saved by Zig and Zag

George Wilson, who zigged when he should have and zagged the same way, told Municipal Court about evasive action and its merits yesterday.

Wilson, 23, of 214 Clarks court sw., was the principal witness against Clinton L. Glascoe, 22, of 500 Cullinanes court sw., who is charged with assault with a deadly weapon. Wilson told the court he also was the target.

Both have been dating the same girl, Wilson said. When he met Glascoe early yesterday morning at 4th and H sts. sw., Glascoe began firing with a pistol, Wilson testified.

"I hit the turf and rolled over a couple of times," he said. "Then I took off on a zig-zag course—just like I learned in the Army. The shots didn't even come close."

Glascoe was held on $2500 bond for action of the grand jury. Police said he recently served a term for assault.

Lunacy Hearing Set

A lunacy hearing has been set for next Wednesday for Dan Williams, slayer of a Metropolitan policeman and another man last May. Two others were wounded when Williams, disbarred lawyer, ran amok with a pistol in the Municipal Court Building.

Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech ordered the lunacy hearing in District Court yesterday on recommendation of Assistant United States Attorney John Conliff. He cited letters from Gallinger Hospital psychiatrists to the effect that Williams was suffering from paranoia.

3 Held in Knifing

Three men charged with a knife attack on a Metropolitan policeman were held on bonds of $1000 each for action of the grand jury yesterday.

They are:

Robert L. Watson, 34, of 1706 R st. nw.; Melvin L. Smith, 28, of 1748 Corcoran st. nw., and Otis Miller, 21, of 64 K st. ne.

The three, charged with slashing Pvt. John A. Hemp, 37, of the Third Precinct, the night of October 4, pleaded not guilty. The policeman was cut across the abdomen when he attempted to halt three men for questioning on a fight.

Train Delayed

The 4:50 p. m. Baltimore & Ohio commuter train from Washington to Brunswick, Md., was held up 30 minutes yesterday when its engine's four front "pony" wheels derailed two minutes after the train left Union Station, near the Rhode Island ave. ne. overpass...

Car Building Probe

Investigation into possible anti-trust violations in the freight car building industry will begin tomorrow by a special District grand jury empaneled yesterday in District Court.

The investigation is a resumption of a probe started about three months ago by a different grand jury which was dismissed before its work in the case was completed.

The reason for the dismissal was given as a move to prevent overworking the jurors who had attended to a number of matters during their session.

Maid Held in Theft

A 19-year-old maid in the home of Dr. Stephen E. Verges, 4800 16th st. nw., yesterday was held on $1000 bond for action of the grand jury on grand larceny charges.

She is Martha Countess, who is accused of taking $252 from the surgeon's clothing in a closet of the Verges home.

Mrs. Verges testified the maid had frequently found and returned money in clothing to be sent to the cleaners.

Property Put at $207,000

Joseph H. Galliher, Washington lumber dealer, who died September 20, left personal property valued at $207,000, according to a petition for letters of administration filed in District Court yesterday.

The petition was filed in behalf of Galliher's wife, Katherine, 4000 Cathedral ave. nw., and a son, Richard, 2629 39th st. nw.

The petition stated that a will dated December 16, 1933 had been voided in Mr. Galliher's own handwriting. In that will Mr. Galliher left each of his 5 children $1, the residue of the estate going to his wife with the request that on her death it be split up among the children.

Mr. Galliher left $199,000 in cash and securities, the petition said.

President To Pay War Dead Homage

President Truman will attend religious and military services at the reinterment of 20 Pacific World War II dead tomorrow at 11 a. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

The President will head a group of civil and military leaders and representatives of veterans' organizations at the mass burial. He will not speak.

The 20 bodies—most of them from the Greater Washington area—were among 56 arriving here yesterday from Philadelphia in a special railroad car. They are the first of an estimated 6000 to be buried in Arlington, according to a spokesman for the Military District of Washington.

Cabinet Members to Attend

Defense Secretary Forrestal and Secretaries Royall, Sullivan and Symington of the Army, Navy and Air Force, respectively, will be present at the ceremonies.

The 20 flag-draped caskets, presently stored in the cemetery's vault, will be placed at the gravesites prior to beginning of the services.

Ceremonies will lopen with music by the United States Army Band, and four enlisted men of the same service as the deceased will take their places beside each of the deceased.

Religious services will be conducted by Army and Navy chaplains of the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths. Following them will be military honors of three rifle volleys and "Taps."

Kin to Get Flags

Before each casket is lowered into the grave, the four honor escorts will remove the flag from the casket and present it to the next of kin.

Space for next of kin will be reserved at the gravesites, the spokesman said. Location of the graves is in Section 12 of the cemetery, which is bounded by McClellan, Grant, Porter and Patton aves.

Next of kin have been requested to assemble at the superintendent's office, from where they will be conducted by military escort to the gravesite.

Canopies will be erected above each gravesite in case of rain. The ceremonies are expected to last about 45 minutes.

Falls Church Goes 4½ Hours Minus Water

Awestbound bus and a shattered hydrant yesterday combined to depriv ethe town of Falls Church of water for 4½ hours.

The trouble began at 7:30 a. m. when an Arnold bus took a right turn at the corner of Lee hwy. and Park ave. just as a truck emerged from the intersection. To avoid hitting the truck, bus driver J. N. Childress cut his corner sharp and the rear end of the bus knocked over a fire hydrant.

Water gysering from the broken hydrant soon drained the town's 200-000-gallon storage tank, emptied mains, and dried up taps in homes all over town.

Water Superintendent John McCauley, working with five assistants, put a new valve in the hydrant to stop the flood. He also ordered the storage tank cut off and the town's water supply, piped from Arlington, was pumped directly into Falls Church mains.

By noon, water began flowing again to homes and the system returned to normal last night when the main tank was refilled.

Weed Killer Takes All in Stadium

Baltimore (U.P.).—The caretakers who keep the floor of Baltimore Stadium a lush green carpet were upset when they found weeds had moved in on the bluegrass.

A weeds expert came along who offered a solution which killed weeds and nourished the bluegrass. The stadium people hired him speedily, and he sprayed his solution all over the field except one corner.

Then he collected his fee and left. A few days later, sure enough, all the weeds were dead or dying, but the bluegraas, too, was as brown as an army blanket, except the corner the expert missed.

Grumbling caretakers resodded the field, except the spot the solution had spared. They decided to let that grow—weeds and all.

Housing Got Tighter

Chicago (U.P.)—Thomas H. Wright, executive director of the mayor's commission on human relations, says Chicago's housing situation was worse at the end of 1946 than at the end of 1945. "It can be stated flatly that during 1946 we made no gains in conquering this problem or even alleviating it," Wright said. "The city actually lost more dwelling units through fire, simple decay and disintegration than it put up during the year."

Eating Before Art

Dalton, Mass. (U.P.).—Playground leaders who introduced handicraft work with clay to youngsters ranging in years from 3 to 8 were at an impasse when they found their pupils preferred eating the clay to molding it.

In Alexandria

Plant Fined $250 Under Smoke Law

The American Agricultural Chemical Co., was fined $250 in Alexandria police court yesterday for violating the Alexandria city smoke control ordinance.

Judge James R. Duncan continued a separate charge against the Alexandria plant's superintendent, W. G. Robbins, until December 24. Outcome of the charge against Robbins, the judge said, will depend on the company's action in the meantime to stop the escape of offensive gas and smoke from the plant, at Queen and N. Lee sts.

Smoke Control Engineer John J. Kelley said he had received 40 complaints about smoke and gases from the plant from nearby residents. The residents, he said, claimed the gases and smoke have killed vegetation, eaten into glass, caused throat irritations and laid down a heavy dust.

Robert W. Bursey

Funeral services for Robert W. Bursey, 71, retired policeman with 36 years' service as a member of the Metropolitan Police Department, who died suddenly at his home Monday unexpectedly, will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. from Lee's funeral home, 4th and Massachusetts ave. ne. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

A native of Front Royal, Va., Mr. Bursey came to Washington in 1900. He was appointed to the police force two years later and spent most of his career in the Thirteenth. He retired in 1938.

He was a Mason and belonged to the Retired Policemen's Association. Members of that group will serve as honorary pallbearers at the funeral.

Mr. Bursey, who made his home at 817 F st. ne., is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ressie Payne Bursey, and a sister, Miss Virginia Bursey, both of the F st. address, a daughter, Mrs. Milda George of 131 11th st. ne., and another sister, Mrs. Lillian Attick of Berwyn, Md.

Alexander T. Thomson

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—Alexander T. Thomson, who retired as secretary-treasurer of the Phelps Dodge Corp. in 1936, died of a heart attcak at his home here yesterday. He was 72.

Born in Edinboro, Scotland, Thomson came to the United States 40 years ago and entered the mining business in Arizona. Several years later he joined Phelps Dodge and was transferred to New York as secretary and treasurer.

His retirement ended a 51year career with the company.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Cora Ranlett Thomson of Warren; a daughter, Eleanor Torrence Thomson of Warrenton; a brother, Ranlett Thomson of Warrenton, and two sisters, Maude and Frances Thomson of England.

Robert W. Bursey

Robert W. Bursey, 71, retired District policeman, died yesterday of a heart attack at his home at 817 F st. ne.

Mr. Bursey, ill since an attack two years ago, had returned home early yesterday afternoon after another attack Sunday at the home of his sister-in-law, Miss Ida Payne, Crest Hill, Va. He was stricken at 5:15 p. m. yesterday and pronounced dead a few minutes later by Dr. Edwin Crisp, 800 E st. ne.

Mr. Bursey retired in 1938 after serving as a policeman here since 1902. For many years he was a desk clerk. He was a native of Front Royal, Va.

Traces Garden Peas Back to Tut's Tomb

Seattle (U.P.). — Seventh-generation purple-pod peas from the tomb of Egyptian King Tutankhamen—who died 3300 years ago—are growing vigorously in the garden of Mrs. Florence Thompson of Seattle.

"It may sound fantastic, but I have records of ownership which trace the seed right back to the tomb," Mrs. Thompson said.

It all started, she said, when she saw several newspaper accounts of the growing of a few withered peas put near King Tut for the lean years when he was buried in 1350 B.C.

Taken to England, the peas were planted. In 1936, some of them were sent to Maj. Walter Dyer in America. His bloomed just like their predecessors. Some of his crop was given to Col. Harlan Holden of Orlando, Fla., from whom Mrs. Thompson obtained seedlings.

Mrs. Thompson sent the seeds, plus ownership records, to the Egyptian Oriental Museum in San Jose, Calif., last February. Five healthy pods were sent to her.

Mrs. Thompson proudly shows her two seven-foot vines covered with orchid and deep rose blossoms. "I treat them with a great deal of respect," she added.

Baby Raccoon Stumps City-Folk Pursuers

New York (U.P.).—A farm boy would have recognized the animal wandering through one of this big city's parks, but none of the city folk who followed it knew.

Sixty children and 50 adults pursued the animal until it took refuge on a tenement fire escape, where it was captured by an ASPCA agent with a pole noose. It was a half-grown raccoon.

Little, Patent Examiner for Army, Dies

P. Franklin Little, 50, a patent examiner in the office of the Judge Advocate General, died Monday afternoon in the Naval Hospital in Bethesda.

Born in York, Pa., Mr. Little was graduated from McKinley High School, from Bliss Electrical School, Columbia School of Drafting, and from Washington College of Law, with bachelor of law and master of patent law degrees.

Mr. Little, who lived at 2037 N. Glebe rd., Arlington, enlisted in the Army in May, 1918, and served in France until May, 1919.

Patent examiner in the Judge Advocate General's office, Army Department, since May of 1924, Mr. Little was a member of the Wilson Boulevard Methodist Church, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, Sigma Nu Phi, legal fraternity, and Columbia Lodge 285 A. F. and A. M.; Royal Arch Chapter, A. F. and A. M.; and the Knights Templar.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Effie May Little; a daughter, Mrs. Jean Virginia Evans; a son, Arthur R. Little, all of Arlington; a sister, Mrs. Claude M. O'Kelly, and a brother, Robert Little, both of Baltimore.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 1:30 p. m. at Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

John A. Scott

Augusta, Mich., Oct. 27 (AP).—John A. Scott, 80, one of the world's leading authorities in Homeric studies and professor emeritus of Northwestern University, died early today at his summer home at Gull Lake, near here.

Professor Scott, a brother of Walter Dill Scott, retired president of Northwestern, had been retired since 1938 after devoting more than 50 years to the study and teaching of classical languages.

Born in Fletcher, Ill., Professor Scott was graduated from Illinois State Normal School in 1887, took his bachelor's degree at Northwestern in 1891 and his doctorate of philosophy at Johns Hopkins University in 1897.

In addition to Dr. Scott, president of Northwestern from 1920 to 1939, Professor Scott is survived by his widow, Tillie, and a daughter, Mrs. Ralph Himstead of Washington, D. C. Funeral services will be conducted in the Richmond, Mich., at a date and time as yet undecided.

J. F. Duhamel, D. C. Native, Is Dead at 85

James F. Duhamel, 85, retired patent attorney and militant campaigner for District suffrage for more than 60 years, died Monday at the John Dickson Home, 5000 14th st. nw., after a short illness.

He was a native of Washington and a member of a family which has lived in the area for more than 300 years.

Up until a few years ago he maintained an office in the Munsey Trust Building and daily walked the 5 miles from his home which was at 4105 18th st. nw. He twice survived serious injuries when struck by automobiles, once when he was 76 and again when 81.

Authority on Washington

In addition to his practice as a patent attorney and his interest in civic affairs he was an ardent hobbyist who at one time owned one of the best stamp collections in the city. He was an authority on the history of Washington. An interest in Rock Creek Park which once belonged to a member of his family led him to plant dogwood there.

Mr. Duhamel, who changed the spelling of his name from Du Hamel, traced his ancestry back to Leonard Calvert, first Governor of Maryland. From two forefathers who fought in the Revolution for "no taxation without representation," he said he inherited the spirit that led him to fight for District suffrage for so many years. He actively participated in the plebiscites of 1938 and 1946.

"I'll get out and vote even if I have to crawl," he told a reporter a year ago.

Frequently at White House

The son of a Civil War surgeon, Mr. Duhamel recalled the second inaugural parade and funeral procession of Lincoln. When his father, Dr. W. J. C. Du Hamel, was Presidential physician during the Johnson and Buchanan Administration, he was a frequent White House visitor.

Mr. Duhamel was educated at St. Mathew's Institution and St. John's College. Shortly before the turn of the century he established his patent attorney's business in New York City. He joined civic associations in Brooklyn and in 1910 was elected to the New York State Senate, as an independent candidate in a Republican district. He took the oath of office with a young attorney, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In Albany he worked for liberal legislation including old age pensions, marriage license restrictions in cases of venereal diseases, cheaper gas and telephone rates and liquor sales reforms.

Assisted at Conventions

After 20 years in New York, he moved his business to Washington, picking up an interest he had since 1880 in local suffrage. He was instrumental in the passage of the Disctrict old age pension.

As a patent attorney, who also was a draftsman, Dr. Duhamel assisted in developing many inventions, including the telephone, electric lights, submarines, wireless, airplanes and the linotype.

Dr. Duhamel carried on his suffrage activities through the Columbia Historical Society, the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, the Piney Branch Citizens and the Federation of Citizens Association, the Society of Natives and the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Requiem Mass Tomorrow

Surviving Mr. Duhamel are two sisters, Mrs. George Coombs and Miss Bessie Du Hamel, both of Washington; a son, Col. Notley Young Du Hamel, USA, retired, of Washington; two daughters, Mrs. George Joseph Newgarden, jr., of San Antonio, Tex., and Mrs. Lola Lamar Burton of Washington.

He also is survived by three grandchildren, Capt. George Joseph Negarden, 3rd, stationed in Texas; Notley Young Du Hamel, jr., of Bennington, Vt., and Mrs. James Knox Cockrell of Puerto Rico, and by a great grandson, Christopher Saville Cockrell of Puerto Rico. A fourth grandchild, Paul Newgarden, was killed in Normandy.

Requiem mass will be said in St. Gabriel Church, Grant cr., at 9 a. m. tomorrow (Thursday). Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

C. A. Smith, 57, Labor Adviser, Dies in Berlin

Chester Albert Smith, 57, a Government executive for ten years here, died Sunday in Berlin.

Relatives in Utica, N. Y., were informed that he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage while playing golf in Berlin, where he was a labor adviser in Government relief work.

A native of Utica, Smith came to Washington in 1935 as an adviser to the Works Progress Administration. In April, 1934, he joined the War Manpower Commission as principal administrative analyst in the office of the assistant executive director.

Smith asked for and got a leave of absence from WMC in February, 1946, when he joined China National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. In February of this year he was officially separated from WMC.

He went to Berlin in May as labor adviser for the Allied Military Government.

He leaves his wife, Mildred Bicklen Smith, who will return from Berlin Thursday; two brothers, Albert Smith of Boston and Howard Smith of Buffalo; and a sister, Mrs. John M. Weaver of Utica.

Mr. Smith's body will arrive in New York today, and funeral services will be held in Utica Saturday.

'Twas Tough Decision for Food Boss

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

HALF A DOZEN slick magazine writers, assigned to write profiles of Food Czar Charles Luckman, have been galloping 'round town searching for "anecdotes" to leaven otherwise dry factual material. Mr. Luckman has been far too harassed for humor. However, we've turned up one 16-karat, 100 per cent authentic Luckman story.

A short time ago he was guest at an off-the-record dinner given by the Supreme Court Justices. It was meatless Tuesday and squabs were passed. Luckman was served last. When the platter got to him, it was empty. Everyone offered his squab to Luckman but he demurred.

Finally, the chef messaged apologetically that he was cooking something special for the food czar. Minutes later, the waiter arrived triumphantly bearing a steak. Necks craned What would Luckman do? Glancing at the offending bit of meat, he said: "Sirs, I'll eat this if you give an assenting opinion!"

Our most august legal body burst into laughter. Luckman hadn't been fooled by the phony steak! Right now it's ornamenting the old-fashioned mantel in his State Department office!

Back Into Limelight

THE Bogarts, Sterling Haydens, John Hustons, Ira Gershwin, John Garfield and a few other Hollywood scintillators who flew at their own expense to the Un-American Activities investigation, had a few spare moments the other afternoon. Sightseeing was indicated and so, en masse, they started to inspect the Senate.

There was a long line waiting to be shown the Senate Chamber and, unobtrusively, they tagged at the end. Nobody recognized them for a good two minutes, then a cop rushed up, insisted they precede everyone.

The stars protested, wanting to remain plain John Q. Citizens. But, willy-nilly, they were shoved into the limelight.

More or less "managing" the group is dancer Paul Draper, who comes by his liberal ideas through inheritance. He's a son of Muriel Draper. Many years ago she wrote the story of her London salon in a book called "Music at Midnight," then moved back to New York in the early 30s. There she sponsored all sorts of artists, fought against race prejudice and helped smuggle anti-Nazi propaganda into Nazi Germany.

She made a long visit to Russia where she circulated with musicians and artists—not the Molotov-Vishinsky equivalents of the thirties.

As an offset to Muriel who, incidentally, is a real fascinator, Paul's aunt is no less a personage than monologist Ruth Draper. When Paul decided on a dancing career the more stodgy members of his family were horrified, wanted him to be a banker. Now, as one of the top-flight dancers, he pulls down many times the money he'd have made banking.

Gay 'Blades,' All

WHEN the 19 "reluctant" witnesses subpenaed by Representative Thomas were readying to leave Hollywood, transportation ways and means were discussed. Should they fly to Washington, or go by train? Up piped Gordon Kahn, a writer who pulls down a plump pay check scripting, among other trifles, Gene Autry's horse operas. "Personally," he snapped, "I'm going by tumbrel."

So, when the 19 witnesses and their five attorneys finally piled into a plane, they solemnly christened it, "The Flying Tumbrel."

More Than Lip Service Needed

Jr. League Gets Lesson in Democracy

By Marie McNair

JUNIOR LEAGUE members, meeting at their annual fall luncheon, got a lesson in democracy yesterday. Over plates of broiled chicken and cake with strawberry sauce, at the Chevy Chase Club, more than 300 members listened to a rapid-fire talk by Dr. Julius Schreiber, director of the National Institute of Social Relations, on "The Job of a Citizen in Democracy."

Earlier the league's president, Mrs. Charles Runyon 3d, in a wine red frock, with a cluster of gardenias, yellow rosebuds and daisies pinned to her shoulder, told members of the value and necessity of thoughtful cooperation. "It's the backbone of an organization like the Junior League," she said, urging them at the same time to visit the league's placement office in order that they may find their proper niche where their abilities and talents will be put to the best use.

Still earlier, the club's spacious rooms hummed with light chatter as the strictly feminine gathering admired each other's new hats, as they sipped cocktails on the inclosed veranda looking out over the gardens drenched in rain.

Practice Is Painful

Dr. Schreiber delivered a punch with every breath.

"Democracy is a tough word," he told his audience. "It has as many definitions as there are schools of thought. We use the word when we don't mean it. Too many women's clubs and organizations give lip service to the word but don't like to practice it because it's painful."

One of the major problems of the mind, Dr. Schreiber believes, is the forming of judgments before we know the facts. "I am not prejudiced, I merely prefer," we are apt to say. And then the psychiatrist, who held a top position in the Army's orientation program, got a laugh with "I used to think the Junior Leaguers were first class 'jerks.' I was a victim of prejudice."

Talk things over, Dr. Schreiber urges; get together for organized discussions where views can be raised, opinions expressed. And—"look in the mirror" not to see if your lipstick is smeared, but search your soul, ask if you're an honest woman. Can you measure up to all the beautiful things you say and do?"

"We all want security and gratification," Dr. Schreiber continued. "All people experience frustration, develop tension and anxiety. And when they do they must do something about it. Some turn it on themselves, some on other people. Some blame innocent scapegoats, some social institutions."

It takes courage and integrity to be a good citizen; moreover it takes allies, is Dr. Schreiber's answer.

At the head table with the president and guest speaker there were Mrs. Travis Brown, all in gray; blonde Mrs. Francis Almirall in black with touches of cocoa brown; lovely looking Mrs. Clarence Dodge, jr., a symphony in burgandy red from the curling ostrich on her flared hat to the new length hem of her frock; Mrs. George Petticorde, jr., Mrs. Richard Marsh in beige; Mrs. William Anderson, Mrs. Frank Sterrett, Mrs. Carlos Becker, Miss Elma Phillipson, Mrs. George Y. Wheeler 2d, who later spoke on the league's newest project, "Playtime" in television;

Members who put on the luncheon were Mrs. Christopher Sargent, chairman; Mrs. Frank Sterrett, Mrs. Davis Austen, Mrs. Donald DeVeau, Mrs. J. Lawn Thompson, jr., Mrs. Wilfred Goodwyn, Miss Mary McLaughlin, Miss Bliss Schumann, Mrs. Lawrence Jacobsen, Mrs. Hugh L. H. Smith, Mrs. Jay Smith, Mrs. Arnold Willcox, and Mrs. William Moffett.

And here's good news! The Junior League will revive its famous "Follies," the members voting yesterday for an April show.

For Shining Moments

By Peggy Preston

FITTING raiment for "The Merry Widow" is the black taffeta gown worn above by glamorous Ruth Carroll, member of the company which performs the operetta by that name at the National Theater this week.

The gown, a Ben Reig creation, was shown yesterday at Congressional Country Club when the designer's fall collection was presented at a luncheon-fashion show. Pale flesh-colored chiffon forms the wide yoke with a high, tight, almost invisible neckline. Trimming at the edge of the yoke is a rich, wide band of jeweled embroidery, consisting of gold sequins, seed pearls and large drop-pearls in flower design.

More than 500 members and guests attended yesterday's showing. The fashion show was staged by an F st. specialty shop which carries Mr. Reig's designs.

Opening feature of the show was a series of travel ensembles, including two great-coats, one in red, the other in brown. Both were in the bell-silhouette, with wide, rippling skirts, flared backs, and long hemlines.

His suits had an urban air. They were sophisticated, composed and quietly dramatic. All featured a long hemline, approximately 12 inches from the floor. Most of them emphasized the small waistline idea by putting detail at the hipline.

Several black "profile dresses" were shown. There was one with reverse box pleated skirt rippling below a bolero top and cinched with a grosgrain midriff. Another in sheer crepe had a shadow pleated tunic top and a slim sheath skirt.

Mr. Reig apparently likes the ankle-length dress, flaring out from a tiny waistline, for several in the collection were of this type. For important evening occasions, his gowns had great formality. Two outstanding ball costumes were a pink silk marquisette, sprinkled with golden sequins, and a white shimmering brocaded satin with a portrait neckline and draped hipline.

Loy Henderson Dinner Host

At Blair Lee House last evening Loy Henderson, director of Far Eastern and African Affairs of the Department of State, entertained at a stag dinner party. The guests of honor were H. E. Nuri Pasha Said, chairman of the Iraq delegation to U. C., and H. E. Dr. Fahhill, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Iraq.

Khalid Chorbachi, charge d'affaires of Iraq, attended the fete, and George Wadsworth, United States Ambassador to Iraq. From the State Department came Joseph C. Satterthwaite, Gordon P. Merriam, Adrian B. Colquitt, Henry L. Deimel, jr., David A. Robertson, Paul F. McGuire, Hubert F. Havlik, Francis Boardman and Gordon H. Mattison. And from the Department of Agriculture, Leslie Wheeler and Ross Moore.

Committee for Lasting Peace Launches Membership Drive

By Genevieve Reynolds

The District branch, Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace, Inc., yesterday launched a campaign to swell its membership ranks. Action, taken at a board meeting in the afternoon held in the YWCA, coincided with a commendation statement issued to the national organization by Mrs. of clothing and school supplies. Commission on Human Rights of the United Nations.

Praising the committee's work in helping to organize American women and public opinion for peace, she expressed in a letter to Mrs. Norman deR. Whitehouse, national president, "wishes for success of the current Nation-wide membership drive."

Word From Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Roosevelt, consultant of the WCLP, wrote "I am very glad to know that you are planning a campaign to enroll more members to extend your services to an increasing number of women.

"I know what your organization has done in arousing public opinion on the subject closest to every woman's heart—the maintenance of world peace and I congratulate you and wish you every success in providing a medium through which women can work."

Meantime, on the local front board members mapped out a series of house meetings and radio broadcasts to explain the organization's aims and purposes, one of which is "Uniting public opinion for peace."

Mrs. Lillian Mowrer, chairman of the District's WACLP, said that the greatest concentrated efforts for new members will be made between November 11 and 27.

"Far too many women are ignorant of the peace possibilities offered by the United Nations," explained Mrs. Mowrer. "Too many realize the tie up between the individual voter and legislation passed by Congress.

"I have found that one must know how to work for peace realistically," she continued.

AAUW Hears Talk On Trip to Russia

Russia sold materials to the United States to the tune of one hundred million dollars. So revealed Ernest C. Ropes, retiring head of the Russian Division, Department of Commerce.

Guest speaker last night at a meeting of Washington Branch, American Association of University Women, he told the group that among the items the Soviet exported to us were furs, manganese and chromium ores and platinum metals.

Declaring that "there are big possibilities of trade with the Soviet," the speaker bases his conclusions on a trip to Russia during the summer of 1946, when he was sent by Former Secretary of Commerce Wallace to ascertain what could be done to step up the purchase of goods.

Ropes said that he was well satisfied with the reception that he received in Moscow; that he talked with the Foreign Minister of Trade A. Mikoyan concerning importation of lumber, linen goods, medicinal herbs and some other 200 items.

Ropes emphasized that he strongly favors the Marshall Plan and predicted that it would succeed despite the Soviet's all out efforts to block its implementation.

Trinity College to Aid European Students

In cooperation with the National Federation of Catholic College Students, Trinity College will launch a drive tomorrow for the relief of students in war-torn European countries. So far as known no relief organization until now has concentrated entirely upon the needy students of Europe.

Trinity's program, which is under the chairmanship of Ellen Warner, '49, of Indianapolis, has been divided into two separate drives. First on docket will be collection of funds from students each Thursday. The second semester drive will consist of weekly collections of clothing and school suplies. Also included under Trinity's plan is a knitting committee, headed by Vivienne Lambert, '49, of Trenton, N. J. . . . This committee will furnish socks, scarfs and mittens.

Your Questions On Homemaking

Can you give me information on pumice stone and it use?
M. H. S.

Pumice stone is made from a certain variety of lava. It's extreme roughness makes it a good abrasive and polishing agent. In its solid state, it is used commercially to polish wood, paint, and metal. In its powdered form, it is used for polishing marble, ivory, bone, and glass, and in the composition of tooth powder. Powdered pumice is sold in drug and paint stores and is useful to the housewife in removing watermarks and other blemishes from the surface of wood and in certain types of furniture refinishing.

Please give me the name of a good tailor who makes, or does alterations on, women's clothes. D. L. P.

I'm sorry, but we're unable to recommend specific commercial firms through this column. There are a number of firms that do the type of work in which you're interested listed under "Tailors" in the yellow section of the telephone book. Perhaps some friend who has had tailoring done locally can recommend one of these firms that is particularly good.

I have a new automatic washer that does 9 pounds of wash at once. Can you tell me how much soap flakes I should use for each 9 pounds? How much liquid bluing and chlorine bleach should be used? I think I'm using too much, and would like to know the correct amounts.
M. A. O.

The amount of soap required for washing depends on so many factors—type of fabric being washed, type and quantity of soil, hardness of water, temperature of water, and others—that it's practically impossible to standardize the amount of soap to use. The important thing is to use enough to produce good standing suds. If the suds break down and disappear during the washing operation, more soap should be added to produce sufficient suds. If your wash runs about the same each time, experiment a bit. Add soap gradually until you get good suds, measuring the amount of soap so you'll know just how much to put in next time. Since the various makes of bluing and bleach vary widely, it's best to follow the directions on the package you buy.

I plan to be married this fall in a semiformal church wedding. My attendants' dresses will be one style and different colors. Should the ushers wear formal suits or may their suits be regular and of different colors but the same style. Also, does the groom's ring have to be a yellow gold band or may it be a diamond-set ring? A. T.

Dark sack suits can be worn instead of cutaway coats if the wedding is not formal. The important thing is that all the men in the wedding party dress alike. Their suits, of course, needn't be identical, but it would be well if they were all the same color—dark blue, for instance.

It's usual for the bridegroom's ring to be a plain gold band, matching the bride's wedding ring but a little wider. However, it may be any type ring he prefers and the bride is able to buy for him.

A burgundy velvet hostess gown which has been hanging next to an ivory satin robe has faded on the ivory material at the collar and other places where the contact has been continuous during the summer. Is it possible to restore the robe?
V. T. W.

It would be best to take this problem to an experienced dry cleaner. Dye stains are very difficult to remove and home treatment may injure the satin. If the cleaner can't take the spots off, he may be able to restore the good looks of the garment by dying it a dark color.

What can I do to improve the appearance of a rayon crepe blouse (white) with long sleeves and French cuffs, the material in which seems to have lost all it's body? The cuffs don't hold up and the collar and revers are soft and floppy. H. P. M.

The finish on limp rayon can be improved by dipping it in a gum arabic solution. Add 1 pint boiling water to 1 ounce powdered gum arabic (purchasable at drug stores). Stir over a low heat until the gum arabic is completely dissolved. Dilute with 2 to 3½ quarts lukewarm water, according to stiffness desired. Dry garment quickly after dipping.

To E. M. W.: The following helpful tip on removing moldy spots from drainboards has been sent in by L. F.:

I've found chlorine bleach is excellent for taking mold from linoleum-covered drainboards. The board in our kitchen was black with mold under the spigots, and steel wool and scouring powder didn't take it off. Last week, I covered the spots with chlorine bleach, full strength, and the mold disappeared as if by magic. I immediately washed the bleach off with warm water. Now the linoleum looks as nice as new. L. F.

Apple Crisp

The recipe for Apple Crisp follows:

8 medium apples
½ cup water
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¾ cup flour
¾ cup sugar
6 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine

Pare, core and slice the apples thin. Fill a greased 1½-quart casserole with the sliced apples, water and cinnamon. Blend the rest of the ingredients until crumbly in consistency. Spread this mixture over the top of the apples and bake uncovered in a moderate oven (350 degrees Farenheit) 75 minutes or until apples are tender. Serves six.

MARKET MEMO

PRICES ARE ON the see-saw this week . . . some going up, some coming down. Fresh pork is 5 to 6 cents a pound cheaper in many stores . . . soon will be in others . . . but lamb prices are rising 3 to 4 cents. Bread is up 1 cent a loaf . . . while butter's cheaper than a week ago. Certain brands of coffee are due to rise 1 cent a pound at retail soon . . . but egg prices are expected to drop a few cents.

Fruits and vegetables still star, however, as the housewife's best buys. Tops on the list this week are spinach, string beans, kale, lettuce, celery, peppers and potatoes . . . white and sweet. More oranges are coming in from Florida . . . larger ones, too. Canned orange juice is an extra thrifty buy . . . it's priced only 10 to 39 per cent above the 1939 level, whereas food prices generally have advanced 100 per cent since then.

Vitamin Meats: Tried any of the "variety meats" lately . . . any except liver or tongue, that is? The United States Department of Agriculture calls our attention to some of the others that are rich in vitamins, protein, and iron. It suggests using spleen, heart, and lungs in stews . . . cooked brains in croquettes or creamed on toast . . . kidneys, broiled or stewed . . . sweetbreads, dipped in milk-and-egg mixture and browned in fat . . . heart, stuffed with a tasty dressing and baked.

In Bridal Procession

Jenkins—Gamble

With the bride's father officiating at the ceremony, Miss Beatrice K. Gamble of Washington was married on October 4 to Cecil Jenkins of Franklinton, N. C. The wedding took place in the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Foster K. Gamble, Talladega, Ala.

Escorted by her brother, Allen O. Gamble of Washington, the bride wore white lace and satin and a finger-tip veil held by a tiara of small hearts outlined in seed pearls. She carried the white leather-bound Bible and lace handkerchief her mother had used at her own wedding.

Acting as matron of honor for her sister, Mrs. Liston H. Cook was gowned in white faille and carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds. J. Edwin Jenkins was his brother's best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins will reside temporarily in Carthage, N. C., where the bridegroom is employed by the United States Department of Agriculture. Mrs. Jenkins, who has been with the Department of Labor in Washington for the past four years, is a graduate of Birmingham Southern College. Her husband attended North Carolina State College in Raleigh and served three years with the Army in the Pacific.

Bowen—Bliss

Making their home in Washington are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hall Bowen who were married September 29 at Metropolitan Baptist Church. Mrs. Bowen is the former Miss Norma L. Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 18, Child of Divorce, Hadn't Seen Father for 14 Years; Now He's Back on The Scene, Courting Favor; Mother Fumes

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When I was three years old, my parents got a divorce—after four years' marriage. After that my mother reared me and father was never allowed to see me. All my life I have felt the bitterness between them.

Today, on my eighteenth birthday, father came to see me. This was our first meeting in 14 years. During his visit today, he asked me to spend a few days with his wife and himself, to meet some of my relatives, especially my half-sister.

This half-sister, who is older than I, was born of his first marriage. My mother was his second wife; and after their divorce he married a third time.

Having seen my father today, I believe that I could treat him as a father should be treated; and I know that he wants to—and would—treat me as a daughter.

Should Girl Rebuff Dad?

HOWEVER, when I asked mother to speak to him today, she refused. She told me she never would and also said if ever I go to visit him, "Never come back." She doesn't mean that; but it shows how hurt she is, or how much hate she feels for him.

Well, I didn't go; but now that he has seen me, father will write to me, and although he doesn't live here, will continue to visit or keep in touch with me. Or should I ask him not to? What am I to do?

I want to understand both sides. I like him and his wife, but I love mother, who reared me for 14 years, and she wants nothing to do with him. Please answer this as I need someone's help. L. A.

Father Is Back Mostly for Spite

DEAR L. A.: I smell skunk here. Your father's heart isn't running over with love of you. That isn't what brought him for a visit on your eighteenth birthday, the day on which you came of age, by legal reckoning—no longer a minor in your mother's custody.

He came mostly for spite, whether he knows it or not; and doubtless he is so dishonest with himself that he never reads his own motives aright.

He came with the meddlesome vainglorious intent of having "the last laugh" on your mother, by luring you away from her to a large extent, now that the child-rearing job is done—and he assumed you would prove easy victim of his shallow charm. Well, you almost did.

What's His Title To Consideration?

THE FACT that he didn't see you for 14 years, because your mother wouldn't allow it, signifies that she had legal authorization to keep him out of the picture. In other words, she had sole custody; he was divested of guardian's rights.

Why? Either his neglect was such, in the first years of your life, that the court ruled against him as an unfit parent; or else he voluntarily waived all claim to your custody, just to be rid of the responsibility. There is no other explanation.

What has he contributed to your support and education these past 14 years? Has your mother done it all, or nearly all? Very likely, which probably accounts for her bitter uncompromising reaction to his nuisance-display of ersatz-interest in you—during those years and again now.

Papa Deserves Cold Shoulder

IT IS regrettable (for her sake) that she wastes vital energy detesting him; but at least her downright honesty on that score is to her credit, and possibly a defense you need against the temptation to hero-worship him—on a phantasy basis—at this point.

From my view, nothing could be in worse taste than his busybody notion of negotiating an introductory meeting between you and the elder half-sister—both children of wives he discarded. I daresay the other mother feels as aloof towards him as your own mother does, and for similar reasons.

Thus I think you'd be forfeiting personal dignity and gaining nothing if you let him lure you into the ramifications of his disorderly existence. So my advice is, stick to your mother and give his overtures a polite cold-shoulder.

M. H.

TOMORROW: Surfeited with loving-kindness of young matron who lavishes good deeds on everyone, woman is tempted to break off friendship.

Loan League Is Cautioned On Appraisals

By S. Oliver Goodman

The rapidly-changing real estate picture needs careful study, especially in appraisals for home loans, Rudolph W. Santelmann warned last night.

The retiring president of the District of Columbia Building & Loan League addressed 175 members and guests at the annual meeting in the Mayflower.

Santelmann also advised further steps to acquaint the public of the duties of a savings and loan association. During his 2-year term as league head, combined assets of the 27 member institutions rose from 240 million dollars to the current 317 million dollars.

Among the speakers was Calvin D. Johnson, former Congressman from Illinois.

The league's newly-elected officers are president, Edward L. McAleer; vice president, Fred A. Smith; treasurer, Robert E. Buckley, and secretary, F. Willson Camp.

Among the honor guests at the dinner and reception were Nathaniel Dyke, jr., member of the Home Loan Bank Board; Dr. William Husband, chairman of Federal Savings and Insurance Corp.; O. K. La Roque, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board of Winston-Salem; Frank Miller, a director of the FHLB, and John S. Kerns of the Maryland League of Insured Associations.

APPLE NOTE: Apples still fall unexpectedly as they did in the days of Sir Isaac Newton. But finally Charles A. Higgins of Kennett Square, Pa., has done something about it to save his first grade fruit from bruises. Higgins obtained from United States Rubber Co. a spongelike rubber mat with millions of nitrogen-filled cells to cushion the shock of apples accidentally knocked from trees by pickers. It also cushions falls of pickers.

OUTLAYS CITED: Business expenditures for new plant and equipment are expected to run about 15-billion dollars this year, bringing the totad since VJ-Day to more than 30 billions, Roderick H. Riley of the National Planning Association, emphasized these figures last night at a meeting of the Washington Control of Controllers Institute in the Carlton Hotel. This rapid growth of productivity will pose major problems in the future, he said, Riley formerly was director of research of the Office of Price Administration. Henry W. Herzog, head of the controllers, presided at the meeting.

Schary Scores With $600,000

By Richard L. Coe

DORE SCHARY, rhymes with sherry, may be one of the Hollywood producers to appear today before the Un-American Activities Committee. That depends on how the whims are blowing on the Hill.

Schary is a onetime printer's devil who's worked his way up the Hollywood hills to production chief of RKO. His most recent triumph is "Crossfire," which wound up a two-week run yesterday at Keith's.

Yesterday he preferred to steer clear of Representative Thomas' "trial." (Those quotes are not his.) For the record, he talked of "other things."

The field of cheaper pictures, for instance. All too often when a reviewer broaches the notion that good pictures ought to be made for less money than the terrific figures many are purported to cost, the producer will scoff and say it's impossible.

Not Schary. "Crossfire" cost RKO around $600,000, and anyone who's seen it will admit it's a far better film than others costing twice and six times that much. "Not all picures can be made for a half million or less," says Schary, "but by first being sure of a good script and dovetailing properly the people and ideas involved, it is possible to turn out such films.

"Why, then," he was asked, "can't some pictures be made for that large group of people who, Dr. Gallup's polls have shown, do not go to the movies?"

Melodrama Plus a Theme

"They can and will be, but it isn't that clear-cut," Schary continued. "That segment of nonmoviegoers appears to be largely in the age group from 31 to about 50. The real mass of moviegoers is between 18 and 31 and over 50. These we must interest primarily. It's like the swing of a pendulum; the pendulum can swing out at both sides to include more than the fundamental group.

"'Crossfire' was intended to do just this. Its melodramatic aspect will attract those who only want that aspect of a film, but it also will interest that other group you speak of—the people who look for more than just a chase yarn. At least that's what we hope."

Schary, an athletic 42, appreciates the importance of a good story above the pull of stars, which is natural, for he made his mark in Hollywood as a script writer. He wrote, or collaborated on, the screen plays of "Boy's Town" and the two Edison pictures. He produced "Journey for Margaret," "The Spiral Staircase," "The Farmer's Daughter" and "The Bachelor and the Bobby-Soxer."

Upcoming he has what he feels is the most adult picture to come out of Hollywood, "Mourning Becomes Electra." The Eugene O'Neill play has been adapted for the screen by Dudley Nichols, who won't be taking any screen credits for the job because every line in it is from the O'Neill original. Nichols has simply "arranged" it, a far simpler task than the one he performed for the short O'Neill plays that became the screen's memorable "The Long Voyage Home."

Rosalind Russell Heads Cast

With Rosalind Russell heading a gilt-edged cast, this is not one of those reasonably budgeted films that so beguiles your money conscious reporter. Whether it will pay off its two-million-dollar cost is in the lap of the gods, but O'Neill, who's seen it, is more than satisfied with the picture; certainly adult audiences should welcome it as manna from heaven.

That dinner intermission, which created so much talk when the Theater Guild produced the play, is rightly out. "The cumulative effect would be thoroughly lost if we tried that," Schary remarked, "and furthermore, audiences are used to three-hour pictures. This will run about three hours, just the same as 'The Best Years of Our Lives' does.

Which is very much what Terence Rattigan was remarking on the other day in discussing his forthcoming short plays. Rattigan's two dramas will be done in a single evening with an interval between each play but not between the acts or scenes of the individual plays.

"Movie audiences," Rattigan observed, "are quite used to sitting through an entire story without having the mood broken by the theater's traditional intermissions. Why shouldn't the stage benefit from this movie trailblazing?"

Schary, wrapped up in the movies, would have been pleased by such a tribute to the films from the young playwright—whose "The Winslow Boy," by the way, opens tonight in New York.

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe reviews "Magic Town," the Jimmy Stewart picture which opens this morning at Keith's.

JIMMY'S GIRL: Jane Wyman shares stellar roles with James Stewart in "Magic Town," opening this morning at Keith's. The town of the title is "Grandview," which a Gallup-like poll discovers has been reflecting the thinking of the U. S. A. for fifty years. Stewart plays the chap who makes the discovery, which turns Grandview into a boom town, destroys its values and angers the township editor, played by Miss Wyman. William A. Wellman, of "The Best Years of Our Lives" fame, directed from a script of Robert Riskin. Others in the cast include Broadway's Kent Smith, Ned Sparks (back in films after a six-year absence), Wallace Ford, Regis Toomey, Ann Shoemaker and Donald Meek

School Radio Group Votes Award to Durr

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—The school broadcast conference today selected Clifford J. Durr, Federal Communications Commissioner, as the man of the year for his "outstanding and meritorious service in the field of educational radio."

The award was presented to Durr at the eleventh annual school broadcast meeting. George Jennings, Chicago, conference director, said "for seven years Mr. Durr has been a staunch supporter and friend at court of educational radio."

Truman Cited Prices For Special Session

By Drew Pearson

When President Truman called in Capitol Hill leaders to explain his decision to summon a special session of Congress, one of his arguments was supplied by a Commerce Department chart. It showed trends of prices and exports in recent months.

Halleck

Giving his "classroom" of Senators and Congressmen a lecture on living costs, Truman pointed to the "price line." It disappeared at the top of the chart. Meanwhile, exports showed a definite decline.

"A lot of people believe that the less we ship abroad for relief, the lower prices will be at home," the President commented as he passed the chart over to Senator Taft. "However, the opposite is now true, as you can see. Our exports have actually gone down in the last several months, yet domestic prices have increased.

"I suggest, Mr. President," interrupted Taft, "that you give us comparable figures on the increase in wages."

The President replied that wages are lagging behind, a statement that Taft promptly challenged with some figures of his own.

Truman then went on to point out that increased prices were solely responsible for the increased cost of relief to Europe. The original estimate of funds needed to carry needy Europeans through March 31, 1948, was 580 million dollars, the President explained. Now it is 642 million dollars and, he added grimly, it may go higher unless Congress does something about prices.

"We've got to remember that the higher prices go, the greater our relief costs are going to be," he said.

House GOP Majority Leader Charles Halleck inquired as to just what the President wanted Congress to do about prices. He said that Congress never would approve restoration of price controls and that if this issue took priority over relief appropriations at the special session, Congress might argue all winter before any funds were voted for Europe's starving.

Truman replied that he had no intention of asking Congress to restore general price controls, partly because it would cost too much to set up the necessary administrative machinery; also, it would take too long to get the program under way, even if Congress gave its approval.

Allocation of key materials, greater export-import controls, and price ceilings on certain key commodities (at the producer instead of the consumer level) were some of the things he had in mind. Truman revealed. However, he did not clarify what materials should be allocated or what effect allocations would have on the over-all price picture.

All these questions would be answered at his next meeting with the congressional leaders the President promised, at which time he would have a specific program to recommend to Congress.

Two Conventions

Some highly interesting byplay took place behind the scenes in high Democratic circles before the Democratic National Committee met today to select the city for the national convention.

Both President Truman and Postmaster General Hannegan strongly favored San Francisco. Hannegan went even further and suggested Oakland and San Francisco as joint sponsors for the convention.

However, the hotels at San Francisco turned thumbs down. Overcrowded, they actually discouraged the Democratic delegates. Jimmy Roosevelt and Ed Pauley, meanwhile, urged Los Angeles. In fact, that has been about the only thing they've agreed on lately. But they wanted to hold the meeting outdoors in the coliseum, and Democratic bigwigs in Washington were afraid both of the weather and the idea that the coliseum might be picketed by Henry Wallaceites.

Meanwhile, Philadelphia came forward with some attractive offers. Holding the Democratic convention in the same hall right after the Republicans, they pointed out, would cut down expenses. Hannegan, however, was still skeptical. He figured that with the Democrats sure to nominate Truman, the convention would be minus fireworks, suspense, and drama. Also he was afraid that, in steaming hot weather, too many delegates would be off to Atlantic City and television would show up the empty seats in Convention Hall.

However, inertia in the Far West, plus the fact that Senator Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, new Democratic chairman, favored Philadelphia, means that the City of Brotherly Love will get two political conventions next summer.

The Iron Curtain

Back from an official snoop behind the Iron Curtain, Senator Carl Hatch of New Mexico reports that the Balkans are still pro-American whenever Russia turns its back. The bantam Democrat made a sweep through Poland, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Hungary, Romania, and Bulgaria with a Senate-House committee.

"In those countries where the minority rules, the Communists maintain power only through the force of police and secret police," reported Hatch. "They do not have true communism or socialism. It is nothing but tyranny maintained by force.

Worshipper Finds Baltimore Synagogue Defiled by Vandals

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—Ohr Knesset Israel Congregation's synagogue was a sorry mess today. Vandals overnight completely wrecked the inside and destroyed its sacred accouterments.

Charles Port, vice president of the congregation, discovered the depredations at 7 a. m. He had come to the downtown sanctuary to say a prayer for his son, whose body was returned a few days ago from a foreign cemetery for American war heroes.

Port staggered from the church, stunned by the wreckage. He almost wept as he fingered the small black holy bag in which for 50 years he had kept his skull cap and stole.

"They ripped my name and the Star of David off and soaked it in beer," he cried.

Two torahs—gold lettered felt pieces which sit at the head of the altar—lay in a puddle of beer.

"They cost $1600 each," said Sam Smolkin, president of the congregation.

Testaments were strewn about the floor, tapestries with the Star of David were torn and twisted about the pews, candles were crushed into the floor, salt and water were poured in the stove, empty whisky bottles were scattered about the room.

Four times previously the synagogue has been invaded. Two weeks ago, thieves took $60 from a poor box but did no damage.

Water Storage For Summer Found Success

By The Associated Press

Storing water in wells in winter for use in summer promises to be of practical use for some industries in Virginia.

Geological survey officials said yesterday tests have shown that this can be done successfully and that a plant in Hopewell, Va., is now following the practice.

They said advantages include:

1. Water can be stored in winter when the surface supply is plentiful.

2. The cold water stored in underground strata warms up in summer only slightly and is colder than ordinary ground water.

3. The fresh water can be stored in strata saturated with brackish water—as in the coastal section—with most of the stored water remaining uncontaminated.

D. J. Cederstrom, Federal geologist stationed at Charlottesville, Va., said "It is quite evident that storage of fresh water in underground brackish water sediments can be done successfully."

Cederstrom recently reported on a test he conducted at Camp Peary, near Williamsburg, Va. He said about 50 per cent of the water was uncontaminated when pumped out.

Chest X-Ray Information Drive Planned

"Check Your Chest—Let's Wipe Out TB."

With the announcement of this slogan, the citizens committee of the Washington Chest X-Ray Survey launched a city-wide educational program yesterday preparatory to mass chest X-rays next year.

William E. Leahy, committee chairman, set a 100 per cent response among the 600,000 District adults as the goal for the drive to start next January 10.

The purpose of X-raying all persons 15 years of age and over is twofold, he told more than 50 committee members gathered in the board room of the District Building:

To reduce the present tuberculosis mortality rate here—64.3 per 100,000 deaths—which is almost twice as high as the national figure. To reduce local taxes by discovering and treating tuberculosis cases in "minimal," or early stages, rather than allowing them to reach advanced stages and bement.
come wards of the District government.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer and committee member, said that what is accomplished here is likely to influence what is done elsewhere. "A nation's capital should lead," he explained.

Salmon Plentiful

Seattle (U.P.).—A near-record total of 1,275,212 cases of canned salmon, valued at $29,329,876 was delivered here recently from the famed fishing and canning grounds of Bristol Bay, Alaska. Average price paid per case for the 1947 seasonal output was $23—above normal, canned salmon brokers said.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—Wheat futures prices took the upward trail today after three weak sessions, gaining as much as 5 cents a bushel. The December contract went back above $3 after falling below that level Saturday.

Corn also was strong and about 2 to 4 cents higher, and oats were up about 2 cents.

The main bullish element in the wheat pit was the urgent need of rain in the big growing areas of the Southwest, where some rains fell during the weekend. The trade also was encouraged by continued Government purchases of cash wheat, although the production and marketing administration withdrew from the flour market until announcement of December allocations.

Wheat closed 3 to 5 cents higher than the previous finish. December, 3.00⅛@3.00, corn was up 1⅞@2⅛. December, 2.23@2.25¼ and oats were ahead 1⅞@2. December, 1.15¾@1.15⅞.

Fairfax Board Rezones Tract For Apartment

The Fairfax County Board of Zoning Appeals yesterday paved the way for a five million dollar apartment development by rezoninfi a 57-acre tract on Lee blvd.

Attorneys for Tyler Realty Corporation, which owns the land, said work will get under way next spring. The site lies about one mile west of Seven Corners and immediately south of a new housing development recently completed by the same company.

The board approved location of a Negro cemetery on Rt. 628, three miles south of Groveton, but again deferred action on a zoning petition to permit enlargement at Mt. Comfort Cemetery in Groveton. The board denied a petition to allow a recreation building to be conducted on Route 211 west of Falls Church following vigorous protest from abutting land owners.

Printing Head Hits Police On Burglaries

The manager of a local printing firm, reporting nine unsolved burglaries in the past 10 weeks, yesterday charged lack of interest on the part of Metropolitan police.

Norman L. Jones, coowner of Bennett & Williams, 810 North Capitol st., announced that housebreakings at the firm have occurred "with almost clocklike" regularity. Except for Saturday night — when thieves lifted $15 from a petty cash box—most of the thefts have been confined to bottles of Coca-Cola and small change, Jones said.

"There seems to be negligence on the part of some patrolmen," Jones declared. "I've reported these cases to police on several occasions and they don't seem to be much interested."

He said the police were "more interested in having us burglarproof our place than in patrolling the beat." He reported police have investigated several times but "they haven't shown any interest in doing anything about it."

Capt. Robert Pearce of the First Precinct, said his officers have investigated all housebreakings reported by the firm and attributed them to "kids' work throughout." He said two youngsters were arrested September 29 in connection with one of the thefts and they are awaiting action by Juvenile Court authorities.

Poultryless Thursday To Be Weighed in Va.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—"Poultryless Thursdays" will head the subjects to be considered by the Virginia State Poultry Federation annual convention meeting at the Hotel John Marshall November 5 and 6.

Walter C. Berger, president of the American Feed Manufacturers Association who confered recently with Charles Luckman on rescinding "poultryless" days, will report on the effects of the foreign food situation on the feed industry.

Court records as early as 1750 refer to Cabin John Creek as Captain John's Branch, fter a hermit who lived in a log cabin near the spot and who is variously said to have been an Indian or a retired pirate.

Md. Tobacco Authority Bill Is Approved

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Maryland legislative council approved today a bill to establish a state tobacco authority which would "regulate marketing practices" and boost the sale of Maryland tobacco to the world.

The bill, sponsored by State Senator Sothoron (D., Prince Georges), was among measures proposed for consideration at a special session of the State Legislature November 5.

The bill calls for a five-member "tobacco authority of the State of Maryland," to be named by the Governor from lists submitted by the University of Maryland and the Maryland Farm Bureau.

Aims to Seek New Uses

Its purpose would be "to regulate marketing practices and the seeking of new markets and new uses for leaf tobacco produced in Maryland."

Sothoron told the council that "this year the five Southern Maryland tobacco counties were in an unfortunate position in the market. There was no authority to say when the markets would open or close; at the last minute (when the tobacco auctions opened last spring) the market was flooded, prices broke and conditions were chaotic."

Would Fix Sales Days

The new authority would be empowered to fix the days and hours of sale and to set "rules of marketing procedure."

It would collect a tax of 30 cents per hogshead on leaf tobacco on the sales floor of auction warehouses and impose a $100 license fee so-called "transfer buyers."

Members of the tobacco authority, each receiving an annual salary of $500, would serve overlapping terms. The first membership would include one member named for a one-year term, two for two-year terms, two for three-year terms. New appointments would be made as the terms expire.

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday received the following callers:

11 a. m.—Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.).

12:15 p. m.—Frederick Lawton, assistant director, Bureau of the Budget.

12:30 p. m.—Secretary of Treasury Snyder.

3:15 p. m.—Attorney General Tom Clark.

Alaska Plane Search Party Sights Signals

Ketchikan, Alaska, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—The sighting of a smoke column and signal flares at two separate points in the radius of Alaska's greatest sea and air search spurred hopes today that some or all of the 18 persons aboard a missing Pan American DC-4 may have survived a forced landing.

Searching air and surface craft were ordered to concentrate on Dundas and Graham Islands southwest of here, where fishermen reported spotting what may have been signals from survivors on the transport plane that vanished Sunday.

Va. Firm Asks Permit For Gas Pipeline

Lynchburg, Oct. 28 (AP).—Application to construct a 537-mile pipe line from West End, Ky., to Norfolk has been filed with the Federal Power Commission by Commonwealth Natural Gas Corp., which has headquarters in Lynchburg.

Officers of the company said hearing on the application probably will be granted in December or January. Estimated cost of the pipe line is $29,522,100.

British Troops Order Wallace From Auto

Jerusalem, Oct. 28 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace, who is making a journalistic study of Palestine, was ordered from his automobile today and the luggage of a member of his party was searched by British troops in a routine check at a roadblock south of Gaza.

One bag was opened before a British officer appeared. The officer waved the convoy on when he was informed it was Wallace's group.

Worshipper Finds Baltimore Synagogue Defiled by Vandals

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—Ohr Knesset Israel Congregation's synagogue was a sorry mess today. Vandals overnight completely wrecked the inside and destroyed its sacred accouterments.

Charles Port, vice president of the congregation, discovered the depredations at 7 a. m. He had come to the downtown sanctuary to say a prayer for his son, whose body was returned a few days ago from a foreign cemetery for American war heroes.

Port staggered from the church, stunned by the wreckage. He almost wept as he fingered the small black holy bag in which for 50 years he had kept his skull cap and stole.

"They ripped my name and the Star of David off and soaked it in beer," he cried.

Two torahs—gold lettered felt pieces which sit at the head of the altar—lay in a puddle of beer.

"They cost $1600 each," said Sam Smolkin, president of the congregation.

Testaments were strewn about the floor, tapestries with the Star of David were torn and twisted about the pews, candles were crushed into the floor, salt and water were poured in the stove, empty whisky bottles were scattered in the room.

Four times previously the synagogue has been invaded. Two weeks ago, thieves took $60 from a poor box but did no damage.

Water Storage For Summer Found Success

By The Associated Press

Storing water in wells in winter for use in summer promises to be of practical use for some industries in Virginia.

Geological survey officials said yesterday tests have shown that this can be done successfully and that a plant in Hopewell, Va., is now following the practice.

They said advantages include:

1. Water can be stored in winter when the surface supply is plentiful.

2. The cold water stored in underground strata warms up in summer only slightly and is colder than ordinary ground water.

3. The fresh water can be stored in strata saturated with brackish water—as in the coastal section—with most of the stored water remaining uncontaminated.

D. J. Cederstrom, Federal geologist stationed at Charlottesville, Va., said "it is quite evident that storage of fresh water in underground brackish water sediments can be done successfully."

Cederstrom recently reported on a test he conducted at Camp Peary, near Williamsburg, Va. He said about 50 per cent of the water was uncontaminated when pumped out.

Chest X-Ray Information Drive Planned

"Check Your Chest—Let's Wipe Out TB."

With the announcement of this slogan, the citizens committee of the Washington Chest X-Ray Survey launched a city-wide educational program yesterday preparatory to mass chest X-rays next year.

William E. Leahy, committee chairman, set a 100 per cent response among the 600,000 District adults as the goal for the drive to start next January 10.

The purpose of X-raying all persons 15 years of age and over is twofold, he told more than 50 committee members gathered in the board room of the District Building:

To reduce the present tuberculosis mortality rate here—64.3 per 100,000 deaths—which is almost twice as high as the national figure. To reduce local taxes by discovering and treating tuberculosis cases in "minimal," or early stages, rather than allowing them to reach advanced stages and bement.

come wards of the District government.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer and committee member, said that what is accomplished here is likely to influence what is done elsewhere. "A nation's capital should lead," he explained.

Salmon Plentiful

Seattle (U.P.).—A near-record total of 1,275,212 cases of canned salmon, valued at $29,329,876 was delivered here recently from the famed fishing and canning grounds of Bristol Bay, Alaska. Average price paid per case for the 1947 seasonal output was $23—above normal, canned salmon brokers said.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—Wheat futures prices took the upward trail today after three weak sessions, gaining as much as 5 cents a bushel. The December contract went back above $3 after falling below that level Saturday.

Corn also was strong and about 2 to 4 cents higher; and oats were up about 2 cents.

The main bullish element in the wheat pit was the urgent need of rain in the big growing areas of the Southwest, where some rains fell during the weekend. The trade also was encouraged by continued Government purchases of cash wheat, although the production and marketing administration withdrew from the flour market until announcement of December allocations.

Wheat closed 3 to 5 cents higher than the previous finish. December, 3.00⅛@3.00, corn was up 1⅞ @ 4½. December, 2.25@2.25¼ and oats were ahead 1⅞@2. December, 1.15⅜@1.15⅝.

Fairfax Board Rezones Tract For Apartment

The Fairfax County Board of Zoning Appeals yesterday paved the way for a five million dollar apartment development by rezoninfi a 57-acre tract on Lee blvd.

Attorneys for Tyler Realty Corporation, which owns the land, said work will get under way next spring. The site lies about one mile west of Seven Corners and immediately south of a new housing development recently completed by the same company.

The board approved location of a Negro cemetery on Rt. 628, three miles south of Groveton, but again deferred action on a zoning petition to permit enlargement at Mt. Comfort Cemetery in Groveton. The board denied a petition to allow a recreation building to be conducted on Route 211 west of Falls Church following vigorous protest from abutting land owners.

Printing Head Hits Police On Burglaries

The manager of a local printing firm, reporting nine unsolved burglaries in the past 10 weeks, yesterday charged lack of interest on the part of Metropolitan police.

Norman L. Jones, coowner of Bennett & Williams, 810 North Capitol st., announced that housebreakings at the firm have occurred "with almost clocklike" regularity. Except for Saturday night — when thieves lifted $15 from a petty cash box—most of the thefts have been confined to bottles of Coca-Cola and small change, Jones said.

"There seems to be negligence on the part of some patrolmen," Jones declared. "I've reported these cases to police on several occasions and they don't seem to be much interested."

He said the police were "more interested in having us burglar-proof our place than in patrolling the beat." He reported police have investigated several times but "they haven't shown any interest in doing anything about it."

Capt. Robert Pearce of the First Precinct, said his officers have investigated all housebreakings reported by the firm and attributed them to "kids' work throughout." He said two youngsters were arrested September 29 in connection with one of the thefts and they are awaiting action by Juvenile Court authorities.

Poultryless Thursday To Be Weighed in Va.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—"Poultryless Thursdays" will head the subjects to be considered by the Virginia State Poultry Federation annual convention meeting at the Hotel John Marshall November 5 and 6.

Walter C. Berger, president of the American Feed Manufacturers Association who confered recently with Charles Luckman on rescinding "poultryless" days, will report on the effects of the foreign food situation on the feed industry.

Court records as early as 1750 refer to Cabin John Creek as Captain John's Branch, fter a hermit who lived in a log cabin near the spot and who is variously said to have been an Indian or a retired pirate.

Md. Tobacco Authority Bill Is Approved

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Maryland legislative council approved today a bill to establish a state tobacco authority which would "regulate marketing practices" and boost the sale of Maryland tobacco to the world.

The bill, sponsored by State Senator Sothoron (D., Prince Georges), was among measures proposed for consideration at a special session of the State Legislature November 5.

The bill calls for a five-member "tobacco authority of the State of Maryland," to be named by the Governor from lists submitted by the University of Maryland and the Maryland Farm Bureau.

Aims to Seek New Uses

The authority would supplant the office of the State Tobacco Commissioner.

Its purpose would be "to regulate marketing practices and the seeking of new markets and new uses for leaf tobacco produced in Maryland."

Sothoron told the council that "this year the five Southern Maryland tobacco counties were in an unfortunate position in the market. There was no authority to say when the markets would open or close; at the last minute (when the tobacco auctions opened last spring) the market was flooded, prices broke and conditions were chaotic."

Would Fix Sales Days

The new authority would be empowered to fix the days and hours of sale and to set "rules of marketing procedure."

It would collect a tax of 30 cents per hogshead on leaf tobacco on the sales floor of auction warehuses and impose a $100 license fee so-called "transfer buyers."

Members of the tobacco authority, each receiving an annual salary of $500, would serve overlapping terms. The first membership would include one member named for a one-year term, two for two-year terms, two for three-year terms. New appointments would be made as the terms expire.

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday received the following callers:

11 a. m.—Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.).

12:15 p. m.—Frederick Lawton, assistant director, Bureau of the Budget.

12:30 p. m.—Secretary of Treasury Snyder.

3:15 p. m.—Attorney General Tom Clark.

Alaska Plane Search Party Sights Signals

Ketchikan, Alaska, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—The sighting of a smoke column and signal flares at two separate points in the radius of Alaska's greatest sea and air search spurred hopes today that some or all of the 18 persons aboard a missing Pan American DC-4 may have survived a forced landing.

Searching air and surface craft were ordered to concentrate on Dundas and Graham Islands southwest of here, where fishermen reported spotting what may have been signals from survivors on the transport plane that vanished Sunday.

Va. Firm Asks Permit For Gas Pipeline

Lynchburg, Oct. 28 (AP).—Application to construct a 537-mile pipe line from West End, Ky., to Norfolk has been filed with the Federal Power Commission by Commonwealth Natural Gas Corp., which has headquarters in Lynchburg.

Officers of the company said hearing on the application probably will be granted in December or January. Estimated cost of the pipe line is $29,522,100.

British Troops Order Wallace From Auto

Jerusalem, Oct. 28 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace, who is making a journalistic study of Palestine, was ordered from his automobile today and the luggage of a member of his party was searched by British troops in a routine check at a roadblock south of Gaza.

One bag was opened before a British officer appeared. The officer waved the convoy on when he was informed it was Wallace's group.

8 Arrested in Safe Lootings After Baltimore Gun Battle

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—A running gun battle in downtown Baltimore today led to the arrest of seven men and a woman in connection with the looting of two safes—one of them in a building across the street from police headquarters.

Officials believed the battle thwarted an attempt to rob the Clifton Savings Bank where several bags of money were found on the floor.

The gunfight started after Patrolman William McGee saw four men leave the office of a cigarette vending firm opposite police headquarters and enter an automobile with New York license plates.

McGee commandeered a taxi and gave chase. One of the four men fired six shots at the cab. McGee returned the fire. When the cab driver refused to continue the chase, McGee notified police radio squad cars which trailed the automobile to a housing project in East Baltimore. There, police with drawn guns seized the eight suspects as they sought to hide under beds and sofas.

In the cigarette vending office, police found the safe smashed and some $2000 in nickles in canvas bags on the floor. An undisclosed amount of money also was found on the floor of the bank.

Police believed the suspects planned to return for the money when McGee surprised them.

Lack of Funds Danger To U. S.-Owned Patents

Several thousand Government-owned patents, many of basic importance to radar, loran and other electronic developments, will be unprotected in foreign countries after the end of the year because of lack of funds to finance their registration, it was disclosed yesterday.

John C. Green, director of the Office of Technical Services of the Department of Commerce, said that millions of dollars worth of Government wartime research is involved. If the deadline is passed, the United States, in effect will make a gift of the patents to other countries. He said the department has been trying to get individual industries interested in financing the patent registrations abroad, but with little success.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Joe Martin Ignored in Search For "Celebrities"

Several hundred people, mostly women, were milling about the entrance to the House Office Building the other noontime.

Through the crowd ran excited whispers about the famous movie stars who had already been sighted, and about prospects for catching a glimpse of several others.

It was truly amazing to bear witness to this eagerness for proximity to famous people—especially inasmuch as mingling with the crowd, entirely unnoticed, was Speaker Joe Martin—who is "one heart beat removed from the White House."

For all the attention he was getting, Joe Martin might have been Joe Doakes.

o+o

SIGN OF THE TIMES

The Citizen's Food Committee had just ended a long session at the White House, and the various members were leaving the Executive Mansion.

As one well-known tycoon stepped into a glistening Cadillac, he called out, "Hey, Charlie, can I give you a lift?"

"Charlie" accepted with thanks, and as he settled himself comfortably he murmured:

"A fine thing . . . I'm an executive of an auto plant, and I have to hitch rides from friends."

"Is the auto situation still as tight as it was?" asked Charlie's host.

"Tight? Why, some friends of ours were wondering whether they should have a baby or get a new car, and they finally decided on the baby because they could get it quicker."

o+o

DARNED OLD LINENS

I've heard of linen showers for brides, but never for a hospital.

Mary E. Gross of 1414 N. Frederick st., Arlington, Va., tells me that Arlington Hospital is in desperate need of sheets, pillow cases, and spreads. As she puts it:

"Honestly, the women of Arlington have mended, patched, and darned until those old linens don't even hold the thread any more."

So, to get replacements, the women's auxiliary will hold a linen shower for the hospital this Saturday at 8 p. m., at the Cherrydale Recreation Center.

Admission to the party will be one sheet (72x108), one pillow case (20x30), one riplette hospital spread (84x108) or cash (donations of 50 cents or more).

Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Mae Jacobs, at Glebe 6393.

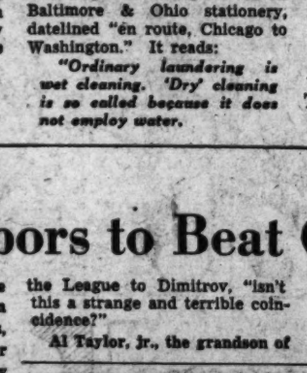
o+o

ADD NAMES

Speaking of names, W. P. Campbell of Rockville, Md., has a little fun with two of our Washing Post reporters. He observes:

"Do you realize that your paper is not only capable of exerting a 'Friendly' influence, but also of spreading 'Haight'?"

(Editor's note: Since he went on the diet, the spreading of Haight has been stopped.)



o+o

CLEAR AS MUD

Some time ago we wondered out loud why "dry" cleaning was known by that name, inasmuch as the process uses liquid cleansing agents.

An explanation has arrived on Baltimore & Ohio stationery, datelined "en route, Chicago to Washington." It reads:

"Ordinary laundering is wet cleaning. 'Dry' cleaning is so called because it does not employ water.

"Dry cleaning depends on non-aqueous solvents which are immiscible (yipe!) with water. These solvents are usually petroleum fractions in the same volatility range as ordinary gasoline. Hope this clears everything up."

Yeah—except for one thing. Why do they call it "dry" cleaning?

o+o

PERSONAL NOTES

Anne Anderson, 22 Edgewood ter., Alexandria, Va., and Hugh I. Glassberg, 1121 New Hampshire ave. nw.: You are the only two District Liners who were keen enough to spot this silly listing in the radio logs. But since the President wasn't to blame for it, let's not give it any further publicity.

o+o

LAKEWOOD, LAKESIDE

The other day we passed along Author L. P. Wyman's plea for a copy of his "Lakeside Boys" series. Gladys Heath Mackin of 1635 R st. nw. replies:

"I thought I could help, but I find that ours is 'The LakeWOOD Boys in the Frozen North.' Did Dr. Wyman also do a LakeSIDE series?"

I dunno. Did you, Dr. Wyman?

o+o

WHO GOES THERE?

G. F. A. of 1627 Connecticut ave. nw. forwards a disturbing thought:

"If the new National Military Establishment comes to be referred to by its initials, it will be indistinguishable to the ear from 'enemy.'"

o+o

ADD SIGNS

William C. Stilwell of 1014 North Carolina ave. se. says that on a vacant lot at 16th and M sts. there's a sign which proclaims:

"NO TRUSPING."

Sinatra Labors to Beat Out Petrillo

NEW YORK.—Because of the December 31 deadline on Petrillo's ban against recordings, Frank Sinatra recorded four sides in three hours yesterday and will continue at this pace until the end of the year. By December 31, Sinatra expects to have a stockpile for the next six years.

Clark Gable expects to play the Paul Kelly role in the film adaptation of the new hit, "Command Decision" . . . Oscar Ewing, the Federal Security Administrator, soon will announce a comprehensive report concerning a new national health program.

A United Nations official sighed yesterday: "I watched the League of Nations fail because Russia and the United States were NOT members. From the way things are going, it looks as if the United Nations is failing because Russia and the United States ARE members."

Because Pablo Picasso is a member of the Communist Party, he was visited by a party emissary who complained that Picasso's new paintings have no Marxian significance and accomplish nothing toward solidifying the Communist dream.

Picasso later told a friend: "The visit of this man started me thinking: If they come into power, I'll be arrested. But if that happens, I'll still have my pencils and be able to continue drawing my pictures. Then it occurred to me—what if they also take away my pencils, while I'm in jail? And I decided that as long as my tongue is wet and there is dust on the floor, I can make my pictures. And so I have come to the conclusion that I am more an artist than I am a politician."

The Petrillo ban on recordings may affect Bing Crosby's radio show. Crosby had said that if he had to do live shows, he preferred staying off the air . . . Some of the record companies, incidentally, are looking to Mexico and the possibility of making records there with local union musicians.

The "Kenny Jackson" in the Paul Gallico story appearing in the current issue of True is Bill Williams, editor of the magazine. The illustrator used Williams as a model, too.

His native city of Hoboken, N. J., will have a Frank Sinatra Day on October 31. The ceremonies will be highlighted by the naming of a street after Sinatra.

Just before the execution of Petkov, the French League of Human Rights sent a message to Georgi Dimitrov, Prime Minister of Bulgaria, asking that he send them the Petkov file, containing the charges against him, the proof, etc. Dimitrov's reply was brief: That his government would tolerate no interference in its internal affairs.

The French League of Human Rights then sent to Dimitrov a copy of its Georgi Dimitrov 1933 file, containing the Nazi government's reply to the request for information on Dimitrov and the Reichstag Fire trials: That the Nazi government would tolerate no interference in its internal affairs . . . "And so, Mr. Prime Minister," wrote the League to Dimitrov, "isn't this a strange and terrible coincidence?"

Al Taylor, jr., the grandson of the late western film star, Harry Carey, is being treated for his embarrassing allergy. The youngster is allergic to horses.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
